Record turnout in all precincts

Voters across the country took to the streets Thursday, pulling in some of the highest numbers in recent history for this historic Presidential election.

By 9 p.m., the precinct totals were tallied, and Norwood voters cast their ballots en masse for Democratic candidate Barak Obama and Vice Presidential candidate Joe Biden.

Massachusetts typically swings toward the Democratic side, and the senate races reflected the longstanding tradition, with every Norwood precinct supporting Senator John Kerry for another term.

Polling stations in Norwood started filling up early, and stayed packed throughout the day, with many poll workers saying the voter turnout was the highest they had ever seen.

"This is the biggest turnout I've seen in 30 years," said Mary Hemman, who was working the polls at the Oldham School.

Norwood Police Sgt. Martin Baker was keeping an eye on the ballot box at the Oldham, and said he hoped the strong turnout and community involvement lasted after the polls closed.

"I've never seen it like this," he said, "but it's good to see. I hope it's not just a flash in the pan."

At the Oldham Elementary School, voters from districts 6 and 7 gathered to cast their ballots, voters lined up around the small gymnasium, waiting for a booth to open.

First time voter Devin Naughton placed her ballot in the optical reader with care and said it was an exciting election for a first timer.

"I just did something good for my community," she exclaimed as she exited the building.

Norwood Police Officer and department spokesman Paul Bishop was on duty watching the ballot box at the Cleveland Elementary school, and said he had seen a larger variety of voters come out to vote this year.

"There have been a lot of different voters out," he said, "older people and younger people. The younger voters are very enthusiastic. We're going to see things tonight we've never seen before."

At the Civic Center, the line snaked down the front steps and back up Nahatan Street. Police Officers manned the crosswalk all day long to accommodate the heavy foot traffic across the busy street as thousands of voters in Precincts 3 and 5 cast their ballots.

A plan to bring some life to the old Polaroid property in the Upland Woods development was heavily debated by local abutters Monday night as the Norwood Planning Board discussed the possibility of allowing a four story office building to be constructed on the largely vacant site.

Upland Woods currently houses both the Universal Technical Institute campus and Aspect Medical Corporation, but still offers a large portion of unoccupied space.

Developers from the Campanelli Companies proposed the construction of a large office building that, if ap-

Nurse Leader saying goodbye

Rose Riley retiring after 28 years in Norwood schools

Krystal Grow
Staff Reporter

After treating thousands of runny noses and tummy aches, Norwood Nurse Leader Rosemary Riley is hanging up her stethoscope and cleaning off her thermometer as she prepares to retire this December.

Riley has been taking care of sick kids in Norwood since 1980, when she first took the job as a substitute.

"I came in as a sub for two weeks and never left," she said. "It was just a good fit for me."

Riley, a Norwood High School graduate, worked in the Faulkner Hospital before coming to lead the health care staff in Norwood. She said the differences between hospital work and taking care of an entire school system are profound.

"In a hospital, you have nurses and doctors all over the place, here it's just you and the child you're caring for. There is a lot of decision making and leadership associated with this job," she said.

But her tenacity and tenderness, along with her nursing experience and sound judgment provided a huge benefit to the children and staff of Norwood and helped make important policy changes and to address the ever-changing health needs of students.

"We didn't have a medication policy when I got here. Kids would just come to school with little bags full of pills. Of course we can't do that now. We have defibrillators in every building and our teachers are CPR trained." Riley is also a licensed CPR instructor.

Riley has also seen advances in medical technology that have made it possible for children with serious illnesses to still attend school, which has significantly increased her workload.

"A lot of kids are coming to school now with long term illnesses like diabetes and even children being treated for cancer. Before, they would have to stay home. Technology makes it possible for these kids to stay in school, but they do need medication and a lot more care," she said.

Not that she minds. Riley said she and her staff have been able to manage most ailments children have come down with, even managing to prevent spreading contagious infections.

"It's always more than just a band-aid," she said. "A lot of people have no idea what actually goes on in the nurse's office."

Scott Dunlap, Ai3 architect, discusses plans for new high school.

Dunlap talks Details

Ai3 architect says firm's focus is education

Krystal Grow
Staff Reporter

Norwood locals may have been hearing a lot about Scott Dunlap lately. The architect from the Wayland firm Ai3 has made numerous Norwood appearances in the last few months, delivering detailed plans and intricate drawings for the new high school.

Dunlap's firm designed Whitman/Hanson High School, which was chosen as the Massachusetts School Building Authority's Model School this summer around the same time Norwood was invited to participate in the program.

Now, the town can look forward to a brand new school by 2011 that is being planned and designed by a firm solely focused on educational excellence.

"Educational design is 100 percent of our work. We pride ourselves on focusing all our research, design and end product on making outstanding educational environments," Dunlap said. "We could consider expanding to other markets, but this is where we've committed ourselves and that's why we think we've been able to succeed."

Ai3 has been in business for about 10 years, Dunlap said, which is relatively young in the Boston architectural scene, where most firms have been around for over 50 years. But

Riley said she had been planning on retiring and the right time is now for a number of reasons, including the recent lack of state funding for an essential school health services grant that had seriously shaken medical care in numerous Massachusetts schools.

It was announced in May that Norwood would not receive the anticipated $100,000 grant that has made it possible for the Health Department to computerize student health records and partially fund the Nurse Leader position and substitute nurses in Norwood public and private schools.

In May, Riley said she was worried that the lack of funding would make it difficult to maintain the many social services the school health department offers to students and families in Norwood.

"We're the first line of medical care for many families," she said. "They trust us because we can continually send nurses to professional development courses, but we can't do that without the grant."

Riley said she could not comment on the how the school health department was planning to cope with the loss, but that there would be some definite shifting of responsibility.

"At least one nurse would have lost their job," she said. "It just seemed like the right time for me to retire."

A life long caregiver, Riley said she wouldn't be spending her retirement relaxing.

"I might take it easy for a few weeks, but that's really not my cup of tea," she said. "I can definitely picture myself working part time, but I have six grandchildren and I'll never miss another dance recital again."

with Jerry Armstrong, Broker, REALTOR®, CBR, ASR

A BUY SIGNAL. If you're looking for a signal that provides evidence that it may be time to buy in the current market, take a look at the "price-to-rent ratio" in your area. This figure can be arrived at by considering two similar houses in the same area—one that has recently sold and another that is for rent. Divide the sale price by the annual rent cost. Conventional wisdom holds that buying begins to look attractive when the number is about 15 or lower. The ratio is based on the common-sense approach of people who base their buy/rent decision on real-world factors. For a more sophisticated analysis, ask a real estate agent to compare today's ratio to that of a decade ago. I hope you found this topic to be both interesting and informative. I have a successful, 36+ years' history of assisting buyers in finding the property that fits their needs and finances. Allow me to assist you in your search. # Veterans' Day 2008

Veterans' Day was originally called Armistice Day, the only American holiday created to remember a specific moment in time. In 1918, on the eleventh hour of the eleventh day in the eleventh month, the world rejoiced. After four years of bitter war, an armistice was signed. The "war to end all wars" was over.

During the height of the Cold War, following the carnage of World War II and the Korean War, President Dwight Eisenhower in 1954 signed legislation designating November 11 as Veterans' Day through which "a grateful nation, on a day dedicated to world peace, may pay proper homage to all its veterans who have contributed so much to world peace and the preservation of our way of life."

As we commemorate Veterans Day, we proudly and gratefully recognize the hardships and sacrifices demanded from, and faithfully accepted by, the millions of men and women who have defended our land in war and peace. It is a day to review memories of past honor and extraordinary sacrifice. It is a day to celebrate peace and the bright victories that grew from dark battles. It is a day to dream of a brighter future.

Veterans' Day is also a reminder that we have an obligation to safeguard the precious legacy of our Founding Fathers, a legacy of freedom, justice and liberty. A legacy that forever commits the nation to preserve our sovereignty, respects our heritage, and instills in us the responsibilities of citizenship.

Veterans' Day commemorates the valor and patriotism of all of America's veterans who have contributed so much to the cause of world peace and the preservation of our way of life. They remind us all that cowards did not establish this great nation, nor will cowards preserve it. America will remain the land of the free only so long as it is the home of the brave.

Hundreds of thousands of brave men and women from our great state have worn our country's uniform during time of war. And in light of the events of September 11, 2001, and the commitment to waging a Global War on Terror, this number increases daily. Our nation is making new veterans every day as more young men and women take the oath of enlistment.

The war on terror is painful and personal. It is a war against an ideology - not a nation. It is a war where many of our brave warriors cannot look across a field and see an "enemy." For the enemy is faceless and yet has a thousand faces.

Right now, as we reflect on those who have fought to preserve the freedoms that every American enjoys, there are thousands of men and women in our military; once again, taking up arms against the enemies of freedom. Like generations of patriots who came before them, these few shoulder the burden for many. They serve because they know it is necessary for the greater good. It's important that we take time to thank and recognize the men and women who are currently serving in the military forces. They are defending the principals upon which this nation was founded.

We need to do everything we can to make sure the men and women who serve in today's and tomorrow's military receive what they need to accomplish their mission of safeguarding America's interests. That includes a livable wage and decent living conditions for them and their families, and a guarantee of quality healthcare when they leave the military.

As circumstance and necessity demands, our military stands ready to do whatever is needed to defend our nation against our enemies and rid the world of those who try to disrupt world order through terrorist acts and totalitarian rule.

Our men and women in uniform today share the same military ideas and experiences of yesterday's veterans: they chose to serve because they have a common belief in a cause higher than self and a shared sense of duty. They are the ones who assume all the risks associated with maintaining our freedom and liberties and preserving the ideals of democracy.

More than anyone, veterans understand the real meaning of America. They are the ones who so willingly defended and fought for our freedom and liberties. Maintaining the strength of the American ideal requires courage, constant vigilance as well as sacrifice. There should be no doubt that without the sacrifice of our veterans, without their love and dedication of spirit, tyrants and evil would prevail.

So I ask that we strive, through the legislative process, to grant our veterans the care and respect they so richly and rightfully deserve. They have been the keepers of peace and protectors of our freedom. We can never do enough to thank them. We can, however, honor them and care for them.

On this eighth Veterans Day of the new century, we honor all those who have worn the uniform in the past, and those who wear it today. We owe our freedom to them. There is no better time than now to say, "Thanks for your service, I know what you did. I appreciate it." They deserve no less.

For further information, questions or assistance with any veterans' benefits or services, please call the Town of

Norwood Department of Veterans' Services, (781) 762-1240, x208 or x209 or visit us on the web at www.ci.norwood.ma.us/veterans/ in those 10 years, Dunlap and his team at Ai3 have designed some of the most sophisticated and impressive educational facilities in the state.

"It's a highly specialized field. Some of these environments are so sophisticated that it can't be a sideline project," he said.

Dunlap speculated that the firm's focus on quality educational buildings is the reason their design was chosen by the MSBA. It is their commitment to designing exceptional learning environments that he says may have tipped the scales in their favor.

"We went into the Whitman/Hanson project hoping we could build the most outstanding high school in the country, and certainly in New England," he said. "The MSBA and anyone else who walks into that school is amazed, but so many people gave so much time to this project, and we made sure the community and the administration was committed to this before we got started."

Ai3 is selective in the projects they accept. They are in a specialized market, but Dunlap said they don't just walk blindly into school building projects. He said there are many factors that go into determining if a town or city is adequately prepared and properly motivated to do what it takes to build outstanding schools.

"This kind of project can't just happen anywhere," he said, "but we've observed a number of people giving as much time as is required to make sure this is a success. We have to call meetings daily sometimes, but we've never had trouble getting in contact with people immediately. There has been a tremendous effort in Norwood."

That effort has kept the project alive in Norwood for years, with multiple feasibility studies, informational meetings and town meeting presentations to explore every possible way to give the future students of Norwood High School the educational facilities they need to succeed in an increasingly advanced and sophisticated world. Dunlap said he's seen that spirit and determination in Norwood, and realizes that it often takes time to get everyone on board with a project of this magnitude.

"In Whitman/Hanson, people look at the final product and cheer, but it wasn't always that way. There were people who really didn't understand what we were trying to do," Dunlap said, "but we've seen enough in Norwood to know that a new, modern 1100 student capacity high school will make people happy."

Dunlap said it is not uncommon to have resistance from the community, but he says often times it is because people become accustomed to making do with the resources available and don't realize what they're missing.

"It's always the case when people are occupying a dated building," he said. "Over time, people are forced into spaces that aren't appropriate for the subject matter, so they just do the best with what they have and forget what they don't have."

Case in point: the current high school science labs, which are so outdated that the New England Association of Schools and Colleges threatened to revoke the school's accreditation if the labs weren't brought up to snuff.

But the labs in the new high school will include computers at each workstation, plentiful storage space and interactive whiteboards. In fact, each classroom will be outfitted with Smart Boards, a high tech learning tool Ai3 researched and have since implemented as part of their plan for Norwood High School.

"Smart Boards are making a difference," he said. "We looked at the highest performing districts and saw what they had, and those are some of the things that will happen in Norwood."

Dunlap added that there have been studies that indicate that students effectively absorb national current events and school news broadcast over plasma screen televisions strategically placed in social and interactive areas around the building.

"The technology in the building is not an effort to cram as many devices in the building as we can, but looking at what really benefits students and increases the educational experience," he said. "When we open a new facility with perfectly balanced heating and air conditioning, with the perfect balance of natural and artificial lighting, with perfectly sized classrooms, teachers and students will perform better, absentee rates will go down. This has all been proven."

Dunlap and Ai3 are ready to prove it in Norwood.

Basic Rental closes

Store shares lot with Norfolk Asphalt Plant

Krystal Grow
Staff Reporter

Friday afternoon's closeout sale at Basic Rental on Pleasant Street may have meant great deals for local contractors and developers, but could have slightly different implications for owner Lorusso Corp. and the Norwood Zoning Board of Appeals.

Basic Rental shares space with the heavily debated Norfolk Asphalt Plant, which owner Jim Lorusso has been trying to reopen for the better part of two years. The ZBA ruled in August that the plant, which has not produced asphalt since the mid 1980's, was abandoned and therefore not eligible to continue manufacturing.

During their deliberations, which included multiple public hearings and months of evidence review, Attorney Phil Macchi and a host of others from Lorusso Corp insisted that because Basic Rental still operated a retail facility, which Lorusso Corp also owns on the same site, that the plant could not be deemed abandoned. But that case did not hold up with the ZBA.

ZBA member Patrick Mulvehill, who was chair of the board for the majority of the case, said that he could not go into detail on the case, since Lorusso and Macchi have appealed the ZBA ruling and the case is currently in litigation.

"Maybe they're going to clear the lot to make it look like it's being used for one use, but that's pure speculation," Mulvehill said. "I'm not sure why else they would close it, it looked like they were doing good business."

Mary Coogan, Lorusso's assistant, said the company would be using the space for other efforts.

"At this time, we see that space better fit for other purposes," she said.

Coogan would not comment on whether the store closing was related to the ZBA's ruling or the subsequent appeal.

"If they go to court and try to show photos of the plant without the (Basic Rental) building on it to try and strengthen their case, the records will clearly show that there used to be a business there," Mulvehill said. "Any reasonable person would look at that and see that they are trying to jockey their case."

On Monday, Macchi said he had not heard that Basic Rental had closed, and would look into the possible effects it could have on the case.

Town Counsel Dave Deluca, who had been advising the ZBA in the matter, did not return calls by The Record's press time.

works at the Morrill Memorial Library and is President of the Norwood Art Association, was one of many waiting in line outside the civic Tuesday night.

"I was going to come this morning, but thought I would wait until tonight, but I guess it didn't make much of a difference," she said.

Across the street, Larry Curran held a post of his own on Nahatan Street, holding a "Teamsters for Obama" sign, watching the line move slowly up the Civic Center steps.

"It's been like that pretty much all day," he said.

"It's been very busy," said Virginia Cardile, who was working inside the Civic. "I think it's that way across the country." Cardile said she has been working the Norwood polls for about five years.

The high voter turnout may be a sign of higher voter involvement, but could also be in response to the three ballot questions in this year's elections.

In Norwood, voters overwhelmingly voted "No" on question 1, which would have repealed the state income tax. Local elected officials have campaigned strongly against the measure, saying it would be devastating to municipal services.

In a surprising turn for the relatively conservative town, Norwood voters strongly approved question 2, supporting the decriminalization of less than one ounce of marijuana. Under the new legislation, those found in possession will be issued a citation and made to pay a $100 fine. Question two will also prevent possession citations from appearing on CORI background checks for minors.

"The approval of Question 2 is overwhelming," Board of Selectmen Chairman Mike Lyons said after reading the results posted outside Memorial Hall. "You'd think Norwood is a lot more conservative than that. Question 1 got killed and Question 2 passed."

The town split somewhat on Question 3, which would end greyhound racing in the state. Districts 1, 2, 3, 7 and 9 all voted against eradicating the industry, which would also eliminate about 1,000 jobs statewide. Overall, the majority of Norwood voters did not support the question.

The town voted almost uniformly for Barak Obama, except for District 9, which showed John McCain winning by 32 votes.

proved, will be the newest home of company Tech Target, and will provide office space for up to 500 additional employees.

Tech Target is an online niche media company that caters to IT professionals and currently has an office in Needham.

The Campanelli Companies acquired the property about five years ago, said company president Dan DeMarco.

"This will be a 200,000 square foot office building requiring new construction, including road work," he said. "We have pre-leased 113,000 square feet to Tech Target. The remaining portion will be built on a speculative basis."

DeMarco and his team from Campanelli said they had met with local abutters and toured the site to hear their concerns. From those meetings, the developers have amended their plans to include fencing around the parking lot and have reduced the height of the light poles on the building site.

But many residents surrounding Upland Woods still had some major concerns, mainly regarding the increased traffic along their normally quiet suburban streets.

"I was here when the subdivision was first presented and had traffic concerns," said Paul Forrest of Hill Street. "We have experienced a significant increase in traffic since UTI opened. Each morning between 6 a.m. and 8 a.m. there is a noticeable traffic increase going northbound on Hill Street. Eight hundred and fifty new parking spaces means about 1600 extra trips each day. We are very concerned about the traffic."

Linda Perry of Washington Street voiced similar concerns.

"1A has turned into a raceway," she said. "You can't even sit in your backyard and have a conversation anymore because of the noise and the traffic."

Traffic analyst Bob Mishued said studies had been done to address the possible impact the new building would have on the town, and said the initial occupancy would not pose a drastic increase in local traffic.

"At that level, there will be no discernable change to existing traffic patterns and would not require any major infrastructure changes," he said, adding that the studies did show that an exclusive left turn lane would ultimately be necessary on Upland Rd.

Mischued also said that when the building exceeds 150,000 square feet of occupancy, an exclusive right turn lane would be added along Clapboardtree Street and Everett Street.

Lighting was also a major concern for the many abutters who attended the public hearing Monday night. Many said they were worried that the lights from the new building would be shining into their windows late at night and would ruin any privacy they might have had before the building went up.

But architect and designer David Kelly said the lights in the parking lot would be dimmed each night, and that they are planning on adding more foliage to the 100 foot buffer zone in an attempt to keep as much light from getting to residential properties as possible.

The hearing, which lasted for over two hours, was continued to Dec. 10 to allow the Planning Board time to consider the arguments made on the abutters behalf and to further study the plans Campanelli presented. The board will also conduct their own site visit next Saturday, Nov. 15, at 10 a.m. Abutters are welcome to attend, as are any other interested local residents who would like to learn more about the proposed development.

Schools need repair funds

Krystal Grow
Staff Reporter

On the same night Interim Superintendent of Schools John Moretti outlined a list of programs that could be cut if faced with a sever loss of state funding, he also recommended the School Committee request close to $1 million in funds from Town Meeting to fix up a few Norwood Schools.

Moretti said he and School Buildings and Grounds Director Joe McDonough looked at the 10-year capital improvement plan and identified some items that needed immediate attention.

Moretti, along with McDonough and Selectman Bill Plasko, created a list of repairs and estimated costs that included $75,000 to replace the flooring at the Prescott Elementary School, $151,000 to replace the lighting in each classroom at the Cleveland Elementary School, and the remaining funds for repairs at the Coakley Middle School.

According to the makeshift maintenance committee, the Coakley needs new lockers and lighting in the auditorium, and $546,000 to replace the external wall around the gym. They also plan to spend a combined $75,000 in repairs to the disintegrating HVAC system.

School Committee Chairman Paul Samargedlis said by approving the HVAC repairs, they were just delaying the inevitable replacement of the entire system.

"This is the same money we pump into it every year. It's just a band-aid and we all know it's going to have to be replaced," he said.

Member Bill Plasko, Jr. said that while it was up to the committee to approve the recommendation, the Board of Selectmen would make the official vote as managers of all town buildings.

Because the committee does not have the final say on the capital expenditures, they still have the liberty of altering the list before it is approved by the selectmen, which Samargedlis said would be important if they decided to reorganize or reprioritize the list.

Plasko, Jr. said this was the earliest he had seen a list of possible capital repairs for the upcoming budget.

"It's still early, we can still pull things out," he said. "This is the earliest we have ever seen this information, but right now, it is just information for us."

Member Mitch Pentowski suggested that as budget discussions become more solid, the committee should have a joint meeting with the Selectmen to determine what the priorities were on the list and how many of them could be achieved in the upcoming fiscal year.

"Selectman Plasko thought this was a very reasonable list," Moretti said.

Girls' soccer ready for 'The Show'

Second straight postseason run begins this weekend

Norwood senior standout Katie Bernazzani keeps the Mustangs in control during their 8-0 win over visiting Nantucket last Friday at Father Mac's Field. This season, Norwood earned its second state tourney berth in as many years and in program history. The Mustangs will begin postseason play on the road this weekend.

Halloween proved to be a big treat for the Norwood girls' soccer team, but the Mustangs know their 8-0 victory over visiting Nantucket last Friday at Father Mac's Field was just one sweet tart compared to the whole jar they're seeking in the form of a big postseason run.

Norwood will begin the Division 1 south state tourney on the road either Saturday or Sunday, after finishing the campaign at 12-6-2 overall and 10-6-2 in the Bay State Conference. For the Mustangs, it's their second straight trip to the big dance, after they earned a berth last season for the first time in program history. At this writing, it was not known who Norwood's first round opponent will be.

"We're just trying to go farther than we did last season, and hopefully make history again," said senior tri-captain and star forward Sam Vilaboa, who registered a hat trick during last Friday's win over the Whalers in a non-conference contest.

But the Mustangs know they can't rest on their laurels, lest they forget a tough stretch they had with several injuries during the midseason.

"We're definitely not going to take it easy in practice," said Vilaboa, who struck for 14 goals this season. "We're just going to try our best and try to recreate game situations."

"I think the tough stretch that we had during the middle of the season when we had a few injuries, I'll be going over that on a daily basis to remind [us] that if we don't play well, we won't win, doesn't matter who we play," added third-year head coach Jay Dupuis.

For Norwood to make history again, it would need to get by at least two rounds in the tourney. The Mustangs won in the first round last fall, before being eliminated in the next circuit.

"I think we're all playing really well, and it showed in our passing," said Vilaboa after last Friday's win. "We all played really well together, and I think that's going to show in tournament."

Against Nantucket, the Mustangs were up to their old tricks, and they hope to continue to play in the postseason the same game of keep-away they did against the Whalers.

"If we take the same approach and move the ball quickly, don't take too many touches on the ball, we can [succeed using] the same passing style no matter who we play," said Dupuis. "Just moving the ball quickly, passing as opposed to just keeping it on our feet...What I was happy with today is we really moved the ball well."

The Mustangs were a textbook version of soccer excellence, particularly in the first half when they scored five goals while peppering Nantucket netminder Sarah Poor with 18 shots.

Vilaboa headed in the first strike off a cross-feed from Megan Folan in the fifth minute. Three minutes later, fellow senior tri-captain Kelsey Roberson scored in the same fashion off a corner kick from freshman star Brianna Quintiliani. Vilaboa then finished another corner kick from junior Justin LaVoye in the 23rd minute to make it 3-0.

The assault continued when sophomore star midfielder Cory Ryan registered her BSC leading 19th goal, heading in a pass from LaVoye. Ryan then fed Vilboea, who earned the hat trick in the 31st minute.

The Mustangs scored three more times in the second half. Freshman phenom Danielle Ringler streaked in up the middle before drilling a low shot into the left corner unassisted in the 51st minute. Almost midway through the frame, senior Melissa Maggio recorded her first varsity goal on a penalty kick from 12 yards out. Senior tri-captain and standout Jenn Canniff blistered a line drive shot into the left corner from 20 yards deep to close the scoring.

Senior Cara Cole, junior Stephanie Callahan, and sophomore Noura Mezian combined for the shutout in goal. Cole also earned an assist while play-

Flying high!

First a trick, then a treat as Mustangs rally to stun Framingham

Mike Stoller
Staff Reporter

At the outset, the Norwood football team was living a Halloween nightmare. First, the coaching staff left with the squad for Bowditch Field in Framingham without its headsets last Friday. Then, the witches in the opposing town must have pulled an even bigger ooh-ha-ha on the Mustangs, who trailed the Flyers 19-0 after the first quarter during the huge Bay State Conference match-up.

"It was a real Halloween story. It was a nightmare at Bowditch Field until we came back," said Norwood head coach Buzzy Curran.

Ah yes, the comeback. Seemingly down for the count, the Mustangs regained their footing and staged a furious rally, in which they scored 27 unanswered points to stun Framingham, 27-19.

The win for Norwood put both teams at 6-2 as the Mustangs stay in contention for the Herget Division title, while Framingham maintains its lead in the Carey.

The Flyers broke loose in the first stanza with three touchdowns, two on passes from star quarterback Danny Gaudagnoli, who connected with Travis Hayes and Nick Liquori for 32- and 11-yard touchdown tosses, respectively. Gaudagnoli also tallied on a 1-yard run to open the scoring.

Norwood junior defensive back Silqwan Russell subdued Gaudagnoli in the second quarter, intercepting a pass and running it back 33 yards to put the Mustangs on the board. It was a huge play for Norwood, and combined with some strong inside blitzing by linebacker Mike Verrochi in the second half, provided the spark the Mustangs needed to get back in the game.

"Silqwan put a little bit of a doubt in their quarterback, who was fantastic," said Curran of Gaudagnoli. [But after that play], he was a bit more tentative, a little slower in his reads. And Verrochi's inside blitzes disrupted [the Flyers'] rhythm, and put a lot of pressure on them."

The Mustangs cut the deficit to 19-13 in the third frame, when senior Stephen Cottens hauled in a 60-yard touchdown toss from quarterback Pat Cavanaugh. Norwood took the lead for good, as the squad's other signal caller, Brian Williams, scored on a keeper from a yard out, while Cavanaugh booted the extra point, with 6-1/2 minutes left in the game.

"When you go down 19 points to a good team, it's never easy but we kept playing," said Curran. "I'm happy for our kids. They just kept fighting."

Junior superstar tailback Jhorgy Antoine capped the scoring with a 33-yard touchdown jaunt. Antoine rushed for 147 yards on 25 carries, including his 15th TD of the campaign.

Norwood sealed the game when junior defensive end Matt Murphy swatted away a fourth-down pass by Guadagnoli on Framingham's last possession.

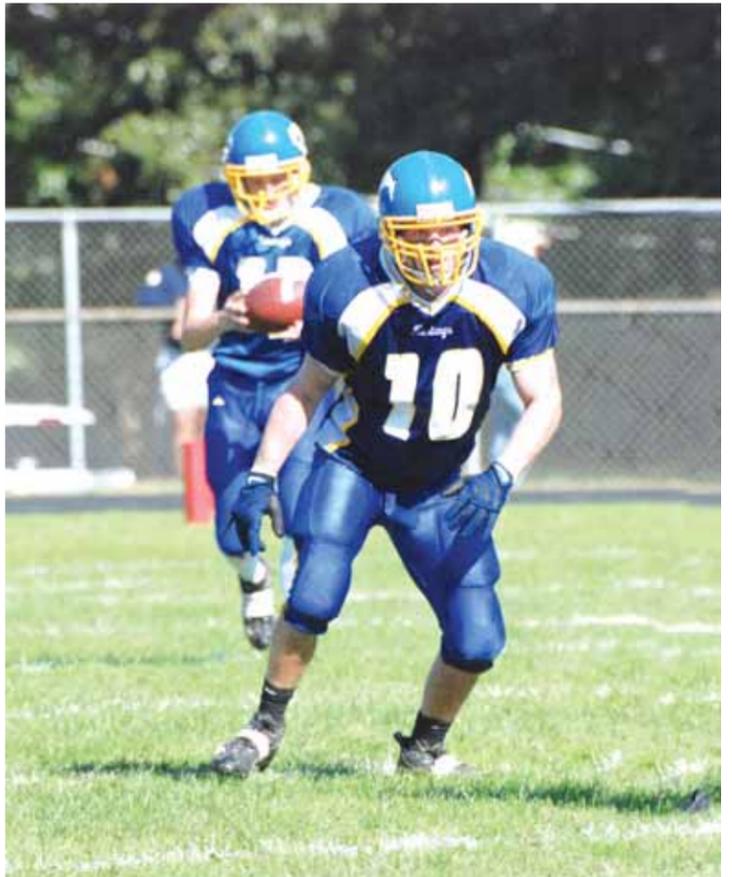

Murphy also played a key role in limiting the Flyers' to minimal yardage on their toss sweep plays, and senior fellow defensive stalwart Moses Acloque came up big with five sacks throughout the contest.

"It was a great win, [after being] down 19-0 eight minutes into the game against a 6-1 team on the road," said Curran. "I'm proud of the way the kids battled, hung in there, fought like crazy. It was fun. I was happy for them."

Offensive musclemen Kevin Kuetauskas and Matt Murphy appear to be telling their opponents, "You're going nowhere," during recent football action at Murray Field.

Field hockey looks ahead Greeley, Clougher, Mancini named BSC All-Stars

Mike Stoller
Staff Reporter

In a lot of ways, this season mirrored last year's campaign for the Norwood field hockey team. It was another rollercoaster ride that ended on the downward turn. And for the second consecutive year, the Mustangs were abruptly eliminated from a state tourney berth, this time with a 1-0 loss to host Wellesley on Oct. 20.

Norwood (5-9-4) did play well in a 1-0 loss to visiting Dedham in its season finale on Oct. 22, and already head mentor Allison Parks is looking forward to next season.

"Obviously, this year was disappointing, but I feel we have some returning varsity players as well as some players on the junior varsity that will help get us back to the state tournament next season," said the coach. "There were many games that we let slip away, and our backs were against the wall in the second half of the season having to win the majority of our games to get to postseason play.” Perhaps the last game against the Marauders was a bit symbolic of the entire season.

“We had numerous opportunities to tie the game, but just couldn’t finish,” said Parks.

And, in this case, when the Mustangs struck, it didn’t count. Norwood had the tying goal called back with about 11 minutes left in the contest, when it was determined that its shot was taken from outside the circle and not touched again by a Mustang player from inside the scoring zone on the way through.

But that didn’t diminish the effort.

“We played a great final game, and I was proud of how hard the kids played especially with having been eliminated from the postseason [two days before],” said Parks.

For all the pitfalls, Norwood is still well represented on the Bay State Conference All-Star team. Senior co-captains Liz Greeley and Kim Clougher both made the BSC First Team, while the Mustangs’ leading scorer, junior forward and first-year varsity player Gina Mancini, earned Second Team honors.

Greeley had four goals and three assists, but that doesn’t begin to tell the impact the star midfielder had on the squad this fall.

“Liz was just phenomenal for us this season,” said Parks. “She is one of the most dynamic players I have ever coached and could take over a game with her play... Her stick handling skills were so strong and she is one of the hardest working players on the team.”

Clougher, a forward, finished with seven goals and three assists and was always a thorn in the opponent’s side.

“Kim is one of the most consistent players on the team,” said the coach. “She does a great job of keeping possession and creates numerous scoring opportunities for her teammates.”

Mancini, who led the Mustangs with 12 goals and two helpers, also “had a very strong season for us on the forward line,” said Parks. “She has tremendous speed and is a pure goal scorer.”

Norwood also got much support from junior Jillian Walsh, who seamlessly made the transition from forward to mid halfway through the season.

“She is an aggressive player and when she keeps things simple, she has the potential to be one of the best players on the field,” said the coach.

While the Mustangs struggled on defense, junior goalie Emily Whitney always kept Norwood in the game. Calling her “one the bright spots,” Parks said, “Emily came up with some spectacular saves this season and gave [us] the opportunity to compete each and every game because of her ability.”

Dedham registered the only strike during the last game. It came at the 20:19 mark of the first half.

“Overall, I thought Jill had a great game as well as Kim,” said Parks, despite the loss.

The coach added, “I’m looking forward to next year. Wish we could start practice tomorrow.”

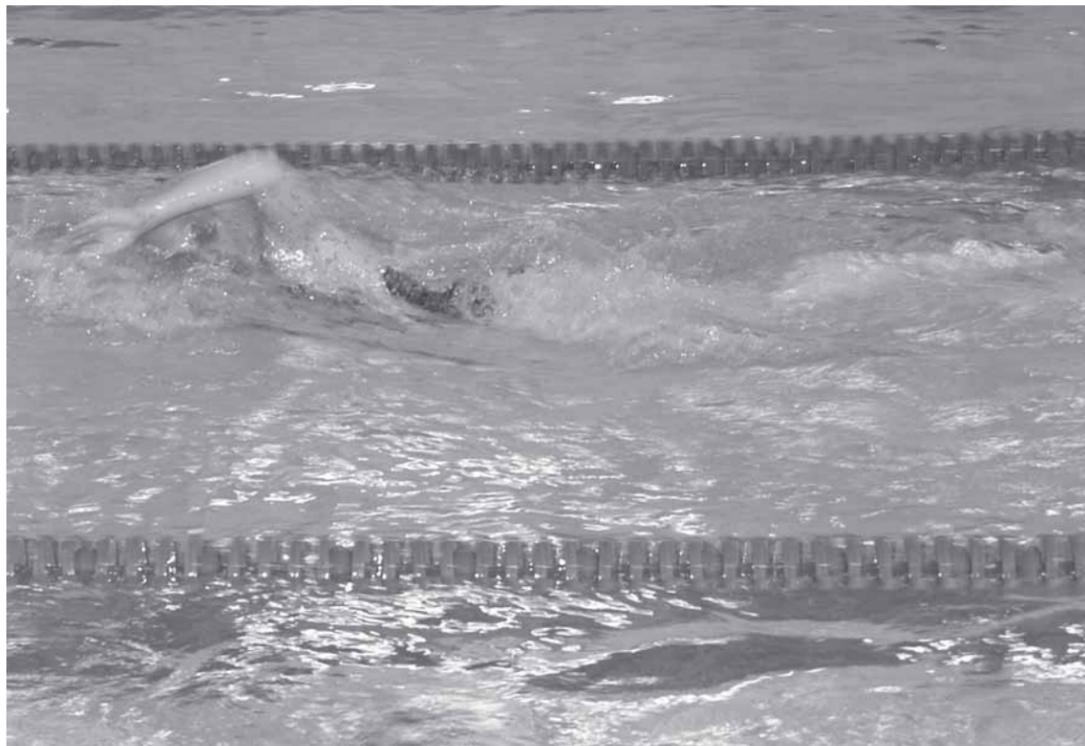

It was a race all season long for the Norwood field hockey team, which came up just short of qualifying for state tourney play.

Season of 'good wins' for girl swimmers

Mike Stoller
Staff Reporter

Strong Mustangs head into postseason

Hopefully, you dig frosting, because everything from here on in is icing on the cake for Norwood first-year head coach Kim Goodwin and the girls' varsity swim team.

After finishing last year with merely three dual meet victories, the Mustangs rolled a solid seven in the win column this year, finishing at 7-5, and good for third place behind perennial powerhouses Walpole and Wellesley in the Bay State Conference Herget Division.

A loss to host Walpole at the Blue Hills Pool in Canton last week in the season finale was expected, and the Rebels won the meet, 102-82. But the defeat will not rain on Norwood's parade, which will march into the postseason with a host of Mustangs competing in the sectional and/or state championship meets on Nov. 15 and Nov. 23. But first the Mustangs will take part in the 11-team BSC meet this Saturday at Wellesley College.

In Goodwin's first year at the varsity helm, Norwood could not have asked for a better campaign after expecting a rebuilding program when the season started.

"I guess what we thought was going to be a rebuilding year has turned into a winning season, [and] I don't mind being wrong about that," she said after a recent win.

Many of Norwood's individual and relay efforts have proven to be so remarkable that a team loss to a ridiculously strong squad like Walpole (10-1) has been almost like a footnote on its scorecard. Besides, as Goodwin put it, "We stayed within our goal of 20 points."

The coach added, "The girls swam tired because of some tough workouts lately, so the coaches were very pleased with their overall performances and gutsy battles."

Junior Emily Metta remained undefeated in the 200 Individual Medley, as did the Mustangs as a team, after Metta won against the Rebels in the opening event. Metta later continued her perfect season in the 100 breaststroke. She will swim both events at the sectional and state meets.

Among the other highlights was senior and co-captain Juliana Cirillo "just blowing her opponents away with an incredible [personal] best time in the 100 free," said Goodwin. At the sectional and state meets, Cirillo will compete in both the 50 and 100 free.

Heck, Norwood even showed courage in its losing efforts. Goodwin lauded senior Meghan Shilo for "showing real heart" when she almost pulled off a come-from-behind victory in the 200 free relay, after having just swam the grueling 500-yard distance event. Shilo will swim the 100 free at sectionals and hopes to qualify for the 200 at the conference meet.

Goodwin said junior standout Natalie Metta raced in "some real battles," while registering two second place slots.

Shilo, Cirillo, Emily Metta, and Natalie Metta also will be members of two relay teams during the sectionals and states.

Senior Amelia Atwood's personal best score for a third-place mark in diving also ranked among the outstanding outings.

Sophomore Katherine Lee posted a couple of personal best times in the 500 free and 100 breaststroke, and junior Kayla Ring and freshman Meghan Clifford recorded personal best times in the 50 free and 100 backstroke, respectively.

Lee, Ring, and freshmen Bailey Lambert and Mary Pat Norton also will have chances to qualify for sectionals in individual events during the BSC meet.

FOOD FOR FINES

For the month of November, the Morrill Memorial Library will accept donations of non-perishable food for any fines incurred for overdue materials. For each overdue item, patrons may bring in a donation of food such as soup, fruit, vegetables, powdered milk, tuna, boxed meals, peanut butter, jelly, etc., which will be delivered to the Norwood Ecumenical Food Pantry. No candy, please. Even if a patron owes no fines, the library will gladly accept donations of food or money for the food pantry. Money is often needed to purchase toiletries, milk, diapers or formula in emergency situations. Fines for overdue materials normally go into the town's general fund, but town officials are happy to forego the money to benefit people in need. For more information, call (781) 769-0200.
