Much like the rest of the east coast, Norwood is getting slammed with snow. According to Mark Ryan, Director of the Norwood's Department of Public Works (DPW), as of February 15, 69 inches of snow have fallen on Norwood.

"We've done 22 salt operations, eight plow operations, which doesn't include [February] 13 and 15, and we've done four snow removals," said Ryan. "We don't have a lot of volume of snow, it's just very frequent ... we haven't had those big storms, it's just frequency. That's where the money is because we just have to keep calling contractors in, bringing our guys in overtime [and] using more material."

Before last Thursday's storm, the DPW has spent $753,600 on plowing, snow removal and ice operations. That number will rise because it doesn't include snow from last Thursday, the weekend or this week. The DPW has also planned a snow removal for February 19.

"[The low temperatures] hasn't affected us as far as removal. You wish it were warmer so that it would melt some of the snow away, but it's just not going away. So every [storm] you have, it's just building on it," said Ryan. "That's why we're at a point in the center [of town] where you just have to remove [it] because it's not going to go away any time soon."

The bitter cold has affected the town's operations when it comes to salt. According to Ryan, rock salt is effective with temperatures

One of Norwood's oldest homes changed owners recently, and the town is looking at the possibility of preserving the house.

"The Town Manager [John Carroll] called me to let me know the property had been sold," said Judith Howard, Chairwoman of the Norwood Historical Commission of when she first learned of a potential new owner. She sprung into action.

Howard petitioned the town to try to purchase the property or to take action to preserve the home, located at 806 Neponset Street, in some way by sending a message to Carroll. She then submitted her correspondence with Carroll to the Board of Selectmen (BOS) at their meeting on February 11, hoping they would act. The Board didn't recommend purchasing the property because of the high asking price, but was interested in the possibility of purchasing the house without the property. Carroll is exploring options on what the town can do.

"We're going to get a historic preservationist ... that's going to go look in the house and see if it's [worth] saving. It could be so much changed and so little left of that period that it's not even worth talking about," said Carroll. "If that [preservationist] says this is really something worth saving then if the BOS allows me, ... I would talk to the present owner

PLIMPTON PRESS PARTNERSHIP

Over the last year we have collaborated closely with town officials, neighbors and residents to create a project that the entire town can be proud of and our goal throughout has been to ensure every neighbor and voter is informed about the project.

We are hosting open office hours at 125 Lenox Street Mondays from 8:30 to Noon, Tuesdays from Noon to 4 PM and Wednesdays from 6 to 8 PM from now until Town Meeting. Come speak to the project team, review the renderings, ask questions and share your comments!

Commitments to the Neighborhood

- Lenox Street will be reopened and will be the ONLY entrance and exit from the property. Rock and Plimpton Streets will never be connected to the property.
- The Tower Building at the corner of Guild Street will never be made into residential units.
- The site has less than 1% green space today (with only one tree). This project will cover approximately 20% of the site with green space, including trees and bushes.
- The redeveloped site will generate approximately 25% fewer cars at peak hours in the morning and 6% more cars at peak hours in the evening than the site's previous use. In addition, it will eliminate heavy 18-wheelers and other truck traffic.
- Wide sidewalks and street-level office and retail spaces will energize the area and make it more inviting for pedestrians.

Fiscal Benefits

- This project will generate more than $1 million in revenue to the town in permitting fees and state payments.
- Net new revenue will increase approximately $200,000 a year over the current site.
- The redevelopment will have 30 for-sale condominiums, 210 apartments and retail/office space.

Norwood Chief of Police William Brooks stands with the certificate awarded to the Metropolitan Law Enforcement Council on February 18 for their Child Abduction Response Team (CART). The organization officially became the 19th nationally certified CART team and only the second team in the Northeast to receive this honor.

The Metropolitan Law Enforcement Council (Metro LEC), a consortium of which the Norwood Police is a part, received a lofty certification for their Child Abduction Response Team (CART). They are one of only 19 teams certified in the United States.

“It was a huge undertaking and it’s really quite an accomplishment for them to be just one of a few certified teams in the country,” said Norwood Chief of Police William Brooks. “It’s the type of crime that you hope never occurs and that you never have to deal with, but if the need arises, it’s too late to train, it’s too late to plan.”

Phil Keith, Program Director for the AMBER Alert Training and Technical Assistance Program, presented the certification on behalf of the Department of Justice (DOJ) on Tuesday at the community room of the Norwood Police Department.

“It’s a team that’s trained in advance to respond to missing and abducted children ... we are the only certified CART in New England,” said Gregory Lennon, Captain of the CART team and Detective Lieutenant on the Cohasset Police Force. “We have these unique regional consortiums ... because those are unique to Massachusetts, we are able to pool a large amount of resources so it was easier for us to stand something like this up.”

To be certified, the CART had to meet 47 standards of best practices in abducted children operations, which culminated in a two-day assessment by the DOJ on July 23 and 24. On the first day, the Metro LEC’s procedures for the CART were reviewed. The second day of review was a practical exam in the form of a mock child abduction staged in Norwood. Two assessors from the AMBER alert program observed the CART response and asked them to make only a few minor tweaks to their procedure. In the mock abduction, Chief Brooks’ son Kevin of the Wellesley Police Department played the perpetrator.

“It was definitely a different perspective ... on my way through town I was passing detail guys and passing cruisers and thinking this is pretty crazy. Everyone hears the radio call [for the abduction],” said Kevin. “They’ve been working on the project for years and years.”

The mock abduction involved motorcycle patrolmen, door-to-door canvassing, canines, and stopping cars.

“It was great to do it here [in Norwood]. I had great support from the Board of Selectmen ... we [also] sent a notice to all the neighbors, ran it by them. They were extremely supportive, which was very helpful. We couldn’t have done it without their support,” said Chief Brooks.

According to Keith, 1.6 million children go missing every year. He praises the Metro LEC for being awarded the certification, stating that it takes a lot of commitment to create an organization that responds to crises with children and communities that are a part of this accomplishment are an upper echelon of preparedness.

Norwood’s police force has been ahead of the curve on drug overdose intervention as well. Mayor of Boston Martin Walsh has just recently called for City police officers to carry Narcan, a drug that helps prevent drug overdose deaths. Norwood already implemented this practice earlier this year.

“We have very progressive people that work here and are open to new ideas. It’s nice to be out front on [Narcan],” said Chief Brooks. “We do try to stay out front, see the trends ahead of time. It really has to do with [the fact] that I have very talented people.”

Police and fire team up for blood drive on Thursday

Joe DiFazio
Staff Reporter

The Fire and Police Department look to save lives in a new way, teaming up with the Red Cross for a Blood Drive on Thursday February 27 at the Norwood Senior Center.

“Basically it’s a partnership between the Police and Fire Departments to come together and give some blood,” said officer James Mahoney, School Resource Officer at The Coakley Middle School and president of the local Norwood Patrolman’s Union. He is hosting the event with Dennis Mawn, President of the local firefighter’s union.

“[The Fire Department] wanted to do it in conjunction with the police as public safety workers and offices in the town,” said Mawn.

Mawn was inspired to start organizing the event when he saw that the Red Cross was holding a blood drive at the Old Colonial Café. He said he had only noticed it because he was paying bills at Town Hall. He thought that the public safety offices in town could hold an event that would be better publicized. He obtained permission from the Board of Selectmen to put the flier for the Blood Drive in town paychecks as another way to get the word out.

“It’s good public relations, a good way to give back as they say; what we’re doing is challenging the other unions in town [to come to the] event,” said Mawn. “Norwood’s a big ‘give back’ community too, so they’ll come out. Norwood is very good about it ... I’d rather so many people come that we need to turn them away than not enough.”

Mawn said that the Fire Department used to have an annual blood drive, but hasn’t for some time. He hopes that if the event is successful, they’ll begin doing it once a year again.

“[February] fit everybody’s schedule, it’s after the holiday and more importantly winter-time is a time that, for whatever reason, blood is in a huge [demand],” said Mawn.

According to Mawn, The Red Cross will be setting up four or five stations and bringing around 12 support staff. “30 pints of blood is a good turn-out, if we can’t get 30 be-

McDonough looking for fundraising head start on Friday

Joe DiFazio
Staff Reporter

Norwood's Circle of Hopes' (COH) Dancing with the Norwood Stars' contestants are getting into the swing of their fundraisers before the big event.

"Friday I have a fundraiser for my portion of Dancing with the Stars. Each contestant is asked to raise money, with each of the proceeds going to the Circle of Hope," said Norwood High School Athletic Director Brian McDonough.

McDonough, along with Susan Bunker, Frederick Wobrock of Gillooly Funeral Home, Mindy Keyes of Four Points Sheraton, Valerie Bishop and Christopher Eysie, who owns his own interior design firm, will compete in Dancing with the Norwood Stars to benefit the COH.

"My brother, Tim [McDonough, President of COH] has been involved for many years. He asked me a number of times to do the dancing, but a couple of years ago I had my hip replaced, so that put me out of commission for a little bit," said McDonough. "I've just seen a lot of good work the COH does and felt it would be helpful to give back a little bit [by agreeing to dance]."

McDonough says that dancing is the easy and fun part. He and his partner Emma, who dances at the Fred Astaire Dance Studio, practice once a week. McDonough says the time goes by quickly and that they add a new piece each week. Despite the song only being two and half to three minutes long, he says that there's a lot to it.

"I've had a chance to see first hand some of the work [the COH] does in helping families out who have struggled. Being in the school system I hear often of people that have struggled or had some financial and medical issues and know that they can go to this organization," said McDonough. "And it's one of those [organizations] that's no questions asked and [the COH] help them out. It's nice because it is a local organization that's helping families in Norwood."

tween the fire department and police department we ought to be ashamed of ourselves," said Mawn. "One person gives about a pint of blood."

The Red Cross states that every two seconds someone is in need of blood and that more than 41,000 blood donations are needed every day. The Red Cross, which began its blood donation program in 1940, claims to supply about 40 percent of blood needs in the U.S. and that each donation can save up to three lives. The Red Cross also states that "Eighty percent of the blood donations given to the Red Cross are collected at mobile blood drives set up at community organizations, companies, high schools, colleges, places of worship or military installations. The remaining 20 percent are collected at fixed Red Cross donor centers."

"We fully support the blood drive ... both on-duty and off-duty policemen will be in attendance," said Police Chief William Brooks, who complimented the men for putting it on.

If you wish to donate, the Blood Drive will take place from 2 p.m. to 7 p.m. The senior center is located at 275 Prospect Street. For more information, visit redcrossblood.org or call 1-800-733-2767.

dation was established in 1998 in memory of Michelle Kennedy, a young Norwood resident who suffered from leukemia. During Michelle's battle with the disease, many in town pitched in to help her. According to COH, "funds raised are used to assist residents of Norwood who find themselves in need due to a catastrophic medical event." Since it was founded in 1998, COH has provided over $395,000 in assistance to Norwood residents.

This is the sixth year the COH has held the Dancing with the Stars Competition with well-known local 'stars.' This year the competition will be held on April 11 at the Four Points Sheraton at 8 p.m. Tim McDonough and Norwood Senior High School Principal George Usevich will host the event and help a panel judge the

The suggested donation is $15. All are welcome. There will also be several other fundraisers before the competition.

"There's a lot of great organizations out there that do national fundraisers and things, but when you know that it's helping someone here right in the community it means that much more to be a part of it," said McDonough.

Senior Night splendor; boys hockey beats Walpole 2-0

Gillian Smith
Staff Reporter

The boys' hockey team had a blowout performance against Walpole Saturday night as Mustang fans braved heavy snowfall to celebrate senior players and a 2-0.

Fifteen seniors were honored before the game against the Rebels, as they received cards and gave flowers to their parents, thanking them for their support throughout their hockey careers. The Mustangs played hard and fast throughout the game, celebrating the seniors the best way they knew how - with a win.

Boys' hockey coach Bill Clifford called the game a "good night" and said he was very proud of the seniors for their hard work. In keeping with the theme of the night, both goals scored in the second period were scored by seniors Jack Sheehan and Mark Powers, which Clifford said was very exciting.

The first period started out with Norwood spending most of the time in Walpole territory, taking several shots that were denied by the Walpole goalie. Walpole was not happy to be spending so much time on defense, so they pushed ahead with an aggressive offense with several breakaway attempts. Despite efforts from both sides, the first period ended scoreless.

"We were prepared for Walpole to be fired up against us after we beat them earlier in the season," said Clifford. "They played tough defense and we had to really work against it." Both teams were prepared to fight for a win in the second period, as the Mustangs pushed their offense and made good defensive moves against the Rebels. It looked as if the Mustangs were having trouble navigating the ice, as several good shot opportunities went unused as player after player lost their balance.

Relief finally came at the 6:58 mark, as Sheehan worked through several Rebel defenders for an unlikely shot that slid right past the glove of the Walpole goalie. The crowd erupted into cheers as the senior celebrated the goal.

It was soon back to business, however, as Walpole pushed back against the Mustangs, taking advantage of several missed Mustang passes and making multiple attempts on goal. The Mustangs were not satisfied with just one goal on the board, as they worked the puck around Walpole territory, forcing the Rebels to keep moving around the ice. Their efforts paid off yet again at the four-minute mark as senior Mark Powers slid the puck past a distracted Walpole goalie.

The Mustang defense held the Rebels off throughout the rest of the second period and into the third period, closing out their season with an exciting win for the seniors and the entire team.

"Overall it was a very exciting game," Clifford said. "We did a good job on defense bottling up the Walpole offense, which is something we have been working on all season."

The game against Walpole closed the Mustang's regular season. Their league record is 11-3-2 and their overall record is 11-5-4.

"We've had a very successful year," Clifford said. "I am very proud of how we have done this season."

Boys hoops lose to Westwood, 55-32

Gillian Smith
Staff Reporter

The Norwood boys basketball team played catch-up through four quarters Sunday night against the Westwood Wolverines, ultimately losing 55-32.

Westwood stole the show from the start, holding Norwood off from scoring and finally sinking a basket less than two minutes into the game. Norwood fought back after a foul shot by sophomore guard Clifton Clark put the Mustangs on the board with six minutes to go in the first quarter. The Mustangs found their first glimpse of a lead on a fast break by senior forward Thankgod Ugochukwu, who made a quick pass to sophomore forward Joe Mazzotta to give the Mustangs a short-lived lead.

Despite pushing a full court press on the Wolverines with a minute and a half to go in the first half, the Mustangs were down 24-12 at the halftime buzzer.

Norwood found themselves up against a full court Westwood defense less than halfway through the third quarter which forced some bad Mustang passes, resulting in several baskets for the Wolverines, who put five points on the board in the first two minutes.

The Mustangs' low score was not for any lack of shooting opportunities, however.

Norwood had no trouble shooting, but was unable to either hit shots or rebound the misses, preventing them from racking up more points.

The fourth quarter opened with Norwood down 44-19 and they slowly closed that gap, with Ugochukwu sinking a shot at 7:21 and Perry hitting two key shots with five minutes left to play. At the four-minute mark, the Mustangs found themselves behind the Wolverines 48-28 and were only able to get four more points, allowing the Wolverines seven more points to close the game 55-32.

A tale of two games; girls lose to Westwood, 40-38

Gillian Smith
Staff Reporter

The girls basketball team lost a heartbreaking game to Westwood Monday night after a stellar first half.

The Mustangs played hot in the first half, with freshman Meghan Reen putting the Mustangs on the board first with a hard drive straight through Westwood defenders. Reen was on the ball, literally and figuratively, after that first basket, making smart passes and hitting freshman Ally Copponi with a solid pass. Copponi took advantage of open space under the net to hit an easy lay-up four minutes into the quarter.

With a Norwood lead of six with three minutes left to go, the Mustangs grabbed defensive rebound after rebound, denying the Wolverines any more scoring opportunities until the last minute of the quarter, when a Norwood foul and a successful Westwood free throw gave the Wolverines one more point. Reen hit a free throw with 10 seconds left in the game, ending the first quarter with 10 points to Westwood's three.

Reen then hit a three-pointer in the first minute of the second quarter and less than a minute later sophomore Maura O'Neill also hit a well-timed shot.

Westwood pushed a full court press at the end of the half, forcing Norwood to make more passes. With a few last-minute baskets for Westwood, the half ended with Norwood ahead 26-12.

"We defended really well in the first half," DaLuz said. "We pushed the ball and out ran Westwood."

It was in the second half that things began to turn sour for the Mustangs.

"We talked at half time about how there was no way Westwood would shoot as badly as they had in the first half," DaLuz said. "Westwood did a nice job of getting back and it transformed into basically the same game we had in the first for them in the second."

Within the next two minutes, Westwood hit several solid shots, tightening Norwood's lead to 26-20 and they kept feeding off their momentum to break Norwood's concentration. The Mustangs began to lose their fire in the last few minutes of the quarter, fouling Westwood and giving up six points near the end of the third.

Despite a 31-26 lead going into the fourth quarter, the Mustangs were unable to keep their feet underneath them, and Westwood sunk a shot at 7:49 to cut into Norwood's lead.

A Reen drive to the basket gave Norwood a four-point lead with 6:50 in the game and Westwood responded with another basket with six minutes to go. Reen responded with a three-pointer to give Norwood a five-point lead with 36-31, and it looked like Norwood would secure a win with a 38-33 lead after a Copponi basket with three minutes left in the game, but Westwood took advantage of several turnovers to hit several shots and win the game, 40-38.

"It felt pretty bad to lose like that," DaLuz said. "Westwood really came out in the second half and played with more urgency. We played a great defensive game in the first, but lost it in the second."

Buckley succeeds at MIAA tourney

Gillian Smith
Staff Reporter

The Norwood Mustangs boys track team performed well at the MIAA Division III meet on Saturday.

The Mustangs brought a relay team and two individual competitors to the Division III tournament. Junior Aaron Cockrane placed eighth in the 55-meter dash, but was unable to compete in the long jump and relay team events due to a pulled quad.

Junior Tim Buckley placed third in the mile, with a personal record of 4:31.

"Tim was very excited to have made that personal record," said coach Russ Booth. "You wouldn't know it by looking at him because he is so mild-mannered, but it was a very exciting day for him."

Booth said Buckley has worked hard all season and has continued to improve with each meet. Buckley was ranked fifth going into the meet, so the expectation and hope was that he would place fourth or fifth in the meet on Saturday. To place third was a welcome surprise, Booth said.

"Tim did a fantastic job," Booth said. "He competed the whole race; he pushed himself past the fourth and fifth place runners and kept up pace, and even pushed the first and second place runners."

Booth said the indoor track team was young this year, and he believes they have created a solid foundation to build upon for the outdoor season.

"It often takes athletes a couple years to take track seriously as a sport and in the spring we often see new athletes take up track," Booth said. "I'm looking forward to building upon the solid team we have now and improving even more."

Buckley will be competing at the All-State tournament on Saturday. He has an unbeaten season in the 1,000 meters and has had a successful season overall. Booth said his goal is not so much to place but to make another personal record.

"If he gets a time of even 4:29 he will be extremely excited and I will be very proud," Booth said.

of the property. I would ask [the owner] what would it cost if we bought the house and moved it to another location."

According to town records, the house was built some time prior to the Revolutionary War (1775-1783) possibly in 1775. The records further state "Architecturally this house is of major significance to the town of Norwood and county of Norfolk as a rare example of a [circa] mid-18th century farmstead."

According to Howard, the new owner of the 11,571 square foot property bought it for $245,000 and would ask for double if they were to sell it to the town.

"[The] Commission knows it's private property and [the owner] wants to tear it down, but hopes there is something that can be done" said Howard who is concerned about losing the house. "[It's] the oldest home in Norwood on its original foundation... these kinds of houses are rare."

The Dean house is the oldest house in Norwood, but President of the Historical Society Don Ackerman notes how special this house is.

"Norwood does not have many pre-Revolutionary War houses left," said Ackerman. "Besides the Dean house, there is one other on Dean Street that is most likely pre-Revolutionary War, but that's it ... Norwood was prosperous during the Victorian times so many of these houses were torn down."

Moving the house provides a set of obstacles. Carroll noted that it would be difficult to move the house to Morse Hill because there are two bridges to go under. BOS Chairman Bill Plasko suggested moving the house to the Prescott School, which might be more feasible. The new owner has given Carroll some time to examine the issue.

"Moving it in one piece can be done, but it's expensive. You have to move the electrical wires ... and you have to have a place to move it to. Disassembling it is also a lot of labor and expensive," said Ackerman. "But it can be done."

The property is on the Norwood Historical Commission's list of the top 100 most important historic sites in the community and they say the house is mentioned in court deeds that go back to the 1790's.

The Norwood Police Department has been using the house for training exercises according to Police Chief William Brooks. The new owner gave permission to the Department stating he planned to tear the house down. Police spokesperson Officer Kevin Grasso said it appeared that no one had lived in the house for some time. Police use the property to simulate real-life dangerous situations with hostile criminals. The Police use paintball-esque guns that mimic their service weapons.

The house predates the founding of Norwood, which didn't occur until 1872. Much of New England was made up of smaller farms tilled by independent yeoman farmers at the time the house was built.

"[It's] so important to preserve Norwood's history ... we should've been proactive about this," said Howard.

down to the mid-20s. When the temperature gets into the teens, the DPW uses a liquid agent.

"We've been very successful [with salt operations]. First we pre-treat roads ... before the snow comes. [That] does a couple of things, it melts [snow and ice] right away and also it puts a little layer, like a Teflon layer, on the road so it helps prevent against the snow packing and sticking for a long time," said Ryan.

Ryan says pre-treating the roads helps the DPW crews after the plowing is done as well. Once the roads are plowed, salting again clears away any packed snow and ice that may form. However, with the whole region facing frequent snow and usually warmer regions further down the east coast getting hit with snow and low temperatures, salting materials are scarcer than they have been in the past.

"There are shortages. We're right on the borderline, [Tuesday], of what we need. Fortunately it's going to warm up. Supplies were delayed a little bit with shipment not coming in, but now they're coming in. Our supplier is doing a great job of getting us what we need as well as all the other communities they serve," said Ryan.

The DPW snow and ice budget increase will have to be approved at the second night of Special Town Meeting on February 27. Last winter, the budget totaled $870,400 and the winter prior to that was $867,500.
