Airport Technical Master Plan Update presented to public

Focuses on increased safety and revenue generation

Matthew MacDonald
Staff Reporter

On Tuesday evening, April 30, the Norwood Airport Commission (NAC) held a public meeting in the community room of the police and fire station (137 Nahatan St.).

Hosted by NAC Chair Mark Ryan and Airport Manager Russ Maguire, it was attended by about half a dozen members of the public, as well as by two Federal Aviation Administration (FAA) officials and NAC member John Corcoran.

The purpose of the meeting was to brief Airport users – as well as other members of the public – on the technical master plan update (TMPU) being prepared for it.

As explained by Ryan at the start of the nearly hour and half session, the purpose of the TMPU is to tenderly the Airport’s current conditions while also presenting capital improvement needs – and potential projects – consistent with its operating goals.

The majority of the meeting was given over to a slide show presented by Guy Rouelle, aviation planner for DuBois & King, the engineering firm preparing the TMPU, during which he spoke of his firm’s work on the project over the past year.

Before going into that, however, Rouelle prefaced the main portion of his presentation with a quick review of the prior master plan, which had been completed in 2007.

Acknowledging that projections from that plan had fallen considerably short – most notably regarding aircraft based at the Airport (down 32.4 percent), aircraft flight operations (down 25 percent), and fuel sales (down 14.1 percent) – Rouelle put forward that the financial crash of 2008 had played a significant part in those negative numbers.

Rouelle also cited changes in the FAA’s method of documenting based aircraft as well as an increase in fuel prices as having an influence on the 2007 plan’s unmet expectations.

Once having addressed this, he spent the rest of his presentation on the current TMPU.

Major areas of focus in the plan include improvements to the Airport Technical Master Plan Meeting.

The Norwood Zoning Board of Appeals (ZBA) met on Tuesday, May 7, and discussed several proposed projects for the Town.

The big ticket item was another visit from Crossfit trainer Dan Jones and his plan to put in a new facility at Building 34, at 61 Endicott St. The ZBA accepted a 40-day extension for Jones, who has been to the ZBA for his facility at least three times so far. Newly-elected ZBA Chair Thomas Brady said after the proceedings that the 40-day extension was Jones’ best bet, as ZBA member Patrick Mulvehill said because of deadlines they would have had to vote yes or no on the proposal that night without an extension.

ZBA members Philip Riley and Mary Anderson both expressed safety concerns for the entirety of the 61 Endicott facilities, owned by the Norwood Commerce Center (NCC). Riley said his main concern is safety, which he said went hand in hand with the proposed retail use.

The area itself was built for manufacturing, Riley pointed out, and he said safety concerns for both drivers and pedestrians top his list of issues with the project. NCC attorney Diane Geraghty Hall said the facility now has more than 90 business tenants. However, most of those are not front-facing retail.

Downtown zoning should be enacted in a few months

While the Mixed-Use Overlay District (MUOD) passed 100-1 at Town Meeting last week, Town Planner Paul Halkiotis says there are still a few hurdles the measure has to complete before it becomes official.

“So the effective date of any zoning amendment is pretty muddy,” he said. “Under state law, all of the zoning amendments have to go through the Attorney General’s Office for review and approval.”

Halkiotis said Norwood’s zoning amendment will have three months of review from the AG’s office, after which the Town has to post the amendment for final review from any interested parties.

“We typically hear back from the AG at the very end of

Selectmen try to allay override concerns

Matthew MacDonald
Staff Reporter

The Board of Selectmen met on Tuesday, May 7 for a session that ran nearly an hour and three quarters and featured four governmental appointments.

The main appointment of the meeting brought Board of Assessors Chair Tim McDonough and Director of Finance & Accounting Tom McQuaid before the Selectmen to discuss residential tax implications should the June 3 vote go in favor of an override.

“The reason we asked you to come in this evening,” Chair Paul Bishop explained, “is because there have been a lot of rumors out there about what exactly is this tax levy increase going to look like if the June 3 election passes.”

More specifically, McQuaid referred to a letter to the editor that was printed in the May 2 edition of this newspaper, and referenced its stated 52 percent tax increase over the first five years of an approved override, and 100 percent tax increase over its first 10 years.

Responding briefly with his own figures, McQuaid said that, with an override, an increase of $389 would go into effect for the average taxpayer during its first year, and an increase of 2.5 percent – about $9 – would go into effect beginning in its second year.

“Year one of the override: that’s the big bump,” McQuaid said of the impact effect.

McDonough – while agreeing with McQuaid’s conclusion – went into much more detail in ing with McQuaid’s conclusion.

He further explained that – because commercial tax rates are roughly twice that of residential rates – the actual average residential increase has been 3.8 percent per year.

Projecting the impact of the potential $5.95 million override on the average residential taxpayer, McDonough first concentrated on Fiscal Year 2020, which begins on July 1.

His projection showed a 2.5 percent increase (added on to actual FY2019 figures) plus a 2 percent increase based on estimated tax base growth, bringing the total to 3.8 percent.

The override would account for an 8 percent increase, bringing the projected total increase in the average residential tax bill for FY2020 to 11.8 percent.

Continuing, McDonough showed the projected residential tax increases through 2029, with the annual percentage increase consistently at 3.8 percent and the cumulative increase at 27 percent for 2024 (5 Year) and 46 percent for 2029 (10 Year).

Town Manager Tony Mazzucco – commenting – built on McQuaid’s earlier statement:

“So, next year – as a result of the override – $389 is what it goes up, and then the cost of that override goes up by about $9 to $10 a year after that. It is in perpetuity, but it doesn’t go up $389, and then the next year another $389, and then another $389 every year unless you pass an override every single year.”

In his final slide, McDonough showed a bar chart of new growth in the Town over the past 10 years, which have consistently averaged about $875,000.

Mazzucco focused on the importance of increasing growth in order to bring residential taxes down, explaining that those taxes are paid for by the new additions to the tax base.

He went on to say that “the impact of the new growth is the more we grow, the less everyone else pays because the burden is being shared.”

Selectman David Hajjar agreed with this, adding, “I think as a Board – we’re trying to say to the taxpayer that we’re going to work real hard to increase our commercial tax base… which lowers the residential tax rate.”

Selectman William Plasko brought up another point related to this:

“The override raises the ceiling limit for us, but it’s only Town Meeting appropriation that actually spends it and determines what the tax rate will be. So we don’t necessarily have to go to the top if we can come up with other sources of revenue.”

McDonough informed the Board that – should the override pass – the increase would go into effect at the beginning of FY2020 (July 1) for the period ending on Sept. 30.

“We didn’t want to hit the taxpayer with a huge third and fourth quarter increase,” McDonough said of the decision to put the tax into effect in the first quarter of the fiscal year. “If it does pass, that will take out some of the sticker shock.”

Bishop also announced that he and McDonough would be visiting the Senior Center (275 Prospect St.) on May 23 to speak with people regarding their override concerns.

“We’re trying to find ways to help the senior community bring it [costs] down a little bit.”

There are two override information sessions scheduled for this week. One will be on Thursday, May 9 at 7 p.m. and the other will be on Saturday May 11 at 9:30 a.m. Both will be held at the GSU Lecture Hall at the High School (245 Nichols St.).

The Board of Selectmen meets on Tuesdays at 7 p.m. in Room 34 of Town Hall.

the main runway and its apron area, the realignment of Taxiway C, and redesigning the Airport’s taxilane system. Runway 17/35 – the Airport’s 4000 foot long main runway -- currently has 300 foot long grass safety areas at either end of it for airplanes that under run or overrun it.

The Airport, however, is in a wetland area, and – as Rouelle described it – the high water table presents problems for the safety areas as they are presently. “Right now, they’re not completely to standard,” he said. “They won’t support the weight of the design aircraft.”

As a solution, the TMP proposal is to pave both safety areas, extending the runway surface area by 300 feet at either end. An additional proposal for the Runway 17/35 area is to reduce the Airport’s primary surface from 1,000 feet wide to 500 feet wide. The primary surface includes airplane apron space/parking areas, taxilanes, object-free zones, and the runway itself. Within this area, building height restrictions are reduced by moving away from this area – which the Airport does not currently have – just south of the new Taxiway C. The Airport’s one taxilane system.

The Airport is designated ADG-II (Aircraft Design Group II), which allows for wingspans up to 79 feet. However, none of the Airport’s three taxilanes meet FAA standards regarding this aircraft class, with the main problem being obstructions (EX: hydrants, hangar doors) in the TDG-II (Taxiway Design Group II) operational area.

Although it is possible to restrict the Airport to ADG-1 aircraft, the TMPU offered several alternatives that would make the taxilanes safe for ADG-II aircraft. Its preferred alternative expands Taxi lane 3 (removing obstructions over time) and combining Taxi lanes 1 and 2, which would entail removing an approximately 250 foot long building and several aircraft tie downs that would be within the object-free area. This alternative would also provide a centralized de-icing area – which the Airport does not currently have – just south of the new Taxiway 2. This would also generate revenue.

Other technical master plan proposals include “bumping out” the helicopter pads in the southern end of the Airport so that they will be away from aircraft apron space, and adding an aircraft wash area near the West Apron, which would generate revenue, as well.

The Norwood Record

Both Rouelle and Ryan also commented on possible changes to the Airport’s main parking area. These could include the addition of solar canopies in the parking lot and a 3,700 square foot building to the north of the Airport’s main buildings (on the low grassy incline) that would – if built – house a restaurant.

Ryan clarified that the proposals of the TMPU were not “set in stone.”

Rouelle also prioritized the different proposals, stating that those improving safety standards would be paramount, followed by those generating revenue and reducing cost. He also broke projects down into short term (2019-2023), intermediate term (2024-2028), and long term categories (2029-2038), with 20 year capital improvement projects largely paid for with federal/state funds and an approximately 5 percent local match.

Almost everyone there was connected in some way to the Airport, and almost all had technical questions about what they had just seen and heard.

Ryan and Rouelle emphasized that that commentary period would be open until May 10, with any comments to be directed to Russ Maguire at rmaguire@norwoodma.gov.

Norwood needs an operational override.

that three-month period, usually in July,” he said. “After we receive an approval letter from the AG’s office, the very last step of ‘how’re we changing zoning in Massachusetts’ is the Town Clerk has to post the bylaw amendment in a ‘conspicuous place’ for two weeks. Then it’s all official and finally approved.”

Halkiotis said he doesn’t believe there is any part of the bylaw that would make it a problem for the AG. “I’m not really concerned, there was nothing in there that was really risky,” he said. “They basically look for any element of a local bylaw that could conflict with state law, the State Constitution or the United States Constitution.”

He added that any developer who wants to submit plans based on the MUOD can, but if the AG makes any changes that might affect those plans the developer will be on the hook to make them accordingly. Halkiotis said that already he has heard from a local property owner who wants to use the overlay district’s new zoning to construct a project. He said at a stakeholder’s meeting with local property owners in April, when the bylaw’s density allowances were eventually increased, he met with one individual who had proposed a project in years past.

“He had applied for a project five years ago with a variance and he didn’t get the variance,” he said. “He’s still there at that building, and he’s still paying taxes on it, I assume. When we reached out to him, he said ‘If South Norwood owners he was one of the people who came to the meeting and we engaged with him. He’s very interested in moving forward with the project, and I think there might be some others out there, and we think he might be the first one.’”

In terms of expanding the district to outside the Downtown area, Halkiotis said they are going to wait and see how this works. He said there are no specific criteria that the Town is currently looking for in terms of success that would allow the district’s density increases to expand.

“One reason we wanted to focus the bylaw on the Downtown was to promote some economic development activity there and some reinvestment in the Town,” he said. “In South Norwood, there had been a project before the Zoning Board of Appeals (ZBA) to build on a vacant lot and a lot that already had a kind of rundown apartment building, and that project got run out of Town by the folks in South Norwood. We kind of looked at that as a sign that, well these people don’t like this kind of redevelopment taking place, and we thought we’d focus on the Downtown. Maybe there will be an interest in other areas if this is successful.”

Halkiotis said any change to the current bylaw or any expansion to other areas would have to again go before Town Meeting and be approved by at least a two-thirds vote.

“We’re cautiously optimistic that we’re going to see some changes and we think in the long run this will be viewed as a big benefit to the Town going forward,” he said.

The process to approve the MUOD was not without its rocky points, however. During Town Meeting, an error in printing gave TM members a draft version of the MUOD, while officials had the finished version. One TM member went through all the errors he found in the document that he said could be problematic for the Town. Halkiotis said however that in between the Thursday and Monday Town Meeting dates, he and that resident were able to go over all 65 points the resident had concerns with.

“We addressed all of his concerns and afterwards he said he was all set,” he said. “We were really proud of the success of getting that long and complicated by-law passed, especially considering the confusion upfront... We were able to bring everyone on board and I think the townspeople want to see some positive changes in their Downtown.”

“So I got myself a little Sony digital camera, and this was in the early days,” he said. “It wasn’t the greatest quality but it gave me the chance to go out and learn. If I made a mistake, I could see that mistake immediately. I’m entirely self taught maybe I’ll try it a little differently and you start experimenting and a lot of times those mistakes would be technical in nature, but I felt I was on to something with the shot. Maybe I’ll try it a little differently and you start experimenting and a lot of time passed between the little Sony I had in my pocket to a Nikon DSLR I have now. It was a learning process.”

NORWOOD HAZARDOUS WASTE/RECYCLING DAY
Bring your hazardous waste to Norwood’s semi-annual Household Hazardous Waste Day on May 11th at the Composting Facility at 370 Winter Street from 8:00 AM – 11:00 AM. Please bring proof of residency.

Hazardous waste is considered product with properties that make it dangerous or potentially harmful to the environment. A partial list of materials include oil, sealant, paints, drain cleaners, pool chemicals, electronic waste, batteries, mercury, fluorescent lights, etc.

The town does not accept latex paint, asbestos, bio-active materials, radioactive materials, explosives, or oil or lead based coatings. Large paint containing products like latex paint can be disposed of in regular trash only when it is completely hardened. Depending on the amount of paint, it can be hardened by leaving the container open or by adding paint hardeners.

The Health Department has packets of paint hardener available to Norwood residents for $2. Paint hardener can also be found in any hardware or paint store.

For up-to-date information on events and health topics follow the Health Department on Twitter @norwoodHD and like us on Facebook. If you have any questions please contact the Health Department at 781-762-1240.

To The Doctor: I recently purchased a 2018 Toyota RAV4, and am very pleased with it. But one issue I have with the headlights. If you drive down a snowy or icy road, you need to adjust the high beams downward. The problem is that the headlights don’t do this on their own. Is there a way to adjust the headlights from the inside of the car, or do you have to buy an LED kit to do this?

From the Doctor: If you are concerned about the headlights not adjusting, there are a couple of options that are not very expensive. You can buy LED or Sylvania high-output bulbs; install an LED headlight kit with brighter bulbs; or install fog lights. It could be the body design with the headlights placed too far back.
