Dancing with the Stars a success

The 2019 Dancing with the Norwood Stars went off without a hitch last week at the Four Points Sheraton in Norwood.

The celebration of what Norwood has to offer was a fundraiser set up by the Norwood Circle of Hope (COH) and brings in hundreds of thousands of dollars for local Norwood families. It sold out this year once again with more than 600 tickets sold. Organizer Kathy St. Cyr said she thought of the idea 11 years ago, and never thought it would be as big as it has become.

"I've been involved with the COH for 21 years, since the day it was formed," she said. "It's been an amazing roller coaster."

The group was founded in 1998 in memory of co-founder Lee Kennedy's daughter Michelle. Kennedy said Michelle was diagnosed with leukemia and battled fiercely. Kennedy said she saw the community come out and support her daughter. She said Michelle wanted to continue that tradition when her treatment was over, but she lost her battle with cancer. Lee and several of her friends and neighbors, like St. Cyr, continued the tradition by forming the COH.

First Girls troop in Norwood registered

The Norwood Boy Scouts of America (BSA) Troop 49 St. Catherine of Siena signed its charter last Wednesday night on April 3 to register the first Girls Troop in the Town.

Scoutmaster for the new troop Beverly Murphy said the ceremony was a great experience, both for her and for the five new troop members. The ceremony included the presentation of Murphy's Scoutmaster Patch for Troop 49G, as it is now called, and the presentation of Founders Patches for all five scouts.

Murphy said it all started with her daughter Allie, her only daughter of four children. She said her daughter and her twin brother started scouting together in Cub Scouts.

"In Cub Scouts, she was able to tag along, because it was family camping trips so that was allowed," she said.

"But she always wanted to join the Boy Scouts. When we crossed over to the troops, there wasn't an option for her to participate."

Murphy said last year's announcement from the Boy Scouts of America national organization to allow girls into the Scouts built up a lot of anticipation for her daughter Allie.

"She's been basically waiting until the Feb. 1 deadline to be able to join," she said. "We needed to have five girls to be able to create a troop and she started asking her friends and tried to recruit girls who were interested in joining. We were very happy with the five girls who were interested in moving forward in scouting. It's a great group and they get along really well."

The troop first registered in February and has already undertaken several trips to test their mettle. First up was a

GILBOY

Kenneth C. Gilboy of Norwood, age 60, passed away on March 19, 2019. Loving father of Christine Gilboy and Carrie Gilboy of Blacksburg, VA. He is survived by ex-wife Elizabeth Gilboy of Blacksburg, VA, his sister Anne Amoroso of Portland, ME, by nieces Heather Vergara and Kimberly Wilson both of Norwood, and by numerous cousins. He was the son of the late Charles and Nora (King) Gilboy, both of Norwood, and is predeceased by Marie King, also of Norwood, to whom he was a trusted nephew and caregiver. He also leaves behind numerous friends and colleagues from his long career in the copier service industry. Ken grew up in Norwood and was involved with the Boy Scouts earning the rank of Eagle Scout and later becoming a Scoutmaster. As a youth he played the violin and, for a period of time, played with the Greater Boston Youth Symphony Orchestra. He graduated from Norwood High School with the class of 1977 and soon thereafter, began his long career in the copier service industry. Ken was a self-described tech nerd with a sense of humor who was simply "celebrating his twentieth birthday... for the third time." He possessed an outgoing nature and loved chatting to such an extent that if someone were in need of a filibuster in the Senate, he could have easily spoken for twelve or thirteen hours straight. Right now, he's likely up in Heaven talking the ear off of relatives he hasn't seen in awhile about how his daughters are doing and telling stories about the many dogs he'd had through the years. Ken always had a soft spot for dogs, especially his favorite breed, the German Shepherd. He also loved the color green and ate the most volcanic of hot sauces like the rest of us eat ketchup. A private family ceremony will be held in Blacksburg, VA - the place he considered to be his home.

Selectmen discuss override number and hear Earth Day plans

Susan Kryczka
Staff Reporter

The Norwood Board of Selectmen received an update on the town's Earth Week plans at their Tuesday, April 9 meeting. John Aprea and the Norwood High School Environmental Youth Coalition provided an overview of events scheduled for April 22-26 at Norwood High School (NHS), with week-end activities organized for other parts of the city.

The goal of the initiative is to spread awareness about the environment. To that end, NHS is focusing on repairing and reusing items that might otherwise end up in the trash heap. They will offer a bike swap that will allow swapping a current kid's bicycle for a larger one and bike repair services. A fix-it station will check laptops for optimization. Help will be available to repair small household items like lamps to emphasize repairing rather than trashing. Selectman Alan Howard stressed the importance of students educating their families on recycling.

On Sunday, April 28, Norwood's Earth Day activities include free yoga instruction, a town-wide Earth Day clean-up with a free piece of pizza for those who help. Last year, volunteers collected 276 bags of trash. "We'll be cleaning up all the playgrounds in town," said Aprea. Music, kids' activities and crafts will be available in the Town square.

For more information, citizens are directed to go to www.progressnorwood.org for registration to participate. "I think it will be a great success because it was last year," said Selectman Thomas Maloney.

Other business included a spontaneous discussion about the current dollar amount affixed to the tax override, currently set at $5.9 million. Howard stated that he had heard from quite a few people who wondered if the number on the override might be tweaked to reduce it even more. He noted that there are a lot of people on the fence to approve the override. "They want to be sure it isn't any more excessive than it truly needs to be," he said.

Selectman William Plasko noted that the town needed to maintain a stable free cash balance. "I don't really see any leeway or room for reducing this number at this time." Selectman David Hajjar said, "Collaboration among numerous committees has been going on since May, 2018 to arrive at the current number. To revisit this would ignore the work that has been done by many people. I think it's unfair or unwise." Howard asked Town Manager Tony Muzzucco if he sees any "rocks" that could be turned over to find more savings. Muzzucco said no.

Chairman Paul Bishop noted that two-thirds of the cities and towns in Massachusetts are going for overrides. "We are not going to solve the problem," he said, adding that the state has to step up efforts to provide more assistance. Hajjar said the state has to stop putting unfunded mandates on the shoulders of the towns. "It's a price tag we can't fund," he said. Selectmen approved the creation of the ballot for the town override vote as submitted.

The override continued to be discussed in relationship to a Memo of Understanding (MOU). The Finance Commission, School Committee, and Board of Selectmen met on Saturday, April 6 to discuss an MOU that would state that if voters pass the override, the MOU would pledge to work on how financial matters will be handled for the next five years. The selectmen approved the adoption of the MOU.

Other business included Abdul Shuman's application for a used car license to buy and sell used cars. He would operate the business from his home via a computer, with no cars on the property. Hajjar asked if his neighbors knew about this proposed business. "I don't intend to have any cars on the property," said Shuman. Public notice of his intent has been placed in the newspaper. Selectmen indicated that there can be no deviation from his no-car pledge on the property. His license was approved.

After some discussion, only Kevin Shaughnessy and Martin E. Odstrchel were re-

Pot bust leads to machine gun possession arrest

Norwood Police recovered four firearms, several boxes of ammunition, fireworks and a few pounds of marijuana.

Jeff Sullivan
Staff Reporter

According to the Norwood Police Department (NPD), the end of a months-long investigation into a local resident has yielded an arrest.

The NPD reported that on April 5, Detective Brenden Greene concluded his investigation and was granted a search warrant for the residence at 46 Geraldine Dr. The arrest of Andrew Origlio, 29, of 46 Geraldine Dr. resulted in 29 total charges, including possession of an assault weapon, possession of a machine gun, five counts of possession of a firearm without a license, possession of an incendiary device, four counts of possession with intent to distribute of a Class D substance and four counts of drug law violations in a school zone.

According to NPD Chief William Brooks, the investigation started a couple of months ago because of allegations from local residents that Origlio was illegally selling marijuana.

“There’s a lot of misinformation out there certainly, but people have to keep in mind residents voted in favor of marijuana,” he said. “But you can only have 10 ounces in your home and one ounce in public and you can’t deal it. I think the weight here came in at a couple of pounds, and that’s not an inordinate amount, but it’s well beyond what you can have in your home and, of course, you can’t sell at all.”

Brooks said Norwood doesn’t usually see a large stash of firearms and explosives in its drug surveillance.

“There’s no indication that he used those firearms for drug trafficking,” Brooks pointed out. “But I’d have to think back to the last time we had that many firearms in that kind of a search. We don’t tend to see a lot of firearms in drug trafficking.”

The NPD reported seizing enough items to require the use of the Police Wagon to transport it all. Those items include marijuana, hash oil, THC edibles, materials to package and distribute marijuana and THC oil, equipment to extract THC oil from marijuana, four handguns, one assault rifle, parts to build a machine gun, .22 caliber ammo, .45 caliber ammo, .223 caliber ammo, 5.56mm ammo, and a large supply of fireworks along with materials that suggest he was building his own fireworks.

Norwood worked with the Norfolk County Police Anti-Crime (NORPAC) Task Force in this case. NORPAC’s member agencies are the towns of Canton, Dedham, Foxborough, Medfield, Millis, Needham, Norfolk, Norwood, Plainville, Sharon, Stoughton, Walpole, Westwood, Wellesley, Wrentham and the Massachusetts State Police. It has been in existence since 1987.

HAJJAR SAYS THANK YOU

To the Editor:

I want to thank the voters in this great Town for giving me the opportunity to be a member of the Board of Selectmen. I am truly honored by your support, hope and belief that I can and will make a difference. I will not take anything for granted. You can count on me to work hard for you and with my fellow Selectmen in charting the right course for Norwood. There are many issues facing us and I will do my best, and be as transparent as possible, in dealing with them. Fortunately, there are many wonderful people serving this Town in many capacities that can be counted on. This will not be done in a short period of time. However, we will do what needs to be done and work collaboratively as a team in order to meet the needs of our citizens and to meet the needs in moving Norwood to a better place. Whether you voted for me or not, I now serve every resident of Norwood.

Again, I thank you and hope that you provide me with feedback during my term that will help me make better decisions for the great Town of Norwood.

AVOID CUTS, SUPPORT THE OVERRIDE

To the Editor:

I am grateful to live in a community that values families and supports kids and seniors. We have a wonderful downtown, a diverse offering of recreation programs, dedicated town employees and a modern high school.

We face an urgent choice this spring to invest in our town to ensure it remains a great place to call home. The town’s been using its savings (free cash) to balance the budget. This is not a sustainable way to fund the town’s programs and services. If the town doesn’t pass an override, many of the school programs and town services that make this a special place to live will be lost, from closing the Willet and all after school activities, to reducing hours at Winter Street Recycling and cutting positions in the police, fire, library and DPW.

Approving an override will help us keep our schools competitive, maintain services and improve the town’s financial stability. We won’t have to dig into savings for snow and ice removal or road maintenance.

Today, Norwood’s average tax is one of the lowest in the state, and even with an override the average tax bill would still be lower than most nearby towns and the state average. For all the taxes and unwelcome expenses I have (anyone ride the commuter rail?), my local taxes provide the most direct and continuous benefit to me and my neighbors. The time has come. Please support Norwood and vote yes on an override.

While many fruit trees (apple, pear, peach, plum, and cherry) can be included in our New England edible landscapes, some species are more suited than others. Dr. Autio will talk about how to determine whether or not your site is suitable for growing fruit trees and how the variety you select will make the difference between success and failure. He will discuss the most important pests you need to know about and how to control them (or live with them), and what you need to know about the basic physiology that controls a fruit tree’s response to management. He will also discuss techniques to reduce pruning and improve fruiting, as well as basic pruning and training techniques that can help keep fruit trees in small spaces. Saint Streets clock starts

Staff Reporter

After more than half a year since the idea was first floated, it looks like now the Town of Norwood can start negotiating with DCD Realty to purchase the Saint Streets Lot near 84 Morse St.

The lot was originally part of a parking lot proposal for use by Boch Automotive for vehicle storage, but Boch Vice President Michael Clemmey said he was reducing the size of the lot and would negotiate with the Town to sell the property to it.

At last week's Conservation Commission meeting the Commission voted unanimously to accept the final Order of Conditions with revisions as agreed upon. The Commission then voted to approve and issue the Orders of Conditions, also unanimously.

This starts the clock on the negotiating time, which is 18 months. Attorney representing DCD, David Hern, said publicly at the previous Conservation Commission meeting that DCD is willing to sell the parcel at the assessed value, before the Commission put together an Order of Conditions that is now the last approval the project needed before it started work, which kicked off that 18-month clock.

Because the warrants are completed for the upcoming April Special Town meeting and the regular May Town meeting is already full (hence the special Spring meeting) if a sale is agreed upon by Town officials, Town Meeting members will be able to vote to approve said sale by a Fall Town Meeting.

Hern said last week he just had a bit of legal language to clear up before he was comfortable with the Order of Conditions.

Because the Saints Street lot is part of the whole property as it is defined now and has been included in the plan, Hern said the current Order of Conditions would require more approvals from the Commission in order for DCD to be able to sell it to the Town.

Hern said at some point the Saint Streets lot would have to be separated into a different parcel to legally sell it to the Town, and he has stated emphatically is the plan.

"I'm concerned that we're unnecessarily going to tie everybody's hands on this," he said.

Hern said a workable solution to this would be to change the Order of Conditions to read that no lots could be sold or transferred until a certificate of compliance relative to such lots or as issued by the Commission.

Member Cheryl Doyle suggested that the Commission just insert language that would exclude the Saint Streets lot in the Order of Conditions. Hern said he felt that the buyer's counsel would still want an approved partial Certificate of Compliance.

"I know you can't commit to doing that," Hern said.

Conservation Commission member Joseph DiMaria said the language should include a definition of the Saints Street lot land within the Order of Conditions, which is all land north of the Neponset River and west of the Hawes Brook. DiMaria and Hern agreed that since DCD doesn't control the boundaries on the other two sides of the parcels, the Balch School and Saints neighborhood itself, it should be a direct reference to the land they want to encapsulate within the legal language.

"You basically got four boundaries," DiMaria said "If we can come up with four sides of that lot it's pretty well defined."

Conservation Agent Al Geotz said he will revise the Order of Conditions to reflect that definition.

For the actual start of construction on the lot, Hern said they have to wait at least two months from the approval of the Order of Conditions. After the final Order of Conditions is approved, Hern said they will have to wait an additional 60 days under the Commission's by-law to allow any appeal to be made. He said they would want to start as soon as possible, which right now is around June.

ferent areas and just formed the COH in memory of her daughter," St. Cyr said. "We're all volunteers and every penny we raise goes right back to the community, the people here in Norwood."

St. Cyr said the Dancing with the Norwood Stars is the biggest fundraiser for the group yearly.

"We had a couple of smaller fundraisers at the beginning, a couple of thousand dollars every year, but I went to a meeting one year and asked if we could do a Dancing with the Stars fundraiser," St. Cyr said. "They thought I was nuts, and they said it can't be done, nobody will do it. I walked out of that meeting and met with Tommy Concannon, he used to have the old hall in Norwood and I asked him if he would donate the hall and he said 'absolutely.' I went to a local dancing studio and I got 60 dance lessons donated, Fred Astair's in Norwood, but they're no longer in Norwood."

She said she then went to local people in the Town to get them dancing lessons for the night, and every year since it's gotten bigger and bigger.

"Just amongst the dancers they sell the tickets and you can't get a ticket to the show tonight, it's incredible," she said.

Beverly and Brian Sr. Boudreau said they came out to watch their son Brian Jr. compete.

"They had asked Brian to dance and we said we'd do whatever we could do to help," Beverly said. "It's kind of scary but it's good; it's super exciting."

Brian Sr. said he was excited to see Brian Jr. get out there.

"I'm looking forward to see him dance," he said. "It's a great show and it's a good thing for Norwood too."

Boudreau Jr. works for Norwood Community Media as a camera man and is usually the one out of the center of attention. His fellow cameramen at NCM followed his progress during the night, and he said he was a little concerned about getting on the other side of the lens.

"It's definitely an adrenaline rush that I usually don't get," he said. "It's a different experience, I'll tell you that, and it's also kind of cool because I thought at first I knew what I was doing, but it's definitely really different when you're on the other side."

Cutting Loose Salon owner Jennifer Murphy-Connolly said she's been donating her time to help prepare many of the dancers before the show, but this year, she stepped up and danced herself.

"I just wanted to give back," she said.

Zoning Board of Appeals member Jack Perry wasn't dancing this year, he said winning once was enough, but he was still out there to support the COH.

"At the time I was thinking, 'what's wrong with these people? What do you mean I won?'" he said laughing. "But I did, and that was great... I've been a member of the COH for quite a while, and it's the most amazing thing. No one's paid, it's all volunteer and every cent stays in the Town of Norwood."

Resident Tom Folan, at age 73, was the oldest dancer by far.

"It's a lot of work but it's very rewarding," he said. "I had a lot of fun doing it. A lot of our friends came in together and meeting those guys again was amazing and I got a lot of support from my family. I would definitely do it again next year."

Folan said he was looking for the "sympathy vote" from the dance judges.

"I'm the oldest by far, I think the next oldest guy is like 40 or 30 or something," he said.

Emcees George Usevich and Tim McDonough said they got involved years ago through McDonough's involvement with the organization.

"They asked me to dance the first year and I said 'absolutely not,'" he said with a laugh. "I just could not do it, and they said if Tim and you emceed, would you do that? And we did it and it's our 11th year. It's a lot of fun certainly," said Usevich.

Usevich, a former principal at the Norwood High School and former Selectman, and McDonough, a former selectman, have had their share of experience with the Town. McDonough also works at NCM as an announcer and anchor, and he said doing the Norwood Stars show was somewhat of a relief.

"This is definitely more relaxed," he said. "So George and I have been friends going back 35 or 40 years."

"He was president of the class of 1983 for four years," Usevich said. "He would come into my office and was literally my assistant in the office and our relationship started literally in high school."

Residents Nancy, Sam and Don Cerulo came out to support Sam's girlfriend Kathy Curran in the competition.

"This is our first time coming and I think it's a pretty cool concept," Sam said.

Out of Town residents Linda Ubertini and Paul Wagner said they've been coming for a long while, and they said there's not really anything like it in other towns.

"This is my fourth year and it's a great cause, I have a lot of friends from Norwood, and I'm not from Norwood I'm from the Cape," she said. "I just love it, the whole vibe in here is great."

The Judge's Choice dual winners for the night were Jen Murphy-Connolly and Kathy Curran. Curran also did not compete in the dance before.

"I did not know what I was in store for," she said. "It's a lot of work but it's for a great cause. It's just something we can do to give back and it's an amazing thing."

trip to the Klondike Derby at Camp Squanto in Plymouth.

“Mother Nature celebrated the trip with them by gifting us a polar vortex and it dipped to 2 degrees overnight,” Murphy said. “Some troops decide to do it and some don’t, but it’s a great way to introduce them to winter camping and to teach them how to prepare properly for the weather... Lots of layers, and we went over what to do as far as staying warm, like making sure you stay hydrated with warm drinks as well, and we had hand and foot warmers if they needed them.”

The Derby is an optional overnight camping trip with rounds of competitive activities afterwards involving the construction and utilization of what Murphy said was essentially dog sleds.

“Think of it as the sleds the dogs pull in Alaska,” she said. “These sleds are used to carry their gear and they pull and push the sled, similar to how the huskies would do it. They need to work together and cooperate to get moving.”

Murphy said they went through several different stations throughout the derby to test their skills in scouting. She said each station only had placings for first, second and third.

“There was a station for knots, a station where they had to work together to lift the sled over an obstacle and one where they threw mallets,” she said. “It’s called a tomahawk throw, but it’s rubber mallets they throw to try to hit a target. It’s meant to be fun for them and teach them to work as a team.”

Murphy said it was their first time competing, so it was more of a situation of competing against themselves.

“I said to them they need to go there with the idea that you’re going to have fun and do better than you’ve done in the past,” she said. “These scouts had no prior scouting experience and they were going against boys who had been in the program, in some cases, since they were in kindergarten and first grade. They didn’t walk away with any ribbons, but I was told they would have placed fourth in one event. I think for their first time that’s pretty remarkable.”

Murphy said the kids are most excited about the prospect of now being able to reach the rank of Eagle Scout.

“If you ask them, they’ll tell you that’s the goal,” she said. “I think this is a wonderful opportunity for them, and this is the first time that girls would even have a possibility of working towards Eagle Scout.”

Murphy said she’s been in the Boy Scouts for years, sometimes as a Den Mother or a Scoutmaster, but she’s proud to be able to help these girls develop their skills in a new environment.

“I’m certainly not the first, but there were never a ton of us,” she said. “It’s going to be a great challenge, but I’m looking forward to working with the girls and I’ve been working with the boys troops for a number of years... We have a great team of people, which I think is awesome. It’s a great group of leaders and we have to help these girls launch on their trails, where ever their goals might lead them.”

His loved ones are so incredibly grateful and blessed to have had such a passionate, loving, creative, honest, kind and free spirited soul that made such a profound impact on so many lives. He was someone that would give the shirt off his back for a loved one and would drop everything without hesitation to help someone in need. He would give love and kindness freely to those who earned his respect. His empathetic and understanding views of the world, society, mental illness, social media, holistic living, fatherhood, nature, history, art, poetry, marriage, music, family, life lessons, space, finding your purpose, the ocean, traveling, people and useless facts, as he liked to say, and how every person is connected to each other, nature, earth and everything around us. This is only the tip of the iceberg of reasons why this phenomenal human being was and will continue to live on within each of us all while inspiring, uplifting, helping each other grieve, bringing joy to the world, sharing stories, videos, pictures, memories, creating art, poetry, laughter, love, compassion, beauty, and so many more words come to mind when we think of him. He immediately made people feel at ease to speak openly and freely without being judged for being who you are. He lit up every room he walked into within seconds with his exuberant and spontaneous personality, hilarious faces, contagious laugh, gorgeous smile, a wit and charm like no other, dance moves that would crush Mick Jagger’s and all the while he’s been waiting to do his version of drop it like it’s hot. “Music gives a Soul to the Universe, Wings to the Mind, Flight to the Imagination and Life to Everything”. At the request of Terrance’s family, all services were private.

MODEL RAILROAD EXPERT DESCRIBES SUCCESSFUL BUSINESS

One of the most exciting and interesting programs Norwood's Norfolk County Rail Road Club (NCRRC) has presented during its 20 years at Norwood's Morrill Memorial Library, will be a presentation by Stephan Lamb, founder of Lamb Associates, Lowell, MA, nationally-known custom designers and builders of model railroads of all sizes and all descriptions.

The meeting is in the Simoni Room of Norwood's Morrill Memorial Library, Wednesday evening, 7 P.M., April 24. It is free and open to the public. The multi-media presentation describes the unusual story of this interesting firm that since 2001 has specialized in building professional "turnkey" model railroads. Through the years since his company's founding, Stephan Lamb, a master modeller himself, has assembled a group of talented craftsmen including engineers, artists and mechanical and computer engineers who themselves are master model railroaders. Tonight's meeting also offers local model railroaders a chance to pick up new ideas for their model railroad, regardless of size. Details, contact Ed Sweeney, NCRRC Program Organizer, 781-762-5587.

MATT BROWN DISCUSSES HIS NEW BOOK

Former Norwood High School hockey player Matt Brown will speak at the Morrill Memorial Library on Monday, May 13 at 7:00 p.m. to talk about his new book, "Line Change: A True Story of Resilience in the Face of Adversity," co-authored by Todd Civin.

Matt Brown's life changed immeasurably on January 23, 2010 when he struck the boards during a Norwood High hockey game. Left paralyzed, unable to use his arms or legs, Matt decided to live life "differently" but never gave up.

Matt's injury and continued recovery have been well-documented in the local media. In his new book, readers can gain an insight into the positive approach Matt and his family have exhibited on his road to recovery. "Line Change," which reached No. 1 on Amazon's list of bestselling new releases, is not just a book about hockey. It is a love story, an inspiration, and a step-by-step manual of the rules needed to overcome any of life's obstacles. To register for this event, please go to norwoodlibrary.org/morrillcalendar, call 781-769-0200, x110, or stop by the library Reference or Information Desk. Copies of the book will be available to purchase after the program.

mixed-use overlay would allow for property owners in the district to add one or two additional stories to a commercial building if they meet the right requirements. Originally, the plan was to allow 16 total units per acre of land and up to 24 units of bonus density if the landowner provided additional community benefits. However, since most buildings in the district are on quarter-acre lots, Town Planner Paul Halkiotis said problems arose.

“There was discussion about density and whether or not allowing 16 to 24 units per acre was going to provide enough density to make it profitable for a business or property owner to take the risk and do additions,” Halkiotis said. “We want to find that balance between what the townspeople would like to see and not asking for too much density to the extent that the bylaw wouldn't get passed, and providing enough density so an existing property owner would be able to see a return on investment.”

According to Halkiotis, the landowners they met with did not believe the additional density of 16 units per acre by right would allow them to make enough profit to justify any kind of additional build. Recent Chair Ernie Paciorkowski put it in plain words.

“I know density is a scary word to everybody, but they honestly said at 16 units per acre they wouldn't even consider it,” he said.

The Board discussed establishing the base density at 20 units per acre with the option of going up to 32 units per acre in density bonus. The way it would generally work, according to Paciorkowski, would be four extra units on each floor of a current quarter-acre building in the district.

The next issue was height.

Halkiotis said currently the bylaw allows for 40 feet in the Central Business district, which for purely residential buildings would allow for four stories. But he pointed out many of the buildings there are designed for commercial use, which would see the first floor with higher ceilings than normal.

Paciorkowski introduced a motion to allow for 45 feet with a waiver.

“So we could go up to 45 feet if we thought the project required it or we thought it was a great project and the extra five feet was okay,” he said. “I would go with a waiver, I think that's a good compromise...If you're giving 45 feet to a developer he had better have a good reason.”

Member Debbie Holmwood agreed, and said she thinks the waiver allows the Board flexibility.

“Because if we just start at 45 feet, then they're going to ask for 47, for 49, for 50, so I would rather start at 40 and this gives us leeway,” she said.

Another portion of the bylaw they wanted to change was of additional story setback. The original plan was to have an additional story setback 10 feet from the border of the previous story after 25 feet of height was reached, and then again at 35 feet. The idea was to mitigate the creation of a canyon-type feel for the district and allow more light into the street.

Friends of Norwood Center Kim Morin Weineck said she was in favor of the proposal to modernize the Downtown area, and she said renovation would allow businesses to work in modern buildings for modern purposes.

“What I've heard about some of the vacancies that have been that way for some time is that those buildings are not reflective of the needs of retail now,” she said. “There's little incentive now for the building owners and landlords to invest in the buildings so this makes a huge difference. I mean no one is going to come in with the objective to save Norwood Center. It's the heart of Norwood, but we need a catalyst and that's what this can be.”

Town Meeting members were invited to the meeting so they could get a preview of the proposal in the upcoming Special Town Meeting and many supported the idea.

“Retail follows rooftops, remember that,” said one resident.

“I see this type of stuff going up all over the place and it's amazing how it changes the area, and so I'm definitely in favor of it,” said another resident.
