

Major DPW expansion proposed

Brad Cole
Staff Reporter

For the last decade, the Department of Public Works (DPW) has been looking for a new home. The current DPW Yard, located on Lyman Place, behind the Civic Center, is not adequate for the department's needs. Consequently, a nearly $11 million expansion at the existing site has been proposed by Director of Public Works Mark Ryan, Assistant Superintendent of Public Works Gary Schorer and other town officials, who feel this is the best option for the department.

Back in 2002, 19 sites were identified as possible locations for a new DPW Yard, with the final three locations being Hennessey Field, the old General Builders site on Pleasant Street and the current Lyman Place location. The Lyman Place site was seen as the third choice at the time. However, times have changed, as have needs, and the current DPW site is now considered the top choice.

"We feel strongly that the Public Works Department should stay at Lyman Place,"

Ryan said, and there are several advantages to doing so, specifically its location and the cost.

"Public Works remains centralized in Norwood," Ryan said. "The facility remains near other town offices."

General Manager John Carroll noted this benefit, saying, "I want them to stay there, Mark wants to stay there, and so does the Public Works team."

In addition, it is more cost effective to build on the exist-

BAC pilots could face sanctions

Brad Cole
Staff Reporter

The two Boston Air Charter (BAC) pilots involved in a March 17 incident at Norwood Memorial Airport could face the suspension or revocation of their licenses.

The Federal Aviation Administration (FAA) issued notices of proposed certificate action to the two pilots. The pilots' names have not been released at this time.

According to the FAA website, a certification action consists of either a suspension or revocation of a holder's certificate, or both. Suspensions can be for a fixed or indefinite period of time. Fixed suspensions are meant to deter future violations, while indefinite suspensions are meant to prevent a certificate holder from exercising the privileges of their certificate, until they successfully demonstrated the various requirements to hold the certificate. This usually culminates in a re-examination by the FAA Inspector. A certification action is likely to be issued when a serious violation of FAA regulations has occurred.

Airport Manager Russ Maguire confirmed the proposed certificate action, saying, "The FAA has initiated the pro-ing site, rather than create an entirely new DPW Yard. While there is still an estimated $10.8 million price tag, moving off site would increase that amount further.

There is no question a new DPW Yard is needed.

"We've been studying how to replace the very antiquated and inefficient current facility for too long now," Selectman Bill Plasko said, adding "Under state regulations, our site is inadequate now."

Selectman Michael Lyons said he was in favor of keeping the site at Lyman Place, and was glad to see progress being made.

"We've been talking about this for a very long time, and the talk was getting very cheap," Lyons said.

The current DPW Yard was built in 1952, and the needs of the department have changed dramatically since then. One of the biggest changes is the number and size of vehicles used by the department.

"Right now, we can house eight vehicles," Ryan said. "We have 36 vehicles that remain exposed to the elements."

In addition, several of these vehicles are simply too large to fit in the maintenance bays at the 1952 facility, meaning any repairs done to these vehicles must be done outside.

The facility does not have a wash bay on site, meaning vehicles cannot be washed there. Washing of vehicles is important, because during use, salt, calcium and other materials builds up and proper washing removes this build-up, extending a vehicle's usable life.

The expansion hopes to address these issues by increasing the size of the site and expanding to two off site locations, covering approximately 30,000 square feet of land. Ryan said they are in discussions with a neighbor on Lenox Street to see if they could purchase the land and utilize it for garage bays and vehicle storage. There are plans to install a pedestrian tunnel, which would connect this site to the main DPW Yard. The pedestrian tunnel would run underneath the train tracks and cost approximately $900,000.

In addition, there will be a 6,000 square foot off-site storage area, the location of which is to be determined. This site will be used to store seasonal equipment. During the summer, it will house winter equipment, and vice-versa. These two off-site locations are needed because there simply isn't room for them on the Lyman Place lot.

Ryan said their initial estimate places the cost at $10.8 million, and that includes the cost of the pedestrian tunnel and purchasing the land on Lenox Street.

Board of Selectmen Chairman Jerry Kelleher agreed that something needs to be done, but had some concerns with keeping the yard at the Lyman Street site.

"I'm not sure you're going to get what you need there, and it's a very congested area,"

Kelleher said, noting it abuts the Civic Center, which has a significant younger population.

Plasko noted that while Kelleher had some valid concerns with the site, the ongoing issues at the DPW Yard needed to be addressed.

"We have to do something," Plasko said. "We've waited way too long."

Even with some concerns, the Board of Selectmen unanimously approved placing an article on the next Special Town Meeting agenda requesting $35,000 to hire a consultant to review the initial design and provide a final cost estimate for a new facility at Lyman Place. This $35,000 figure was determined by taking the cost of the 2002 study and adjusting it for inflation, Director of Building and Grounds for the School Department Joseph McDonough said.

"I think [$35,000] is adequate," McDonough said, and the consultant hired will help address the issues present at the current site, such as the safety implications of having a larger DPW Yard in a congested area.

Selectman Helen Abdallah-Donohue added, "I think we have to spend the money to get the specific expertise for this project."

Now, the DPW Yard falls into the hands of Town Meeting members, who will have to vote on hiring this consultant at the upcoming Special Town Meeting.

TAXING ARGUMENTS

Amid the hubbub of a four-way race for governor (an engaging soap opera, if nothing else) and a national focus on congressional races, this year's slate of ballot questions may be getting short shrift.

We may all know what they are, but there has been little else. In particular, the two tax-related questions are generating a lot of the focus.

We are not advocating for or against either of these initiatives. Not yet, at least, but we are making the case that voters should look past the slanted, self-serving TV commercials and radio ads and weigh their impacts on both government and their local businesses.

Question 1 would remove the Massachusetts sales tax on alcoholic beverages and alcohol where they are already subject to a separate excise tax under state law.

Yet again, a sin tax is being used to build the state's coffers while perpetuating an ever-increasing shift to a "nanny state." Advocates of the tax (including Kitty Dukakis at a recent City Hall Plaza rally) miss the mark when they try to equate it with helping reduce alcohol abuse and making sure state-subsidized treatment services are preserved. Both are specious arguments.

But, on the flip side, we have to ask how often it is that people stop buying booze, or buy less because a few extra cents were thrown onto the bill. When was the last time you decided which bottle of wine to buy, or which six-pack to bag, based on state taxes?

Accept, for the sake of argument, that the actual impact is minimal on consumers. Adding a new tax that directly impacts small business owners - no matter how slightly - is still wrong-headed. Liquor storeowners, whether the pro-temperance folks like it or not, are an important core of our small business community. If their sales are even slightly impacted by the tax, it is still a hit to their bottom line and every lost business opportunity will start to add up. In a floundering economy, is it really fair to add to the burden of any small business?

A similar initiative, Question 3, is even more controversial. It would reduce the state sales and use tax rates (6.25 percent as of September 2009) to 3 percent as of Jan. 1.

There is an overlooked caveat to the proposed law. If it is determined that the 3 percent rates would not produce enough revenue to meet the state's bond or contractual obligations, the reduction could be adjusted.

As we said regarding the liquor tax increase, one has to be honest about the real impact of the sales tax, in particular the more recent boost of 1.25 percent that we are told adds about $633 million a year to state revenues. We defy anyone to tell us, truthfully and with a straight face, that the extra 1.25 percent made you not buy something. Maybe it all adds up over time, but only the cheapest or poorest among us were really slammed by coughing up that extra penny.

Even though our total sales tax is, relatively speaking, not too bad compared to many other cities and states (in Los Angeles, add nearly 10 percent to your receipt) it is still costly for both consumers and merchants, even before the recent jump up.

Although, technically, we are required to add any avoided sales tax on our taxes each year, we all know that plenty of folks run over the border to New Hampshire any time they buy a big ticket item. Would a lower tax rate keep business within our borders and possibly prompt even more spending? Maybe, even though we find it astounding that so many rush out to stores each year for the summer tax-holiday — would a store really be successful by otherwise trumpeting a special, 6.25 percent off sale?

There are a lot of moving parts here that go beyond just knee-jerk anti-tax reactions or reflexive "we can't cut services" pleas.

If we had any say in the matter, we'd propose a more creative approach. Could we lower the tax rate by two to three percentage points, but add a one percent local option similar to what was done with the meal tax? Would keeping that extra revenue local help our cash-strapped communities more than seeing it drain into the bottomless pit of state spreadsheets and shuffling off to keep bloated public pensions afloat?

As for those who complain about the impact a tax rollback would have on teachers, public safety and social services, well here is a way to get that money even more directly into the hands of those who ensure those functions on a street-by-street level.

The two tax proposals are far more complicated than the black and white arguments being tossed at us. As you consider your vote next month, make sure you carefully consider your own wallet and the local businesses that are our best hope of fueling prosperity.

Letters to the Editor

THANKS TO JOHN CARROLL

To The Editor:

Recently while paying a bill at the Town Hall, I stopped by the Town Manager's office. Mr. Carroll was in and I asked him a personal favor. My request had nothing to do with town issues or politics, I was just asking about something I had seen. He took my address and said he would look into it. Believe me, my request was nowhere near a priority in my mind, but like anything big or small it was important to him. A few weeks later, I received a note in the mail, and my request was fulfilled.

Mr. Carroll, the majority of residents and I wish you could give us another thirty years of service. Thanks for your thoughtfulness and guidance.

WE HAVE AN OPPORTUNITY

To The Editor:

We, the voters and taxpayers of Massachusetts, have a GOLDEN OPPORTUNITY to lower our taxes by defeating Question 1 (Sales Tax on alcoholic Beverages) with a "YES" vote as well as a "Yes" vote on Question 3 (Sales and Use Tax Rates).

By this action, we will have sent the Legislators a loud and clear message; "enough". We have had it with high taxes. Take a lesson from the people who have lost their jobs, on how they are trying to survive on unemployment checks.

Here's a clue and tip: SPEND ONLY ON ESSENTIALS, TIGHTEN YOUR BELT. Try it you'll like it!

A sound you can live with!

In an effort to better educate communities throughout the U.S. about smoke alarm recommendations, the nonprofit National Fire Protection Association (NFPA) is promoting "Smoke Alarms: A Sound You Can Live With!" as the theme for this year's Fire Prevention Week campaign, October 3-9, which Norwood is supporting locally. NFPA has been the official sponsor of Fire Prevention Week for 88 years.

"Many homes in Norwood may not have any smoke alarms, not enough smoke alarms, alarms that are too old, or alarms that are not working," says George Morrice, spokesman of the Norwood Fire Department. "We want residents to understand that working smoke alarms are needed in every home, on every level (including the basement), outside each sleeping area and inside each bedroom. And, if a smoke alarm is 10 years old or older, it needs to be replaced."

According to FF Morrice, smoke alarms can mean the difference between life and death in a fire. NFPA statistics show that working smoke alarms cut the chance of dying in a fire nearly in half. But they must be working properly to do so. The association's data shows that many homes have smoke alarms that aren't working or maintained properly, usually because of missing, disconnected or dead batteries. Roughly two-thirds of all home fire deaths result from fires in homes with no smoke alarms or no working smoke alarms.

The NFPA and Norwood Fire Department agree that interconnected smoke alarms offer the best protection; when one sounds, they all do. This is particularly important in larger or multi-story homes, where the sound from distant smoke alarms may be reduced to the point that it may not be loud enough to provide proper warning, especially for sleeping individuals. The Norwood Fire Department offers the following tips for making sure smoke alarms are maintained and working properly:

- * Test smoke alarms at least once a month using the test button, and make sure everyone in your home knows their sound.
- * If an alarm "chirps," warning the battery is low, replace the battery right away.
- * Replace all smoke alarms, including alarms that use 10-year batteries and hard-wired alarms, when they're 10 years old (or sooner) if they do not respond properly when tested.
- * Never remove or disable a smoke alarm.
- * To find out more about Fire Prevention Week and "Smoke Alarms: A Sound You Can Live With!," visit NFPA's Web site at www.firepreventionweek.org.

cess," but could not comment extensively on the matter.

"Because of the ongoing litigation, we can't really say much," Maguire said, only confirming that the FAA issued notices of proposed certificate action in September.

Neither Christopher Poreda, Regional Counsel for the FAA New England Region, nor Jim Peters of the FAA Public Affairs Office could comment on the action at this time.

"We don't comment on those types of action until they're resolved completely," Peters said.

The pilots are cited for violating FAA regulations 14 cfr 91.129(i), or failure of a pilot to obtain clearance for takeoff and taxing, and 14 cfr 91.13(a), for careless or reckless operation of an aircraft.

BAC President Al Bishop said the notices of proposed certificate action would be sent directly to the pilots themselves, not through the company. He had no further comment regarding the situation at this time.

The certificate action relates to the pilots' March 17 actions, when they took off from the closed Runway 35 at 3:30 and 4:20 p.m. Due to flooding conditions, Maguire closed the airport on March 15, and informed the businesses at the airport of its closing. While the airport was reopened to helicopters on March 16, it remained closed to fixed-wing aircraft when the BAC planes took off on March 17.

The two BAC pilots left runway 35 to perform an organ delivery flight at the request of the New England Organ Bank. While this flight proved to be successful, Maguire said taking off from the closed runway presented several obvious safety concerns, and if something had gone wrong, the results could have been devastating.

Their decision to take off led to a quick response from the Norwood Airport Commission, which unanimously voted to suspend BAC's commercial license at their April 6 meeting. The vote was to suspend their license until June 30, at which point BAC must wait three months before they could reappear as an initial applicant.

BAC appealed this decision, and requested a preliminary injunction against the Norwood Airport Commission to prevent them from acting upon this judgment. This injunction request was denied by Justice of the Superior Court Thomas A. Connors in April.

On May 5, BAC filed a lawsuit against Maguire, accusing him of "making false statements of facts about BAC which caused BAC harm" and alleged he "intentionally interfered with BAC's relationship with its customers."

Civic Center improvements complete

Brad Cole
Staff Reporter

One of the construction projects approved at the May Special Town Meeting has been completed, the other is close to completion. The security improvements to the entrance of the Civic Center were finished in late September, while work in the General Manager's Office in Town Hall is ongoing.

Town Meeting members appropriated $45,000 for security improvements at the Civic Center. The work involved pushing the front wall of the main office forward, toward the Civic Center entrance, and setting up a counter window to serve the public entering the building. In addition, there is a counter where people can fill out paperwork and registration forms without blocking access to the service window.

Because of the center's previous layout, it was difficult for someone sitting at the secretary's desk to monitor the building's entrance, making it easy for staff members to lose track of who was entering and exiting the building. The new layout should alleviate this problem.

Recreation Director Jerry Miller said the new service window allows staff to see out into a wide open entrance, giving them about ten feet of added visibility, noting, "The staff can see the users, and the users can see the staff."

The Civic Center held its grand re-opening with its new entrance on Monday, Oct. 4, and Miller feels the new layout will benefit the building. It will make it easier for them to see who is coming in and out, control the flow of pedestrian traffic at the front of the site and communicate with the building's many users.

"It changes the whole situation," General Manager John Carroll said. "It opens up the office dramatically."

The town hired Theriault LLC of Stoneham for this project, paying them $21,600 for their work, which took place in August and September. They completed the work at the Civic Center during the week of Sept. 27.

While the Civic Center site is done, work continues at the General Manager's Office in Town Hall.

"It's coming along slowly but surely," Carroll said, estimating there is still about a month of construction left before the work is finished.

The office was damaged in an Apr. 2 fire that caused an estimated $200,000 worth of damage. The

Public Higher Ed, UMass Making Headlines

By J. Keith Motley, PhD, UMass Boston Chancellor

When the economy first slid into recession two years ago, we heard a lot about how prospective college students and their parents were taking a second look at public universities to save on the costs of higher education. As chancellor of the University of Massachusetts Boston, I'm always happy to learn that more people are considering enrolling here, but I'm particularly pleased to see news that recognizes not only the value but also the worth of a public education.

For example, a recent article in the Wall Street Journal reported that U.S. employers are more inclined to hire public university graduates than private college and even Ivy League graduates. In a survey of nearly 500 large companies, nonprofits, and government agencies, the Journal reported, 19 of the top 25 schools preferred by recruiters are state universities. Of course, we at UMass Boston are always proud to contribute our own graduates to the pool of sought-after public higher education alumni.

Closer to home, we made headlines across Boston and the Commonwealth for earning a spot on The Times of London list of the world's top 200 universities. The University of Massachusetts system was ranked 56th, the best public university in New England and behind only Harvard, MIT, and Tufts in the state. I'm proud that the work done by our tremendously talented faculty, staff, and students system-wide has been recognized and honored in this way.

Our programs and services bear out our accolades. This university community is committed to excellence and has much to offer, from the most innovative degree programs – such as our PhD in green chemistry, the first in the world – to our newest school, University College, which will offer broad educational options for professional and lifelong learners, to our College of Nursing and Health Sciences, which is well known for its outstanding curricula and for being the leading provider of nurses in the state.

It's no wonder that the world is taking notice. Indeed, enrollment at our university is higher than it's ever been, with over 15,400 undergraduate and graduate students enrolled this fall.

I invite you to also take notice and explore Boston's only public research university at our Open House on Saturday, October 16; check-in begins at 8:30 a.m. You'll get the chance to chat with faculty, staff, and students on our oceanfront campus, attend helpful workshops, learn about our academic programs and student organizations, check out nearby housing options, and take a guided tour.

To register for Open House 2010, visit us online at www.umb.edu or call us at 617-287-6000. I hope we'll see you there.

The lights are on!

— “It's starting to look like a school” —

Brad Cole
Staff Reporter

The new Norwood High School looks more and more like a completed building each day. A major milestone was reached on Oct. 1, when lights were turned on in the A and B wing of the new school.

“The lights are on in the classrooms [on the third floor],” said Michael Moisé, Executive Manager for Agostini Construction. “We just lit those up this morning. It's nice- it's starting to look like a school.”

In addition, locker installation on the third floor is complete, and flooring and countertop work continues. The third floor is the farthest along, as the crews on site are working from the top down.

The A and B wings of the building represent the classroom area of the new school. The C and D wings include the auditorium, cafeteria, gymnasium and library. Work continues in these areas as well, but they aren't as far along as the A and B wings.

Quarry floor tiles are being installed on the cafeteria floors, and painters have made their way to that area of the school, where they are tasked with painting the ceiling.

The gymnasium hit a milestone recently, as drywall work in that area was completed. Plaster work in that area began this week.

Work continues on the auditorium, which they hope to have done and ready for next May's annual Town Meeting. The room can seat 800 people, and while seating has not been installed yet, progress continues. They recently installed rigging and a projector screen in the area, and will have the room ready by the building's substantial completion date of May 15, 2010. It is possible this room will be used for next year's annual Town Meeting.

The big news outside the building involves the installation of the façade, which is based on the ornamental design above the old school's entrance. Back in February, the 16-foot long and seven-foot high piece of wood was taken down and used to create a smaller replica of the façade, which was placed on the new building last Tuesday.

The replica façade is just one element of the old school appearing on the new building. While the clock tower isn't making the trip from the school on the hill to the new site, a similar one will be present atop the new Norwood High School. The company assembling the new clock tower is the New Hampshire based Duro Fiber, a group that molds fiberglass composites to meet the needs of architectural restoration and modern design projects.

“They really do a nice job,” Moisé said.

Moisé estimates the clock tower will arrive on site by mid to late October, at which point they will install it atop the new school.

Work at the football field behind the building is ongoing. A trench drain was installed around the perimeter of the field, and the installation of bleachers was completed last Friday. The field itself is undergoing further drainage and grading work.

The recent rain was used to help test the roof. Bryan Jarvis said they take advantage of every storm, and use it to check on leaking in the roof and the building.

“They've been down to almost next to no leaks for the past few months,” Jarvis said, and continue to tighten up the roof and make sure no further leakage occurs in the building.

Moisé added, “We're always looking out for leaks.”

No painted lines at High School football field

Fall installation a possibility

Brad Cole
Staff Reporter

The Permanent Building Construction Committee unanimously approved a not-to-exceed $30,000 Construction Change Directive (CCD) to have lines sewn into the football field at the new Norwood High School.

In total, it will cost $34,950 to sow the lines into the AstroTurf field. The lines will be fabricated at the AstroTurf factory in Atlanta, Georgia, and represent permanent line work, meaning they will remain visible during the field's lifespan. Three fields will be lined: it will cost $6,650 to furnish and install the Men's Lacrosse field, $6,800 to furnish and install the Women's Lacrosse field and $21,500 to furnish and install numbers, arrows and hash marks for the football field. There are $7,500 worth of credits associated with eliminating the cost of painting the field, meaning the net cost for inlaid lines and logos is $27,450.

The field itself is being manufactured by AstroTurf and will be installed by the Canton-based All American Sports Group, LLC, a certified AstroTurf installer.

“This field will have hefted in the two lacrosse fields and the football field lines and numbers,” Project Manager Steve Theran of Compass Project Management said. “These gentlemen here (Athletic Director Brian McDonough and Director of Buildings and Grounds Joseph McDonough) will not have to do any painting at all.”

Superintendent James Hayden signed off on the plan, and spoke highly of the idea. He noted that painted lines look good when they are initially painted in, but as the season continues, the wear and tear starts to show. With in-laid lines, this wear and tear will not be present.

Wear and tear on painted lines would be a major issue, as the football team will be utilizing the site six days a week, whether they are practicing or playing a game. Add the Men's Cats might not like getting wet, but several joined their owners at the Grace Episcopal Church on Sunday for the annual Blessing of the Animals. Dozens of parishioners brought their pets, including cats, dogs, hermit crabs and fish, to the Oct. 3 event, where they were sprinkled with holy water and blessed by Reverend R. John Brockmann.

While this was Brockmann's first Blessing of the Animals at the Grace Episcopal Church, the event is a long-standing tradition there, going back to 1986. The event is open to all, and guests were invited to bring their pets and stuffed animals for blessing.

"I thought the event was very good," Brockmann said. "It was a kid-friendly and creature-friendly service."

One unique element of Sunday's ceremony was the Prayer for Lost Pets.

"A number of people brought that up," Brockmann said. "They thought that would be important to them."

Usually, the Blessing of the Animals focuses on those pets present, but this extension to past pets allows people to express their love for their animal friends who have passed.

"There is a little bit of grief in all of us for animals we lost," Brockmann said, and the Prayer of Lost Pets was just one way to express that grief and remember and honor a late pet.

Despite the large crowd, singing and blessing, most of the animals were well behaved during the ceremony. Cats and dogs got along, at least for a 45-minute period on Sunday, which might be a blessing in and of itself. While there was the occasional howl, the animals behaved, waiting patiently outside of the church.

The Blessing of the Animals is traditionally held on the Sunday closest to Oct. 4, the feast day for Saint Francis of Assisi. St. Francis is known as the patron saint of animals and the environment, and numerous churches throughout the world celebrate him in such a fashion.

The service featured a retelling of the Wolf of Gubbio story. The tale was told with Brockmann in the role of St. Francis and Puppeteer Ron Comeau as the wolf. In this tale, a wolf was terrorizing the city of Gubbio, until tamed by St. Francis, acting on behalf of God.

Rev. Brockmann is the new rector at Grace Episcopal Church, joining the church community in July. He will formally be installed as the tenth Rector of Grace Church with an Institution and Induction ceremony on Wednesday, Oct. 20 at 7 p.m.

Scholarship to Jillian Goss

Jillian Goss was recently awarded the fourth $500 scholarship in memory of Viola Sastavickas. This scholarship is given annually to a current or former employee or volunteer of the Morrill Memorial Library. Jillian began working as a library page in 2007. She continued to work part-time at the library for three years in the both the circulation and children's departments.

After graduation from Norwood High School with the Class of 2010, Jillian began her undergraduate work at the University of Massachusetts in Boston this fall.

When Mrs. Sastavickas passed away in 2006, her children made a generous donation to the library to endow a perpetual $500 scholarship in respect and affection." In both 2009 and 2010 the Sastavickas family made donations to ensure that the scholarship would be given to a deserving recipient.

BHRTS offers Cosmetology course

The Blue Hills Regional Technical School in Canton, is offering an Adult Cosmetology course. The 1,000-hour program, which usually takes students 14 months to complete, meets year-round Monday through Thursday from 5 to 9 p.m., except during school vacations and holidays. It covers all the key fundamentals. Students begin working on clients at 250 hours. Classroom theory, demonstrations, and mannequin practice take place, along with an opportunity to network with other cosmetology students. In the remaining 750 hours, the focus will be state-of-the art, authentic clinic settings training. At the conclusion, students will be ready to take the state-licensing exam.

The program is a great value for those who sign up because it is publicly subsidized. Since the number of students is fairly limited, each one receives a significant amount of individualized attention. Students (the current crop ranges in age from 20 to 50) learn new techniques and start practicing them, either on each other or on clients who come in.

For more information about the Adult Cosmetology program at Blue Hills Regional in Canton, email Deborah Lowrance at dlowrance@bluehills.org, or call 781-828-5800 x220.

Stangs gallop over Wellesley

It's often said that tragedy comes in threes. For the football players of Norwood who endured a trio of losses to open the season, this was especially true.

But all that is now in the past, following Saturday's 34-14 victory over Wellesley.

There is a palpable difference in the demeanor of players during the first practice after the first win of the season.

The taste of success typically keeps their practice efforts intense, but there are a lot more smiles on the field.

This was the case Monday afternoon outside Norwood High School.

Following a series of formation drills, the players all crowded around first-year head coach John Sarianides, who passionately praised his players for going all out the weekend before, disproving nay sayers with the win.

"I felt good for the kids. We played great in all three phases: offense, defense and special teams," said Sarianides of Saturday's win. "All along I've been saying part of getting a program back on track is getting some breaks along the way. We finally got them Saturday. We created turnovers, we recovered the ball, and we were able to capitalize with two scores on turnovers."

Andrew Alty led the scoring effort for the Mustangs, rushing a total of 156 yards, which included three touchdowns.

"The team played well. We did everything we could to get the win," said Alty. "It feels good now that we showed everyone that we can finally win. Hopefully the doubters will stop doubting us."

Quarterback Tommy Munro accounted for the two remaining touchdowns from Norwood, with a pass to Peter Kelly followed by a rushing touchdown. Munro went 7-10 for 111 yards.

Norwood's momentum was sparked in the Mustangs' first drive, when Munro's pass was tipped by a Wellesley player, only to

Stangs make splash

Zack Huffman

The nomadic swim team of Norwood has talent and they're generating wins but they still have no home.

According to coach Kim Goodwin, this season has been a sort of building year for the Mustangs, after the departure of 10 graduating seniors from last year's squad.

"Last year we were 9-3," she said. "It's tough when you only have 22-23 kids. That's almost half your team and one of them was a state champion. The others were top scorers, so we knew it was going to be a tough year."

According to Goodwin, at the beginning of the season, each player set their own goals for times they wanted to achieve in their own events.

"Every swimmer has made their own individual gains," said Goodwin. "A lot of them have already surpassed that and we're not even halfway through the season."

According to Goodwin, four swimmers have qualified for sectionals in individual events, while all three relay teams have qualified.

"We've already had just as many individuals qualifying for sectionals and state as we did last year," she said. "Hopefully, we'll have a couple more."

So far, the Mustangs have gone 2-3, but they're on track in terms of qualifying swimmers for sectionals.

"We've been facing a lot of big teams," said captain Bailey Lambert. "We've had some tough competition so far. We've come out with two wins and we're hoping for some more."

According to Goodwin, Norwood's team lacks the depth that many of their opponents have.

"We are always outnumbered," she said. "We're going against teams with 55 or 60 swimmers. We also don't have a JV team because we don't have a pool at home to practice in. Until we get our own facility we'll be behind the eight ball."

Most recently, the Mustangs defeated Marshfield, 95-79.

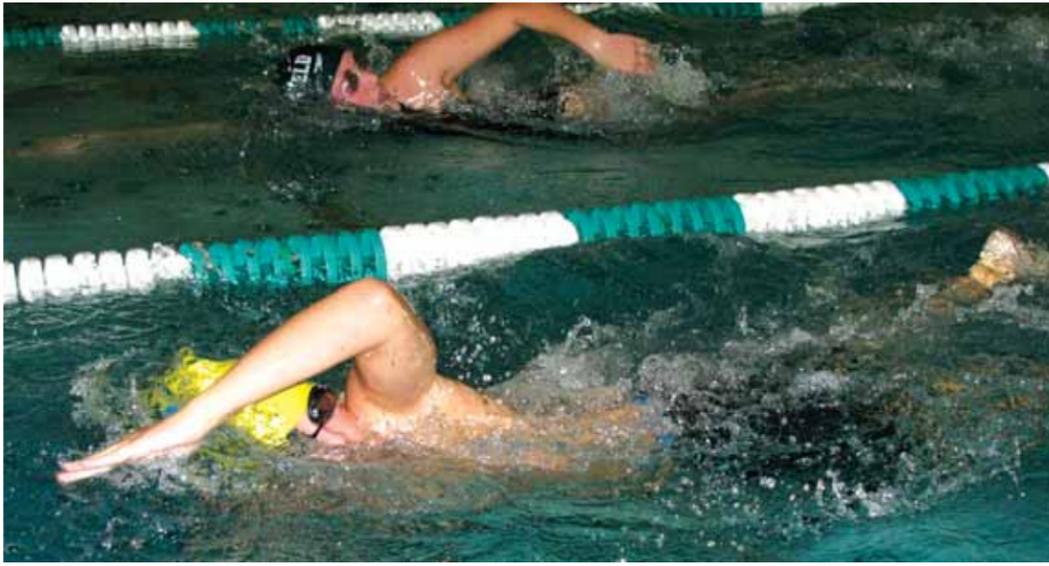

This win came from support from first-place finishes from Molly Shilo (200 and 500 freestyle), Alex Metta (100 backstroke), Marguerite Lee (100 breaststroke) and Will Higgins (50 freestyle).

"I'd say the season is going really well," said captain Katherine Lee. "All of the kids have been trying really hard since this summer. Everybody is improving and we're seeing a lot of improvement overall."

According to Lee, diving has been the biggest area of improvement for the swim team.

"In the years past, we never really had a solid diving team. This year we've had a lot more girls go out for diving," she said. "Mary Pat Norton is probably our all-star diver."

Recently, Norton along with Allie Ippolito and Shannon Wilson swept the diving team from Marshfield.

According to Lambert, an overall increase in interest in swimming has allowed the team to excel in what might have otherwise been a typical rebuilding year.

"We've been getting a lot of new people involved. They're doing awesome so far," she said. "Everyone is rising to the challenge. Everyone is consistently dropping time every week. It's a lot of hard work and everyone is doing awesome."

land in the hands of Kelly who completed the pass 50-yards to throw the first set of points on the board.

Coming into the game, the Mustangs not only had a 0-3 record, but they had just come off a pair of heartbreaking losses, one in which they blew a 14-0 lead at Milton and another in which they fought back from 14-0 deficit at Needham only to come up short.

"The kids really felt, after the Needham game, that if they could put it together they're a pretty good football team," said Sarianides. "I think they finally did that."

According to Munro, the win serves as a big boost to team morale.

"I know we needed a win," he said. "Wellesley came in with a pretty good record and we were 0-3. We needed to get a win to show the rest of the league that we're going to be here for the rest of the year. We're not an automatic win. It was kind of like a statement game for the whole league."

Sarianides hopes that the win can boost the Mustangs when they visit Framingham. At the end of practice Monday afternoon, Sarianides re-mined his team that Framingham "embarrassed" Norwood last year and encouraged the Mustangs to use that previous loss to fuel their fire for a win.

"I feel like we finally turned the corner. A win like that against a quality team like Wellesley is big for us. I'm hoping we can carry that into Framingham this weekend," said Sarianides. "This is one win. Our record is still not what we want. This is a team that last year put a hurting on us. I want these kids to use that as motivation."

Golfers on the cusp of a state bid

Zack Huffman
Staff Reporter

Despite taking a five-player hit to graduation, the golf team at Norwood has managed to rebound and make a run at state once again this season.

"Last year we had a really good squad," said head coach Slava Herentz. "We made state for the first time in several years."

Although the loss of players can often throw a team into a tough rebuilding year, according to Herentz, the Mustangs were able to reload.

"We lost five starting graduating seniors. This year I had 26 guys try out and I kept 16," he said. "Fortunately we were able to reload with the numbers that we had. If not for the number of freshman and sophomores who tried out, I don't think we would have been where we are right now."

According to Herentz, three of his starting eight players are freshman, which means the team can only get more successful season to season.

"I've been so excited with how much interest there has been in Norwood golf," he said. "It's a good sign, because these young guys are eager to learn and they have the fight in them to want to be better."

The team's current record is 3-5-1

"We're competing with every team in the league," said Herentz. "Golf is often fickle. Sometimes you get a very talented freshman or sophomore who just comes and really takes the team to a different level. We just have solid players down the board that will shoot good numbers."

According to Herentz, although many of Norwood's opponents have had one or two studs on the team, the Mustangs are full of multi-sport athletes who are ready to compete.

"A lot of teams out there have one or two guys that are always practicing at country clubs," he said. "My guys are athletes, they're hockey players, baseball players and they compete with them and beat them."

The three lead players, in order, are Adam Kewriga, Jake Ranalli and Mark Maggio.

The Mustangs have been under the gun to make it into the post season. In order to make state, Norwood had to beat Needham on Wednesday and will have to win against Walpole next week.

"Obviously we need two more wins to make state," he said last week. "We have Needham and Walpole. Both of which are going to be tough matches."

Luckily, both games are scheduled to be played at home.

"I feel like we have one of the best home course advantages in the league," said Herentz. "Norwood Country Club is a unique course. At most courses if you get a great hit, you're going to make it on the fairway, or you'll make it on the green if you have a great approach. At Norwood you really can kind of trick the course if you know it well, which my guys do."

According to Herentz, by knowing all of the kinks on the course, his players have the advantage at home.

"They know how to cut corners over trees, around branches and things like that," he said. "It really helps for my guys to know the course extremely well to get that extra edge."

On Monday they were playing host to Needham, but inclement weather postponed their game until Wednesday, which took place after The Record went to press.

Next Tuesday, the team will be making its last regular season stand when it hosts Walpole at 3:30 p.m.

Norwood loves its sports

So, I've been covering Norwood sports for about three weeks now and if there's one thing I've learned it's that people in this fine town are enthusiastic about their high school sports.

I wasn't entirely sure what to expect from the town when I started covering sports last month. I've seen some really good sports, but then I've also seen some really awful sports.

I admit that I was a little worried when I saw some of the results from the season openers, such as the football team's first two losses. That was before I saw any of the teams play.

I will also admit that I was wrong to ever doubt the Mustangs.

Since I've started, every game I've seen, win or lose has featured the Mustangs fighting tooth and nail for dominance.

Just ask the members of Norwood's football team who welcomed Wellesley onto their turf last weekend and man-handled them.

The number of Norwood sports fans who have been reading my silly columns has also pleasantly surprised me. I'm at the point where no matter the sporting event, if Norwood is involved, and I show up, at least one person will recognize me and start up a conversation.

Zack Huffman

Just two weeks ago, I was all the way over at Needham High School for the football game when I was spotted by some hardcore Norwood football fans who insisted that I partake of the culinary spread in the back of their pickup truck.

I've also been greeted by Norwood fans supporting their team on the road, playing soccer in Dedham or swimming in Westwood.

Aside from the ego boost, I'm always happy to see that every Norwood team has a contingent of die-hard fans.

Although I have not covered any sports inside the City of Boston- besides politics- my experiences working in and around Atlanta have educated me to the fact, that people in the city just don't regard high school sports with the same level of importance that the suburbs do.

Maybe it's the fact that city teams are never as competitive as their suburban counterparts, or maybe it's just that fans in the city are too busy worrying that their cars are being broken into, the fact remains that the level of fanfare is not the same.

It's important to note that the community is behind the sports team of Norwood, because many of those beloved teams are in the midst of rebuilding or learning to compete with a new face at the coaching helm.

Last week, it was the football team to break their season skid. The week before it was the volleyball team. Who knows which team it will be next week that is boosted by a combination of hard work, natural talent and fan base ready to push when needed.

Also, I regret not being present for Norwood's football victory on the fields at Coakley Middle School. There is no doubt in my mind that the sidelines erupted in four weeks worth of pent-up cheer.

Lets keep that going Mustangs.

P.S. congratulations to golf coach Slava Heretz who got married last weekend. May your marriage be long and fruitful.

Jake Ranalli

This fall, the Mustangs have been out and about hitting the links.

Within the mix of accomplished putters has been junior Jake Ranalli, who has been keeping the Mustangs steady in the team's number two position.

"He's been exceptionally consistent," said coach Slava Heretz. "He's just been exceeding any expectations that I've had."

Ranalli has regularly been hitting in the low 30s, which Heretz says makes him stand out within the league.

According to Heretz, Ranalli is a relaxed individual who can keep a level head on and off the field.

"He's very easy going," he said. "I'd put some of the younger guys with him because they kind of feed off his relaxed demeanor. He can joke around with them and nothing really gets to him. That's the kind of player we're looking for."

Ranalli enjoys having the opportunity to look out for younger players.

"Usually I try to look out for them a lot," he said. "I like to see them play well."

Aside from a relaxed attitude, Heretz also praised Ranalli's sense of good sportsmanship.

"He doesn't take the game too seriously, but can focus when we need him to," he said. "He's very easy to get along with. He's respectful to opponents. He shows good sportsmanship, on and off the course."

According to Ranalli, last season he spent his time at the tail end of the line up. This season, he's been able to move up due his practice regimen.

"He's really improved a lot since I first saw him freshman year," said Heretz. "He's really matured."

Although Ranalli visits the course at the Norwood Country Club on an almost daily basis, during the summer he played a lot of courses around Massachusetts.

Ranalli also enjoys hockey, but he feels his greatest talents are on the greens.

"I love playing hockey, but I'm best at golf, so I try to focus more on golf," he said.

Prayer to the Blessed Virgin
(Never known to fail!)

Oh, most beautiful flower of Mt. Carmel, fruitful vine, splendor of Heaven, Blessed Mother of the Son of God, Immaculate Virgin, assist me in this necessity. Oh Star of the Sea, help me and show me herein you are my mother. Oh Holy Mary, Mother of God, Queen of Heaven and Earth, I humbly beseech thee from the bottom of my heart to succor me in my necessity (make request). There are none that can withstand your power. Oh Mary, conceived without sin, pray for us who have recourse to thee (three times). Holy Mary, I place this cause in your hands (three times). Say this prayer for three consecutive days and then you must publish and it will be granted to you.

fire was caused by older line voltage wiring overheating, due to water seepage, causing a wall clock to ignite and fall onto some combustible material in the Executive Secretary's office.
 Most of the damage was confined to that office, but there was light to moderate smoke damage throughout Town Hall, and water damage to the offices of Town Manager, John Carroll, Assistant General Manager Bernie Cooper and Veterans' Agent Teddy Mulvehill.

The town hired Eagle Point Builders to repair the site, paying them $84,366 for the work. Eagle Point Builders was the lowest of three bidders, beating out Paul J. Rogan and Kneeland for the job. Eagle Point Builders has done numerous repairs on site, including work on the damaged carpentry and wiring.
 "There is activity there every single day," Carroll said, saying there are usually two or three workers at the site.
 New furniture has been ordered for the site, and most of the area has been repainted. Only Cooper's office needs to be repainted at this point, and that will be the last part of the repair process.

 Since Apr. 2, Carroll, Cooper and others located in the damaged rooms were relocated to Room 24 of Town Hall, also known as the Finance Commission Room. Both the Finance Commission and weekly High School community meetings, which are traditionally held there, have been relocated, often meeting in Room 11 or 12 of Town Hall, depending on availability.

and Women's lacrosse teams, and the field will get a considerable amount of use. This use would damage painted on lines; it should not adversely affect sewn-in lines.
 "It would last, hopefully, as long as the turf would last," Hayden said.
 The turf field comes with an eight year warranty, and Joseph McDonough hopes to get at least 10 years of use out of it. He also spoke in favor of in laid lines.

"It just makes sense from a financial standpoint to do this," he said.
 It costs approximately $1,500 to paint each field. There are two lacrosse fields and one football field at the site, and they would need at least four paintings per year, at a cost of $6,000 to the town. Over a 10 year period, it would cost approximately $60,000 to repaint the lines.
 "We're looking at a five year pay back," Joseph McDonough said.

 Brian McDonough agreed with this assessment, saying, "You're much better off if you can get the lines built in. It would be really beneficial for maintenance."
 Members of the PBCC agreed with this assessment.
 "It costs him $1,500 per sport to repaint," PBCC member Ed McKenna said. "The numbers just say this is the smart thing to do."
 As an added bonus, Monday's CCD approval means the field could be installed this fall. Theran said the field, complete with in-laid lines and logos, will be manufactured by Nov. 1, meaning the field could hypothetically be installed during the month of November.
 "This will facilitate a fall installation, if it will happen," Theran said, noting that a spring 2011 installation is still a possibility. The approval simply makes it possible for All American Sports Group to install the field in November.
