

Wine Press decision to wait

Brad Cole
Staff Reporter

Attorney David Hern and Peter Kessel, principal of GWRP Enterprises, appeared before the Board of Selectmen regarding the Wine Press' proposed move from 145 Boston-Providence Turnpike to 151 Boston Providence Turnpike. Due to a lack of approval from the Zoning Board of Appeals, Hern requested the public hearing be continued on Aug. 24.

Hern and Kessel will appear before the ZBA on Aug. 10 to discuss the move further. They are only moving a few hundred feet from their previous location, but because it is in a manufacturing zone, they require ZBA approval.

"Most people would be surprised a retail store on Route 1 has to go before the Zoning Board," Hern said, adding he expects they will be able to make a decision at their Aug. 10 meeting. Assuming ZBA approval, they would then require approve from the Board of Selectmen.

"We're hoping to get the necessary approval as quickly as possible without any unneces-

SPED transportation costs outlined

Brad Cole
Staff Reporter

The Norwood public school system's in-house SPED Transportation system is budgeted to cost $996,665 during Fiscal Year 2011. Of this, $519,587 is covered by federal stimulus money, while the remaining $477,078 is covered by the school department's operational budget.

"The federal stimulus money pays for a bit more than half of the costs of the program," said Ralph Dumas, Director of Finance and Operations for Norwood Public Schools.

This budget represents a $75,000 increase from Fiscal Year 2010's budget, when $921,665 was allotted for the program. The federal grant remained the same, and the school department budgeted $402,078. These numbers represent the budgeted amount for FY 2010, not the actual amount spent. Dumas said he was not in a position to release the FY 2010 actual expenditures at this time, though those numbers will be presented to the School Committee at their Aug. 11 meeting, and will be released to the press then.

The federal grant comes in the form of an Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (IDEA) Grant. IDEA grants are given to states and public agencies that provide early intervention, special education and related services to children with disabilities.

This is the second year of the Town's two-year grant, which is being used to help fund various costs associated with the in-house transportation program.

"At this point, nobody knows if there will be stimulus money beyond Fiscal Year 2011, so I'm not planning on it," Dumas said, meaning the school department will have to find a way to make up the $519,587 allotted by the IDEA grant.

There are numerous costs associated with the program that the grant covers, including payroll, vehicle maintenance and inspection, benefits and insurance costs. However, not all program costs are covered by this grant. For example, the School Department operational budget has covered the costs associated with leasing vehicles. Five mini-buses and 17 vans are currently in the second year of a three-year lease. It costs $90,236 to lease the buses and $146,839 to lease the vans per year. Other costs associated with the program include gasoline and contingency funding.

Contingency funding is a big reason for the $75,000 increase in the program's cost. Last year, $70,003 was set aside as contingency funding. For FY 2011, this number increased to $138,860: $72,055 in contingency funding for summer transportation and $66,805 in contingency funding for regular year transportation.

This is the second year of the in-house transportation program. Prior to that, YCN Transportation had serviced the Town for the previous 38 years. The switch to an in-house program was used to help cut costs during the FY 2010 budget balancing process. The School Committee needed to trim $1.8 million from their initial FY 2010 budget, and the change to an in-house system cut $587,000 from the budget. The savings came mostly in the form of the IDEA grant, not reduced operating costs.

One hope was that going from an outside vendor to an in-house system would help save the department money.

However, the program got off to a rough start, as the mini-buses and vans were not ready to be used on July 1, 2009. As a result, the School Committee entered into an agreement with the Canton-based TLC Transportation, who administered the program until July 14 and was used on a day-to-day basis after that date. TLC was paid $36,000 to administer the program for an eight-day period last July. Their service, which included a $1,600 startup fee, cost approximately $4,300 per day. This added cost did not change the school department's bottom line budget of $402,078.

Now, the entire SPED transportation service is done in house, Dumas said.

"The SPED transportation program is not using an outside vendor at this time, and we don't have any plans to," Dumas said.

The last year YCN Transportation was used by the Town was FY 2009, or the 2008-2009 school year. A total of $989,000 was budgeted for their SPED transportation service, which ended up costing $830,000. Richard Armour of YCN Transportation projected that SPED transportation costs in FY 2010 would be $792,000, due to a decline in enrollments.

At a budgeted amount of $921,665, the in-house program cost $129,665 more than using YCN Transportation would have during FY 2010.

Pops Night a blast

Brad Cole
Staff Reporter

Ron Stone and The Milestones Big Band returned for the annual Pops Night Concert, the centerpiece of the Concerts on the Common season. Hundreds of people came to the town common on July 25 for the event, which featured premium bistro seating, light refreshments and beverages.

Pops Night was coordinated by Concerts on the Common Committee members Olga Abdallah and Dolores Elias. They have served as the Pops Night co-coordinators since the event's inception eight years ago. The event was the brainchild of General Manager John Carroll.

"Eight years ago, it was Town Manager John Carroll who brought the idea forward at a concert meeting," Abdallah said. "We decided to try it one time, and it was such a huge success, we decided to keep doing it."

Three hundred tickets for Pops Night are distributed at earlier concerts in the Concerts on the Common season. Those with tickets were given access to a bistro table and chair at the event. Those who didn't receive a ticket were still welcome to attend, they just had to bring their own lawn chair or blanket to sit on. Those without tickets nearly double the number of people, meaning between 500 and 600 people attend Pops Night each year, and this year was no exception.

In the eight-year history of Pops Night, only once has the event been rained out. While there was some rain on Sunday afternoon, it wasn't enough to dampen the evening's festivities. The weather cleared up before the show began, allowing Ron Stone and The Milestones Big Band to take to the stage, where they performed numerous hits into the evening, including songs by Frank Sinatra, Duke Ellington and Glenn Miller.

The evening, and program as a whole, would not be possible without charitable support, Concerts on the Common Committee Chairman Paul Eysie said, and he thanked all donors prior to Sunday night's concert.

"This program would not be possible without the contributions of businesses, groups and individuals throughout this community," Eysie said.

He named all who donated to the Concerts on the Common Committee, and extended a special thanks to Chestnut Hill Realty and David Spiegel and the BMW Gallery, the sponsors for Sunday's event.

"They made tonight's event possible," Eysie said.

In addition to monetary donations, many people volunteer their time to help make the event a success. Abdallah estimated that 50 people stepped forward to help make Pops Night a possibility, doing everything from setting up the bistro tables to helping seat people to serving (non-alcoholic) champagne and bottled water to the guests on the common.

"We really appreciate their help," Abdallah said. "Anything that needs to be done, we all do it together," and their efforts help Pops Night thrive.

Volunteer waiters, which included Selectmen Jerry Kelleher and Bill Plasko, served the people around the common, bringing them drinks, fruit cups and pastries throughout the evening.

"We get enough food for 600 people, and we often don't have any left," Elias said, as they serve food to everyone present, not just the 300 guests with tickets.

In the end, it proved to be another successful Pops Night, one all present could enjoy.

"We had a lot of fun," Abdallah said. "It's just a very pleasant evening."

Pops Night is the biggest night of the Concerts on the Common season, which runs from 7 to 9 p.m. each Sunday. In August, guests can enjoy the sounds of The Roy Scott Big Band, The Tom Nutile Big Band, The Oberlaender Hofbrau Band, The Compaq Big Band and The Olde Kids on the Block. The season concludes on Sept. 5, with a performance by The Jazzabelles, a group making their Concerts on the Common debut.

Angelo named honorary Rotary Club member

Brad Cole
Staff Reporter

The Norwood Rotary Club named Paul Angelo, proprietor of the Olde Colonial Cafe (OCC), an honorary member of the club at their annual banquet held earlier this month. Angelo was recognized for his contributions to the club.

He was announced as an honorary member by out-going Norwood Rotary Club President Matt Leonard.

"We meet at the Olde Colonial once a week, and he always goes above and beyond for us," newly appointed Norwood Rotary Club President Peter Strano said, and because of this, the club felt it was appropriate to recognize Angelo in some fashion.

Angelo is just the second person to be named an honorary member of the Norwood Rotary Club, Strano said. The other honorary member is town photographer Donald McLean. Honorary members are recognized for going out of their way to support the Norwood Rotary Club in some fashion, and Angelo has done just that.

"He just does so much for us," Strano said. "And it's not just us. He goes way above and beyond for everyone."

Angelo's numerous charitable contributions were recognized.

"Paul's contributions to the community knows no bounds," his wife and co-proprietor of the OCC Martha Angelo said. "He has tirelessly donated his time, resources, experience, and expertise to help friend and stranger alike. He has been a generous benefactor to the Abundant Table, the Circle of Hope Foundation, the After Prom Committee, numerous fundraisers and many sports programs."

The charitable work doesn't end there, she said.

"On any given Thanksgiving, Christmas, or Easter, the OCC's kitchens are filled with turkey or ham dinners to be delivered to needy families," Martha added.

Strano said Angelo shuns the limelight, and while he does so much for the community, he doesn't want to be recognized or have the spotlight placed upon him. Because of his efforts, the Norwood Rotary Club is honored to have him as their newest honorary member, and look forward to his continued stewardship at the OCC.

The OCC was established in 1969, giving it a 41-year history in town. In 2000, Paul and Martha Angelo brought the restaurant to 171 Nahatan Street, the town's historic firehouse building, and it has remained there ever since.

Tons pulled from Ellis

Invasive water chestnut hauled by DPW

Brad Cole
Staff Reporter

Thirty-six people, including members of the Conservation Commission and Conservation Agent Al Goetz made their way to Ellis Pond on July 24 to help remove the Asian water chestnut from the pond. The Asian water chestnut, an invasive species, has taken up residence there, threatening the vegetation and wildlife that lives in the pond.

"We know there was more than four tons pulled out," Conservation Commission Chairman Peter Bamber said, adding two truckloads of Asian water chestnuts were removed from the site.

Because the Asian water chestnut has no natural predators here, it is up to humans to step in and remove it from the pond, before it takes over the area. Ducks and geese don't eat the Asian water chestnut, and squirrels haven't shown an interest in it. Without human intervention, the chestnut would run unchecked, allowing it to choke the pond and kill the fish living there.

"We have to get them out before the nuts mature and fall to the bottom," Goetz said, as once they plant themselves in the mud at the bottom of the lake, they remain viable for eight to 10 years.

Because of this, the Ellis Pond cleanup will become an annual tradition. Saturday's event was the second annual cleanup, and Bamber and Goetz expect it will continue for several years, as the Asian water chestnut will remain a problem.

"While we got so much out, it was obvious there was a lot still there," Bamber said. "This is an ongoing battle."

He added they have learned from their efforts this year, and expect to exceed that four-ton total next year.

It is not known how the Asian water chestnut made its way to Ellis Pond, though there are several possibilities. Goetz suggested either humans or birds brought the chestnut there. The Asian water chestnut used to be sold in pet stores as a decoration for fish tanks, meaning it is possible a former fish owner dumped a tank-complete with an Asian water chestnut- into the pond. It's also possible that an unsuspecting duck or goose brought the vegetable to Ellis Pond. As the Asian water chestnut grows, thorns form on it, and these thorns can get caught in the feathers of ducks and geese.

The Asian water chestnut is not actually a nut, but an aquatic vegetable, similar to the one featured in Chinese food dishes like Moo Goo Gai Pan, chicken stir-

Moretti's Folly

The superintendent tenancy of John Moretti here in Norwood was short but eventful. Unfortunately, the good Mr. Moretti provided to his position will always be just a footnote, recognized by only a few in the school system versed in the details and nuances of running a school system. For the rest of us, Mr. Moretti will always be remembered as the guy who lost his cool during a school committee meeting and stormed out of Norwood's education system in a huff.

His most enduring legacy in Norwood will no doubt be his vision of bringing special education transportation in-house. When first introduced, many thought it made a lot of sense. Heck, any plan that could save the schools over a half a million dollars a year had to be a good one, right? Not so fast. The devil was in the details.

What Mr. Moretti and the school committee failed to make clear from the start was that every penny of the proposed savings was, in fact, in the form of a federal stimulus grant earmarked for special education. This same federal grant could have been used for many different special education purposes, including using it toward SPED spending with YCN Transportation, the vendor Norwood had contracted with for the previous 38 years, owned by a Norwood family who had spent their lives here and invested heavily in the community.

Norwood schools went ahead and implemented Mr. Moretti's plan and hired their own supervisors and drivers and leased vans and buses, etc. They now have ownership of an elaborate transportation system with all of the administrative and liability headaches associated with running any such sophisticated program. Also, beyond school year 2010, there is no more stimulus money, so Norwood taxpayers should start planning now on how to come up with another half a mil in school funds.

However, it wouldn't be fair to call the Moretti plan a failure without first looking at budgeted versus actual spending for the first year of the program (Fiscal Year 2010), which this newspaper attempted to do. Unfortunately, the school department is not yet ready to share their actual spending with us, insisting they want to present the numbers to the school committee first.

However, we do have their budgeted figures for both Fiscal Years 2010 and 2011. The bottom line is that the schools are forecasting increased spending of $75k this year from last, totaling $996,665. It is a good guess that when the actual spending for last year is made public, the program will have exceeded its forecasted budget.

The relevant actual spending number we do have is for Fiscal Year 2009, the final year of YCN's contract with the schools. In that year, YCN projected total transportation costs to be $852,000 and actually came in under that number by $20k.

Prior to YCN being ousted, they had submitted a budgeted number to the schools for Fiscal Year 2010 of $792k. Compared with Moretti's budgeted number with his new program of $921,665, simply staying with YCN would have been a savings of around $130k or more with none of the hassles of running the program. Add at least that amount for this year and taxpayers are on the hook for over a quarter mil in costs for this program, and every year it will keep increasing.

Admitting a mistake is the first step to recovery, and it is not too soon to start considering pulling the plug on the in-house SPED transportation program. Norwood schools need to be myopically focused on education, and ending this program is a solid move in that direction.

CAN NEVER PLEASE EVERYONE

To the Editor:
Hi Jackie:

This is from one of the "guys" who agrees with most of your opinions. That's a compliment from an original 'MALE CHAUVINSIST, OINK.' Even my wife takes your opening as a friendly generalism, but for those who don't, even if you opened with Hi, "Ladies & Gentlemen," it still would not include everyone.

You can resolve this "MAJOR ISSUE" by using the current euphemism, Hi, all you "Significant Others." Just kidding. Please keep giving us your independent thoughts.

fry and egg rolls. Regardless of how it got there, the vegetable is now in Ellis Pond and other neighboring watersheds, including Clark's Pond on Stone Street in Walpole. A similar cleanup was held there last Saturday.

"It's not just a Norwood problem," Goetz said. "It's all over the region."

While some volunteers stayed on the shoreline and pulled Asian water chestnut out from around the edge of the pond, several went out on boats and pulled the chestnuts located in various spots all around Ellis Pond. At one point, seven boats, each with two or three volunteers pulling out Asian water chestnut, were out on the pond.

"They really did a super job," Bamber said, adding that some nearby residents have said they would continue the work in Ellis Pond in the coming weeks.

The collected Asian water chestnuts were placed in large garbage bags and left at the entrance to Ellis Pond. Department of Public Works (DPW) employees visited the site on Monday to remove these bags, which contained over 8,000 pounds of Asian water chestnuts.

"They're very good about helping us with them," Bamber said of the DPW. "Without them, we can't get anything like this done."

Norwood's new Bike Club

Brad Cole
Staff Reporter

The newly formed Norwood Bike Club held their first meeting on Monday night at the Simoni Room in the Morrill Memorial Library. The club, founded by Daniel Smith, aims to increase awareness of and improve conditions for bikers in the town. In total, eight people showed up at the July 26 meeting.

"The club came about because I wanted the town to improve the situation for bicycle parking for adults biking in downtown Norwood," Smith said, and in his efforts was told to consult the local bicycling club for support. When he discovered no such club existed, he decided to step forward and create one.

Ultimately, the club's goals will be based on member input, though Smith had some ideas going in.

"Personally, I would like the club to advocate, in a modest way, a way to improve the town for bicycle riders," Smith said.

This could range from helping people find others to bike with to teaching people fundamental repair skills, such as changing a flat bike tire or fixing a broken chain. The idea of a seminar to teach these skills went over quite well. Guests at the meeting also expressed interest in group rides.

"[Almost] everybody who came to the club is someone who used to ride a lot and wants to get back into it," Smith said, adding that they would look into organizing group bike rides in and around Norwood.

Smith also wants to recognize businesses and organizations that have helped make the town more biker friendly.

"My theory is we should recognize anyone that helps bicycle riders in Norwood," he said, adding that the goal of the applause section of the BikeNorwood.com website is to let businesses know their efforts are appreciated.

So far, the Bike Club has recognized Shaw's, McDonald's, the Norwood Recreation Department and Kohl's in the Walpole Mall. All of these locations have a place for bikers to park, be it at a bike rack or in a vestibule at the front of the store.

The website also links to resources for bikers, including commuting websites, national bike organizations, local bike shops and lists the 40-plus books on biking available at the Morrill Memorial Library.

There are a few action items the Bike Club will examine. Smith heads the "Bicycle Parking Committee," a group looking to get additional bike racks placed in several locations around town.

"We haven't actually gotten anything done so far, but we're very optimistic," he said.

The group is also looking to raise the visibility of bikers in Norwood. They are looking into the possibility of getting a booth for Norwood Day, which takes place on Sept. 19. Doing so would require preparing literature on the Bike Club and getting members set to man the booth that Sunday.

The organizational meeting was highlighted by a presentation from Smith's wife, Jean, regarding bicycle commuting. Jean has commuted to her work in Sharon from Norwood via bike over the last 10 years. In addition, she has participated in the Pan Mass Challenge (PMC) six times, including riding the full 190-mile course twice. Five of her rides in the PMC were solo and one time she was part of a team.

Her decision to commute to work stems from a 1999 trip to Europe, when the Smiths were visiting their daughter in the Netherlands. During their two week vacation, they avoided renting a car, instead opting to rent bikes and use public transportation. She described the experience as "eye-opening."

"When I came back, I really decided I wanted to be a bike commuter," she said.

Jean also has high hopes for the Bike Club.

"I think what I'm looking for is it to get more people on bikes in Norwood and just make bikes more common," she said.

PBCC considers furniture and fixtures for high school

Brad Cole
Staff Reporter

The Permanent Building Construction Committee (PBCC) heard from Nancy Lohr of Ai3 regarding the status of furniture, fixtures and equipment (FFE) planning for the new Norwood High School. Lohr has met with several members of the school department, including Norwood High School Principal George Usevich, and is in charge of getting the furniture and other items into the new building.

She outlined some of the plans for the furniture in the new building, including what will be present in classrooms, the cafeteria and offices. Most of the offices will feature steel furniture, similar to what is in the Whitman-Hanson Regional High School. The principal's office will feature a cherry wood desk, which is also a carry-over from the Whitman-Hanson Regional High School.

"This is only in the principal's office," Lohr said.

In the cafeteria, Lohr recommends using a BioFit table, an oval-shaped foldable table featuring a high-pressure laminate surface and dark stools.

"These tables fold up," Lohr said. "They collapse and can be rolled away... custodians have no problem folding them up."

Lohr estimates that the tables weigh between 50 and 80 pounds, and they can be moved by one person.

In the classroom, there will be an independent desk and chair system. The chairs, made of a hard plastic, will be in the school's color: blue. This blue color will also be used for the teacher's chair. The blue color

Approved changes don't hurt HS contingency funds still strong

Brad Cole
Staff Reporter

The Permanent Building Construction Committee approved a trio of pending change orders (PCOs) at their July 22 meeting. Most of the time, these PCOs reflect an added cost to the project, though these three netted a $539 credit for the contingency fund.

This is due to an $18,912 credit that came from eliminating the sealant at the top of non-rated walls. This sealant was going to go on non-rated dry-wall partitions, but it was deemed unnecessary, and the cost associated with this returns in the form of a credit.

However, this credit was almost entirely offset by the other two PCOs, which include $5,587 for ductwork modifications in the mechanical room and $12,786 for a filter fabric for the turf field.

When the school and football field was designed, this filter fabric was not included in the spec. However, in the years since, this fabric has become a standard part of these installations, as it helps protect the field and extends the lifespan of the system, if cared for properly, as it keeps the two distinct layers of soil from running together, which could happen in the case of a severe rainstorm. The filter fabric is recommended for this installation, and Ai3, the architecture firm involved in the project, is requiring it for all future projects.

While these three PCOs are a net credit, more expenses are expected down the line. As of July 22, $2,123,488 remains in the project's contingency budget, which started at $2.3 million. Approximately 7.67 percent of the contingency budget has been used thus far, a small burn rate compared to the status of the project. However, there are $435,371 in estimated and pending expenses, reducing the balance in the contingency budget to $1,686,023.

This $435,371 amount is made up of several big ticket items, including the cost to remove unsuitable materials at the track. This carries an estimated cost of $100,000. Numerous unsuitable materials, including an old baseball scoreboard, leaves and utility poles found near the track were removed, leaving a large hole on the site. The hole has since been filled, and it required approximately 1,000 yards of fill to do so.

Of the approximately 1,000 cubic yards of unsuitable materials buried at the site, half was found to contain more than the allowed reportable levels for lead set by the Department of Environmental Protection. It will cost $35/ton to remove this material from the site. The removal of the material that falls within the reportable limits will cost $25.30/ton.

Another expensive item is the proposed shielding on the roof. Four large vents, between eight and ten feet tall, stand

Forrest goes to Dedham

Brad Cole
Staff Reporter

After 20 years in the Norwood public school system, Jim Forrest is going to the Dedham public school system, where he will serve as the Assistant Principal at Dedham High School. He accepted this position on July 14, and officially begins work there on Sept. 1.

Forrest, 42, has experience at all levels of education. During his tenure in the Norwood public school system, he taught physical education and health classes at the elementary, middle school and high school level. In 2004, he became a dean at Norwood High School. He also serves as the director of Norwood's special needs summer program at the Coakley Middle School, a position he has held for the past seven years. In addition, Forrest has years of coaching experience, having coached the indoor and outdoor track teams for 20 seasons and the cross-country team for the last seven years.

He feels this wide variety of experience will help prepare him for his new role in Dedham.

"The role of the dean is student management, which is definitely one of the significant parts of the Assistant Principal's role in Dedham," Forrest said, adding he has dealt with all sorts of issues at the Norwood High School, ranging from bomb threats to students using drugs to the building of a new school. He is ready for whatever comes his way in Dedham.

While he has experience with various facets of education, Forrest acknowledges there will be a learning curve in his new role, specifically in regards to teacher evaluation. He has no formal experience evaluating other teachers, though he has observed them in the classroom. Even with the lack of direct experience, he feels he will be able to adapt to his new role and the added tasks that come with.

"I think I'm ready to take this head on," Forrest said.

The change is a big one, Forrest said, as he is leaving a school system he has been with for 20 years and is comfortable with for a setting, teachers and students that will all be new and different to him.

"It's a little scary, to be honest," Forrest said. "It's exciting, atop the science lab, and can be easily seen from the Peabody Road side of the school. Because of their ugly appearance, General Manager John Carroll has requested shielding of some sort at the site.

Currently, the cost for this shielding is listed at $18,000, though Owner's Project Manager Tim Bonfatti acknowledged that this is just a placeholder figure, and the actual cost of shielding could be more expensive than that.

"It's probably a lot more than $18,000," Bonfatti said, though there is a cheaper alternative.

"A number of people have said, why don't you paint them," Bonfatti said, noting that it would be considerably cheaper than building a shielding system on the roof of the new Norwood High School.

Peabody Road itself has a large price tag attached to it, as work could be done at the Peabody Road/Nichols Street intersection.

"It's a very confusing traffic problem," Bonfatti said, as there is two-way traffic on both sides of the traffic island there. "There was a commitment to do something about it."

This will include reconfiguring the roadway and repaving the sidewalks. The work has an estimated cost of $50,000, but much like the shielding, this is just a placeholder number, and the actual cost of improving the intersection could be more expensive.

The work would involve both those at the new Norwood High School construction site and the town. While the intersection itself isn't part of the site, it is acknowledged as part of the project, as the area serves as a primary entrance to the site.

PBCC member Dick Kief said he was in favor of the work at the intersection, as it is a safety issue that directly involves the school.

was approved by Usevich and other members of the school department.

The student chairs will need a weight rating.

"They test them to 250 pounds," Lohr said. "They don't test over that."

The metal furniture will feature a nickel finish. It will not be painted, Lohr said.

"I purposely do that," Lohr said. "I don't do paint, because paint can be scratched off with keys."

Lohr is hoping to get a sign off on the entire FFE program from Usevich by Sept. 1, and so far, Usevich has been helpful during the process.

"George has been extremely thorough with this," Steve Theran of Compass said, adding that the department heads have also been very active and helpful in this process.

"They're right on top of this," he said.

Not all the furniture at the new Norwood High School will be new. While there will be plenty of new tables, desks and the like, Lohr estimates that they will be reusing about $80,000 worth of chairs and desks they already own.

There is still some time before the FFE needs to be installed in the new Norwood High School. Once the spec is out and vendors finish manufacturing the furniture, there will be a six week installation period. This installation period will be organized in such a fashion that the larger items get delivered and installed first.

Vendors will be responsible for the full installation of a product- they cannot simply offload the product at the site, Lohr said. A complete installation includes bringing the product to the site, assembling it and installing it in its proper room. "Most of the stuff will go off the truck, into the building and into the room it belongs," Lohr said.

Rooms will be tagged with a sign describing what items are needed in the room, what vendor manufactured them and how many of each item they need.

Lohr estimates that 15 to 20 FFE vendors will be involved in this process.

Volunteers preparing for a successful Day of Hope

Brad Cole
Staff Reporter

The fourth annual Day of Hope carnival takes place this Friday, July 30, at Hawes Pool. All proceeds from the event, which is sponsored by the Norwood Recreation Department, will go to the Circle of Hope Foundation.

Activities at this year's Day of Hope Carnival include face painting, a moonwalk, pony rides, a dunk tank and music by a local DJ. Serving as the DJ for this year's carnival is Nico Rodriguez, a counselor at the South Camp.

The popular Big Daddy's Racing mini-motorized race-track is returning. Big Daddy's Racing first appeared in Norwood at the Friday Fun Day in 2004, and has been a staple of the Day of Hope Carnival since. Due to its immense popularity, the racetrack is also featured at the annual Norwood Day event. Those racing grab a remote and take control of one of six replica NASCAR vehicles as they drive around the track, each vying for a first place finish.

Also returning is the ice cream eating contest. The ice cream eating contest was introduced at last year's Day of Hope Carnival, and it appears to be the event's newest tradition. The Sugar Cone donated several tubs of ice cream for the event, and children will race to see who can gobble up their bowl of ice cream the quickest.

The Sugar Cone is not the only company to donate to the Day of Hope Carnival, organizer Sara Ryan said. Mortgage Master, Murph's Place and Medical Billing Specialists have all donated to the cause.

The carnival runs from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m., and costs $5 to attend. The four summer camps— South Camp, Father Mac's Play Camp, Junior Camp and Camp Challenge— will all be attending, and the event is open to the public.

The Day of Hope Carnival is spun-out of the annual Norwood Friday Fun Day, an annual tradition from 1998 to 2006. Money raised at that event was donated to The Jimmy Fund. After the 2006 event, it was decided that the money should go to a local organization, and the Circle of Hope Foundation was chosen.

"We just thought giving the money to a local charity might be a good way to go," Ryan said.

The Circle of Hope Foundation was founded in 1998 in honor of Michelle Kennedy, who died of leukemia. Since then, the organization provides assistance to Norwood residents who are in need, due to a catastrophic illness. They hold several fundraisers each year, including the annual Luminary Night and Dancing with the Norwood Stars.

Ryan said the money goes to a great cause, and welcomes guests of all ages to this year's Day of Hope Carnival. It's a great way to spend the Friday, as it always proves to be a fun day for the campers and the other children who attend.

Anyone who wishes to donate to the event or Circle of Hope Foundation can stop by the carnival on Friday or call the Civic Center at 781-762-0466.

but scary."

He hopes to have continued success at Dedham with a style that has made him so well liked in Norwood: being open and honest with students and teachers.

While he will only be five miles away, the change puts Forrest on the other side of the legendary Norwood-Dedham rivalry, and will add an additional layer of intrigue to the annual Mustangs-Marauders Thanksgiving football game. He will have to straddle the line between the longtime rivals.

"That one's a tough call," Forrest said. "I've lived my whole life in Norwood, and it's tough. You can never really forget where you come from."

The Dedham High School

Assistant Principal position initially went to William Burkhead. However, after being named to the position, Burkhead opted to stay in the Plymouth public school system, where he now serves as the Assistant Principal at Plymouth North High School. After Burkhead's change of plans, Forrest was offered the position, which he readily accepted.

sary delay," he said.

However, the Board of Selectmen questioned the Aug. 24 date.

"I don't believe it's practical to do it any sooner than Sept. 7," Selectman Bill Plasko said, noting that in most cases, the ZBA takes a matter under advisement and makes a decision at their next meeting.

Hern does not believe this will happen. He expects the ZBA will have a decision at their Aug. 10 meeting, meaning they would be ready to appear before the Board of Selectmen on Aug. 24. He added that delaying this further— even by two weeks— could have negative ramifications on Kessel's business.

"Every bit makes a difference," Hern said. "Every week makes a difference," as they cannot begin construction on the site without the necessary approvals.

Selectman Tom McQuaid initially moved to continue the public hearing on Aug. 24, but his motion failed to receive a second. The public hearing was instead scheduled for the Sept. 7 meeting at 7:30 p.m.

The other public hearing involved the placement of a new telephone pole on Wilson Street, on a grass area between 144 and 150 Wilson St. Dan Morrissey, Electric Engineer for the Norwood Light Department, argued the pole was needed because of existing conditions there.

The two existing poles in the area are 192 feet apart, and this distance far exceeds the standard distance of 140 feet between poles.

"We try not to exceed 140 feet, the reason being it puts a lot of strain on the pole," Morrissey said.

This is the case on Wilson Street.

"It's causing a big sag in the wires," Morrissey said. "It's causing them to be very low. The telephone wire is as low as 10 feet in some areas," and this has prompted a concerned neighbor to call them multiple times regarding the situation there.

One abutter, Alex Dileo of 150 Wilson St., was concerned about the pole's placement, as markings on the field indicate it will be placed right on top of his sprinkler head.

Plasko noted that the pole was being installed on public property.

"If your sprinkler head is out on public property, that should be moved," he said, but added they could try to accommodate him out in the field.

Morrissey confirmed there is some leeway regarding the pole's placement, meaning it might be possible for them to place the pole in a position without having to move the sprinkler head. The Board of Selectmen approved the pole, and its exact location will be determined out in the field.

The board also received an update regarding the Morse Street Bridge and Pleasant Street and Morse Street intersection projects from General Manager John Carroll.

The bridge project continues along on schedule.

"The bridge is fine," Carroll said. "It'll be done in October."

July 29, 2010

This is not the case with the intersection project, which continues along slowly.

"It's moving very, very slowly," Carroll said, estimating that project was three percent done. "We're not happy with it."

Board of Selectmen Chairman Jerry Kelleher had his own update regarding the project. He had contacted the MBTA to see if the 34E Bus route could be temporarily changed during construction, allowing for residents who live in the area easier access along Washington and Morse Street. A message from Greg Strangeways from the Massachusetts Department of Transportation indicated that such a change would not be possible.

"They're not going to change the bus route," Kelleher said.
