Neither the pouring rain nor the bitter cold wind could keep Norwood residents from honoring their loved ones and getting into the holiday spirit, as Norwood Circle of Hope held its 14th annual Luminary Night on the Town Common on Dec. 7.

From 5 p.m. onward, the Town Common was lit up by hundreds of luminary bag lanterns, each scrawled with a personal message of peace and love to family, friends, veterans, and neighbors.

“The basic cause for this remembrance is to further an opportunity for people to receive help ... That is the blessing,” Monsignor Paul Ryan of Saint Catherine of Siena Church told the crowd gathered before the gazebo. “You’re a sign of all these little remembrances for all those who have gone before you ... It’s a sign of light.”

Monsignor Ryan then related a story about Mother Teresa and related her experience with light to the people of Norwood.

“That’s the light that you bring to those in need ... some help for the people of Norwood who face sickness beyond their means and they come and they knock on your door and it is open. That kind of light shines deep within us,” Monsignor Ryan said. “It’s enriching, it’s real and we all can bring that light, especially at a time in the year when there is peace on earth, good will to men and women.”

And what a light it was, as Norwood Circle of Hope president Timothy McDonough said that they were on pace

Norwood Arena DVD release a success

Local motor sports enthusiasts, shoppers, and history buffs packed into Custom Art Framing and Gallery on Central Street on Dec. 5 to celebrate the release of the Norwood Arena - The Movie DVD.

The film, made by friends and Norwood community members Jerry Kelleher and Brendan King, revisited the stories and history of a now defunct racecar track in Norwood, called the Norwood Arena, which closed in 1972.

During the film they interviewed drivers, crew members, and other track hangarounds, who told a story of not only a bygone era in American sports, but also very personal tales about a tight-knit community in Norwood. The first screening at Norwood Theatre, on Sept. 20, sold out so quickly that a second screening had to be arranged.

And the enthusiasm continued on Dec. 5, as people from all over the region stopped in to pick up a copy of the special Director’s Cut version of the film. Also available were Norwood Arena t-shirts, stickers, hats and pint glasses. Refreshments were provided including Narragansett Beer, the same beer that was sold at the racetrack.

On the walls was a special photograph exhibit, “Norwood Arena in Pictures,” which was curated by Kelleher and King, and then framed and arranged by Custom Art Framing owner Julie Vecchio.

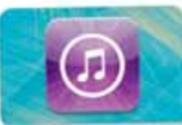

“It was tremendous. It was great that the response has been overwhelming to the movie, which has really taken on a life of its own. People want to see it, share

Airport still caught up in complaints

Sam Nickerson
Staff Reporter

The Norwood Airport Commission met only briefly in open session during its monthly meeting on Nov. 25, spending a good amount of time in executive session, but tensions regarding several complaints with the FAA remained apparent.

The meeting began with an update on the Wildlife Hazard Assessment for the Taxiway Alpha relocation project by Jeff Adler of engineering firm Dubois & King, Inc.

Adler said that one of the main challenges was finding a mitigation site to offset the impact to wetlands during the project.

The Massachusetts Department of Transportation (MassDOT) Aeronautics division would be reaching out to MassDOT's real estate wing to see if there were any available properties that would suffice. The land does not have to abut the airport, but the Department of Environmental Protection would prefer it to be as close to Norwood as possible, within the watershed, and ideally be a previously disturbed site that can be returned to wetlands, Adler said.

Adler also reported that the mitigation site was the last major component needed before they could start filing for permits.

During a review of October meeting minutes for approval, Commissioner Michael Sheehan requested "everyone reconfirms their vote on all matters of the minutes."

"All the votes show as unanimous, and yet I continue to read in papers after meetings that somehow people don't agree with the vote," Sheehan said. "All of the votes taken on Oct. 8 were unanimous and I'd like to have the commission reconfirm all those votes."

After the review of meeting minutes, chairman Mark Ryan said he would deviate from the agenda and entertain a motion to head into executive session to discuss recent Part 13 complaints against the airport.

The first complaint, filed by Boston Executive Helicopters (BEH) this summer, was removed this fall by BEH with prejudice to reopen it in the future. According to BEH president Christopher Donovan, the complaint was withdrawn so that BEH could explore other means of addressing its grievances at the airport, including potential litigation.

The second complaint was filed by Commissioner Oulton Hughes, Jr., though the Airport Commission said it had not received anything from the FAA regarding the complaint.

Before going into executive session, Sheehan asked Town Counsel Brandon Moss several questions about member confidentiality regarding topics discussed in executive session, as well as conflict of interest laws.

Moss said that all information in executive session was to be kept secret and those that violate executive session laws could face reprimand, disciplinary action from the Selectmen or state ethics commission.

Sheehan said he had filed a disclosure form regarding his work with MassDOT to avoid conflict of interest problems and asked if someone who rented a tie down at the airport could also potentially have a conflict of interest.

Moss agreed that this could be a potential conflict of interest, but could be acceptable if the forms were filed or if the member in question recused himself from discussion.

"You can never go wrong under the conflict of interest laws by not participating," Moss said.

Commissioner Kevin Shaughnessy said that since much of the discussion around the airport dealt with the West Apron, on which BEH and Boston Air Charter seek to expand operations. As such, any commissioners who have relationships with either company, Shaughnessy said, should consider whether or not to participate in the executive session.

Ryan asked Hues whether he had brought any information regarding his complaint, and whether Hues could be present during a discussion of that complaint.

"At last meeting, someone asked you if there were any accusations against, you said no, but at that time you had already filed a Part 13 complaint, so there must have been accusations," Ryan said to Hues.

Hues said his complaint was based on the airport's lease of land on Access Road for parking and several letters in 2010 and 2012 regarding FAA approval of that land use.

Airport Manager Russ Maguire attempted to address the situation and agreed to look into it with the FAA. He said that the FAA had been aware of the lease since 2010 and during an eight-hour land use inspection by the FAA, nothing was said regarding the property.

"They clearly don't have a problem, if they had a problem with it they would have brought it up at land use inspection," Maguire said.

Hues and Commissioner Paul Shaughnessy had a number of questions about the snow removal procedures at the airport, but Ryan put a stop to the discussion and asked for the vote. Hues was the only dissenting vote and the meeting was adjourned as he attempted to continue asking Maguire questions.

Tax shift won't save homeowners any money

Increase in home values negates rate decrease

Sam Nickerson
Staff Reporter

The Board of Selectmen approved the maximum possible shift in the tax rate for fiscal year 2015 of 56 percent during a hearing on December 9.

Board of Assessors chairman Paul Wanacek recommended the Town adopt this rate because residential property values have increased, while commercial and industrial property values have not. In fiscal years 2012-2014, the Town had adopted a 50 percent shift.

The average single-family home value in fiscal year 2015 jumped up to $381,273 from the fiscal year 2014 average of $363,141. Wanacek said that single-family home values have jumped three percent, condos have increased 5 percent, double-family homes have increased seven percent, and triple-family homes have increased just over 1.5 percent.

Wanacek explained the reasoning behind the 56 percent shift.

"For two reasons, because of the increase in residential values, and also that particular option gives you a percentage that is very close in line to the one you had adopted the past few years," Wanacek said.

Selectman Bill Plasko explained to the public that with the 56 percent shift, the residential tax rate would be 11.49, compared to the current rate of 11.58. And while the rate would be decreasing, homeowners could expect to pay more because of the increased property values. The estimated increase would be $175.66.

"So it's going to go down, but the average homeowner can still expect an increase in their tax bill ... because values have gone up," he said.

According to the report by the Board of Assessors, single-family tax bills in Norwood in recent years have been well below the state average. Only Braintree among comparable towns has a lower tax rate, and Wanacek said that was largely because of the South Shore Plaza.

Overall, he said, Braintree has a larger commercial base than Norwood and also has almost twice as many single-family homes. This means that Braintree has a broader base from which to bring the tax rate down, Plasko said.

Plasko also said that he always asks, by looking at comparisons to tax rates in other towns, if they would be driving business out of Norwood with the commercial taxes in town.

"Every year so far, we haven't had to change the statement. We're not doing anything to further the burden on (commercial property owners), at least compared to anywhere else they might move in the area," Plasko said. Plasko also said that the rate leaves Norwood exactly where it has been in recent years among comparable communities.

The 56 percent shift would leave a fiscal year 2015 commercial tax rate of 23.28.

Selectman Helen Abdallah Donohue also spoke in favor of the proposal.

"This proposal of the 56 percent seems very fair. It's fair to the residents because as you said, the values went up. It's fair to the commercial because their values stayed the same," Donohue said. "And I think that's what we're trying to do here in Norwood. We're trying to have a combination of residential and commercial help each other, so this seems like a good solution."

The fiscal year 2015 Tax Levy comes to a total of $64,924,991, which is an increase of .0398 percent or $2,482,139 from last year's Tax Levy of $62,442,852. The maximum allowable levy for fiscal year 2015 is $64,992,584.

Board of Assessors member Timothy McDonough explained that the maximum fiscal year 2015 shift is 1.56 percent. Under state law, a tax rate can be shifted to place more of the burden on commercial properties to offset impact to residential properties, McDonough said. The 1.56 percent figure is based on Norwood's residential values determined by the state's Department of Revenue.

The Selectman unanimously approved the Board of Assessor's proposal of the 56 percent shift.

HE NEEDS TO BE REMINDED WHO IS BOSS

To the Editor:

To the people of this town I say enough is enough! I refer to the topic of hiring for an open position discussed at a recent BOS meeting. There have been many comments made since then in reference to our long standing Town Manager's attitude and behavior that night. I think Town Meeting Member Anne Haley's insight on the matter during Article 15 spoke volumes. Thank you Anne for taking the time to register to speak and voice your concerns. I'd also like to compliment Mrs. Donohue for attempting to remind the other members of the BOS that Mr. Carroll reports to THEM. I was shocked to see other BOS members come to our Town Managers' defense and support his position on this matter. Who runs this Town? It surely isn't our Board of Selectmen.

I've had a personal relationship with John going back years. He's watched me grow up. I'm quite fond of John. I can tell you this folks: John doesn't hold grudges and he does his best to give people his respect. He works hard and until recently I had little regret about losing my bid for a Selectmen's seat until this matter came up. Had I been on the Board that night, I would have respectfully thanked John for his service to the Town, and made a motion to end his right there and then. The Boards' behavior that night was a disgrace.

This is not an attack against Mr. Carroll. It is simply a reminder of the poor performance from our BOS. I promise you if I'd won a seat, our Town Manager would have had a very quick education as to who his boss was. For now, I'll remind the BOS who their Boss is. It's the people of this town. Wake up and smell the coffee.

THANK YOU FOR ARTICLE 8

To the Editor:

Thank you, Norwood Board of Selectmen, Town Meeting members and town residents for your support of Article 8 at the Norwood Special Town Meeting. The 82-45 vote strongly favors the rationale behind petitioning the MA legislature for four beer and wine licenses for the South Norwood General Business District.

ZONING WAY OUTDATED

To the Editor:

I've been looking into our "flood prone" areas through FEMA (the Federal Emergency Management Agency). Somebody mentioned they are out of date, so I tried Mass DEP, which sends you right to FEMA. These maps are dated July 7, 2012 by FEMA. I am told that this recent update was caused by Hurricane Katrina. It is hard to get the big picture on a relatively small computer, but searching through several map quadrants of Norwood, I think the smart way to go is a rezoning at Town Meeting of at least a couple of square miles (1,080 acres off the denominator or a 15 acre reduction in the numerator). The maps surrounding Norwood Airport are basically bounded by the Canton side of 95 (the Neponset defines the boundary on the other side of the cloverleaf), the Overlook Drive area south to Sharon, and north of the airport to University Ave., including Norwood Country Club and behind it. All are zoned "AE" by FEMA which means a base elevation above which, water will cause flooding. These elevations have been measured. Much of this land has diagonal lines drawn through it on the

it and they want to give the DVD as gifts," Kelleher said of the evening. "And it was nice to see all the drivers there. They really appreciated us doing it. It was good for local business, too, with Julie and Custom Art Framing helping us out."

Vecchio said she used classic sports memorabilia as her inspiration for the exhibit, choosing to show many "Then and Now" photos of the drivers in their racing days, and on the red carpet during the premier of the film. Kelleher also submitted some artwork based on the track.

For Vecchio, the partnership was a no-brainer. "It's nice to support, along with local business, it's nice to keep the memory of local events and history alive," Vecchio said. "After the initial movie, I think it sparked the racing community again. It got everyone thinking about it again, and now we can keep it going for the guys who raced there."

Many of those who were in the film and remember the golden age of motor sports in Norwood were also in attendance.

"They did a great job," said Tom Dunn, a Wrentham resident and former drag racer and car owner at Norwood Arena. "It's nice to see it again, it brings back memories. It's been a long time. You have to remember, a lot of the guys were racing in the '50s."

For former racers Bill Singersen and Don McCullough, the events have allowed old friends to keep in touch in between the regular Norwood Arena reunions. The DVD release was another chance to get together and rehash the old times.

Both men said it was the best track in part because it was a social track, not only for the racers, but also for the fans, as both parties would often end up in the clubhouse for many hours long after the races had finished. They said that it was not uncommon to purchase cases of beer from the clubhouse to bring back to a driver's home, where the party would continue until the sun came up.

For many of the drivers and crewmembers, this was their family. Singersen maintained that racing is still more of a family sport than many of the major ball sports, and perhaps that is what made Norwood Arena - the Movie so captivating.

"It is surprising how big it turned out. I think it surprised them," Singersen said. "I don't think they expected it to be as popular as it was. I don't think Jerry had any idea what he was getting into."

"We were characters in the movie, so it's great. I don't know what to say. I never want to let it go and this brings it all back at a later time in our life," McCullough said. "We were like minor celebrities, 10,000 people would be at the track ... the Bruins at that time would be lucky to get 4,000 some nights. It was nice to be recognized."

According to Kelleher, the film has been accepted into the 2015 Pawtucket Film Festival and will be submitted to several others. Until then, Kelleher hopes that folks will continue to be as enthusiastic about the story as they have been.

"We've got a lot of swag that we've been selling, but people have been buying the movie all over," Kelleher said. "Some have been buying eight, nine, 11 at a time."

Kelleher said that copies of the DVD are available on the film's website, as well as the Broadway Citgo and several other local retailers. Since the film's initial screening, Kelleher said it has become a bit of a traveling road show, as they have been invited to speak at the Historical Society, the library, and the senior center.

to match last year's total of around 1,800 luminary bags. Luminary bags were sold for $5 each, with the proceeds going to the organization, though many of those who purchased luminary bags on Luminary Night made much larger donations.

McDonough presented longtime Circle of Hope volunteer and soon-to-be retiring senior Custodian at Town Hall, John McDonough, with a plaque to recognize his commitment.

"Every year when we try and organize this, there's always one person who, for all these 14 years, has been here...who comes down here because its such a very special time for the Norwood Circle of Hope Foundation...everyone in the Town of Norwood who knows this man, knows he is irreplaceable. He is family to me because we go so far back," Timothy McDonough said.

McDonough then recognized the hard work of the board members and volunteers who work year round and on Luminary Night to make the Foundation's work possible.

"We have so many volunteers tonight and I'd like to thank each and everyone of you that are out here this evening, age five to 85 or 90, to help us celebrate this evening. You all have made this night great because of the volunteer effort," McDonough said.

A Luminary Night attendee in years past, Selectman Allan Howard joined the volunteers in helping to set up the luminaries and prepare for the evening.

Howard was inspired to volunteer because he had been "feeling down" this holiday season, in part because of losses in his family over the past few years. Still, Luminary Night, for Howard, was as much about civic duty and community as it was a way to honor his family.

"All of it, it's the other side of the holiday, the nice side, away from all the shopping and the parties and stuff, which are good things, but this is also important. It's the interaction with your fellow residents. That matters, too," Howard said.

For Marilyn and her husband and daughter, it was a very solemn evening. And while they don't attend every year, they try to purchase a luminary bag to honor their parents and her son when they can.

"It's money for a good cause. It also helps in remembering people who have gone on or who aren't in your life at the moment, people can send messages of peace if they want," Marilyn said.

Also in attendance were

Amy Riley Danesco and her son, Jake Danesco. Amy and Jake, who had purchased a bag that evening, were honoring Amy's mother, Jake's grandmother. This was their first Luminary Night, after a family friend had recommended it to them.

"I think it's a great cause and it's just a nice way to remember my mom," Amy said.

For Bob and his wife, it was a way to remember his in-laws, and for his two children, Bobby, age six, and Samantha, age four, to learn about grandparents they never really got to know.

"It goes to a great cause and for the kids, because they didn't really get to meet my wife's parents," he said.

The Norwood Circle of Hope Foundation was founded in 1998 to honor the memory of Norwood resident Michelle Kennedy, who had battled leukemia during her young life. During her struggle, many other residents in Norwood came forward to support Michelle and her family.

Since then, the Norwood Circle of Hope has gone on to help many families and individuals in Norwood who are facing serious medical problems with the costs associated with treatment, as well as those faced during daily life.

NPD takes down heroin dealer

Sam Nickerson
Staff Reporter

Dean Street was the site of yet another drug bust this past week, as Norwood Police arrested two men on Dec. 5.

Norwood Police had been investigating possible drug activity at 106 Dean St. - an address they had visited earlier this year - and successfully disrupted a heroin deal on Dec. 5.

Detective Sergeant Robert Rinn and Detective David Eysie, along with NORPAC detectives and patrols from Norwood Police Department's 4-12 shift, observed a vehicle pull up to the property and park in the yard. Timothy Narbut, age 33, of 106 Dean St. #2, left the building and approached the car, which belonged to known drug dealer Alexis Pena, 21, of 3444 Bucklin St., Providence, R.I.

According to a Norwood Police statement, Detectives Rinn and Eysie identified themselves to the two men, who were in the middle of a drug deal, at which point both men dropped drugs and money on the ground. The drugs were tested and identified as heroin.

Both Narbut, whom police said was the main focus of the investigation at 106 Dean St., and Pena were placed under arrest and charged with Conspiracy to Violate Drug Law. Pena was also charged with distribution of a Class A substance - which includes heroin - and Narbut was charged with possession of a Class A substance with intent to distribute a Class A substance. They were brought to Norwood Police Department and held on $30,000 bail.

Norwood Police credited the collaborative efforts of NORPAC for the ongoing success in tackling drug crime in Norwood. The towns of Canton, Dedham, Foxborough, Medfield, Millis, Needham, Timothy Narbut of Norwood (top) and Alexis Pena of Providence, R.I. (bottom) were arrested during a drug deal at 106 Dean St. on Dec. 5.

Norfolk, Norwood, Plainville, Sharon, Stoughton, Walpole, Wellesley, Westwood and Wrentham all contribute resources to NORPAC, which was founded in 1987 with the help of a US Bureau of Justice Assistance grant to foster cooperation on narcotics enforcement.

"We can't underestimate the success of NORPAC. Our pooling of resources and talents has been highly successful. We are always thankful for the assistance and ready to render ours," Norwood Police said in a statement after the incident. Detective Sgt. Rinn has been heavily involved in NORPAC leadership, as has Norwood Chief of Police William Brooks.

Norwood police had warrants from Dedham District Court for both 106 Dean St. and Pena's car, and executed a search for "additional evidence." Inside the home, the detectives found evidence related to drug distribution and Norwood Police believe that Narbut was preparing to sell the heroin purchased from Pena. Overall, the reported seizing $1,000 in "drug proceeds" from the search.

Both Pena and Narbut have open cases for previous drug incidents and are already facing the same crimes they were charged with on the most recent bust. Police have made several visits this year to Dean Street to investigate and stop drug-related activity, including a prior visit to 106 Dean St. in April.

Patrolmen Timothy McDonagh and Dylan Haldiman were among the Norwood officers assisting the NORPAC detectives.

maps, which means: "Floodway Areas in Zone AE." FEMA's definition of this is: "The floodway (Neponset, Traphole, Purgatory, Planting field) is the channel of a stream plus any adjacent floodplain areas that "must" be kept free of encroachment so that the 1 percent annual chance can be caused without substantial increases in flood heights. Further, all the other land is denoted by FEMA with dots, which are identified as: "Other Flood Areas." Our current zoning of all this area is way outdated. It is either General Business, Manufacturing, or Residential. These areas are unable to be built on, and don't have access anyway. Maybe we should hire a hydrologist and bring an article to Town Meeting to rezone. Dick Heaton, Brian Hardiman's expert, has pointed out previously that had we done this heretofore, we probably could have blocked the Campanelli 40B. Also, it wouldn't hurt to approach the owners of Norwood Country Club to see if there is a possibility of gifting the course to the town to get out of their taxable estate (unless already in an irrevocable trust). We could give over to a management company to run with the proviso that Town residents have special rates and tee times. Many towns have successfully run municipal golf courses. Nothing ventured - nothing gained. Most importantly, I don't think we should nibble at the numerator by adding 9,000 square foot lots to go to 1.52 percent, but use the experts (FEMA) and increase the percentage so far beyond question, it is unchallengeable by 40b/40r developers.

EARLY WARNING

Degenerative disc disease, characterized by the lower back pain that so many adults experience, may not be solely an age-related problem. As a result of focusing on a single sport and playing competitively, school-age athletes may also experience disc degeneration earlier than previously thought. According to one study, magnetic resonance imaging (MRI) of children's spines showed that nearly ten percent had abnormalities in at least one intervertebral disc. All were located in the lower (lumbar) spine, and none of the affected children reported pain. Disc degeneration may alter the mechanical architecture of the back, predisposing muscles and ligaments to sprains and strains. This finding suggests that disc degeneration is not necessarily associated with back pain and may begin in childhood. Chiropractic's purpose is to remove interferences to the natural healing power running through the body. We can help you and your children enjoy life without pain. For unsurpassed chiropractic care for all members of your family, please call us to schedule an appointment. We offer both chiropractic care and physical therapy. All major insurance accepted. P.S. If your child is an enthusiastic participant in competitive sports, a chiropractic exam may help identify potential problem areas and stave off injuries.

Expectations are high for Norwood girls' hockey team

Jake Levin
Staff Reporter

The Norwood Mustangs girl's hockey team takes to the ice next week, and head coach Tim Coskren couldn't be more ready for the puck to drop.

Lead by captains Kacie Smith and Sammy Hayes, the Mustangs won't struggle to score goals this season. An offensive juggernaut that averaged just under five goals per game a season ago, Norwood returns plenty of other scoring punch, too, from an 11-6-3 team that bowed out to eventual Division 2 state champion Westwood in the second round of the playoffs. The Mustangs tallied 97 goals in 20 games, far and away the most goals scored in the Bay State Conference.

"Normally, we're a very offensive minded team," said Coskren, who begins his seventh season behind the bench

After a successful 2013-14 season, the Norwood girls ice hockey team figures they will be a force to be reckoned with once again.

for Norwood, his third as the head coach. "It's about trying to find which girls work best with one another, because you have to be good at passing in girl's hockey."

Smith and Hayes, also standout field hockey and lacrosse players, have plenty of help in their supporting cast. Lisa Moynihan, Abby Glaser and Isabella Aspinwall round out the group of senior forwards, while Shannon Gillis is the lone senior defenseman. Additionally, sophomore Coley Hayes (Sammy's younger sister) will be counted on to score some goals, while junior defenseman Erin Kelly is another player to watch for the Mustangs.

Between the pipes, Norwood will depend on a pair of freshmen in Courtney Burke and Janelle Kelleher. Early returns in practice have been promising, says Coskren.

"We thought we were only going to have maybe one goalie we could depend on, and the next thing you know, we have two. It's awesome."

The Mustangs begin their season on Monday, Dec. 15 vs. Brookline, a Bay State opponent out of the Carey Division. The game starts at 4 p.m. at Bajko Arena in Hyde Park.

Mustangs boys hoops looks to turn program around

Jake Levin
Staff Reporter

Despite notching just three wins last season, the Norwood boys basketball team is optimistic about their 2014-15 campaign, as the roster is chock-full of experienced players.

FILE PHOTO

After a trying 3-19 season, almost anything could be considered an improvement. But don't tell that to Norwood boys basketball coach Rich Cormier.

"You come off a three-win season, almost anything would be a success," said Cormier, who is beginning his 10th season with the Norwood basketball program and eighth as the head coach. "But with the amount of players we have coming back, I think anything less than qualifying for the state tournament wouldn't be a successful season."

Cormier is coming off what he describes as his two most difficult seasons in charge. Prior to last season, Norwood went 7-19.

"[In 2012-13] we lost our captains in back-to-back games, games 3 and 4 of the season, to injuries. When we got them back, we won four in a row. At one point that year, we were 1-12, so to finish with the record that we did was impressive."

Losing 12 players from that squad, the '13-14 campaign was a transition year for Norwood on a roster than included seven sophomores and just two seniors. But Cormier believes that could play to the Mustangs' advantage this time around.

"Most of our team is returning players," said Cormier, with nine players back from last year's team in all. The coach knows his team's biggest strength heading into the season is indeed its experience.

"It's allowing us to move through things faster," he said, prior to his team's annual scrimmage with Quincy on Tuesday, an event held after the Record's deadline. "I do think we're solid defensively. The kids have had a year to learn the system. So far, the kids have shown really good discipline on the defensive side of the ball at practice."

Cormier played his high school basketball in Rockland under legendary coach Bob Fisher. Drawing influences from him, as well as Michigan State Spartans boss Tom Izzo, Cormier has always liked his teams to have a defense-first mentality, as well as the ability to run in transition.

"We're a defensive minded team, that's certainly what we

Shaking off early struggles, Norwood Football finished 2014 season strong

Jake Levin
Staff Reporter

When you can quadruple your output in something, people are bound to take notice.

Whether you've quadrupled the number of miles you can run, the amount of weight you can lift, or the number of football games you've won, something four times as great as its previous result is impressive.

Keep in mind that we're talking about quadrupling the number one, as in the Norwood Mustangs' football win total in 2013. But even winning just one more game would have technically been doubling the number. You have to take the Mustangs 4-7 record this season and not just look at the entire body of work, but look at the progress for a team that won four of its final five games, including the Thanksgiving thriller over Dedham.

Head coach Jim Tighe, who just completed his first season in charge of the Norwood football program, isn't sure if the change he saw in his team over the final five games was all that tangible. But he could pinpoint one important aspect: learning to win.

"I don't know if I saw much of a change," said Tighe. "Obviously when we started to win, the mood at practice was better, and it was a little bit more fun. But as far as what we did, we tried to keep the same philosophy day-to-day, week-to-week. I told the kids, if you can do that, the rest will take care of itself.

"They learned how to win," Tighe continued, speaking of the see-saw Dedham game. "Three minutes to go, you're down five points, and they took care of business and learned how to win."

After a 0-6 start saw the Mustangs get outscored by a ghastly 180-44 margin, Norwood turned the tables to finish 4-1 and outscore their opponents 106-79 with wins over Brookline, North Quincy, Hingham and Dedham, with a lone setback against Milton in between. The wins against the Red Raiders and Marauders also avenged defeats from 2013.

The statistics backup the Mustangs' improved play over the final five games. They tightened up defensively, allowing 201 yards of total offense per game, compared to 325.5 through the first six. Both the rushing and passing defense saw improved efficiency, cutting down from 166 to 93 yards per game and 162 to 108, respectively.

Offensively, Norwood improved slightly throwing the ball, seeing a bump from 92 yards per game to 100.6 through the air. But it was the ground attack that was the real energizer for the Mustangs, led by the emergence of tailback Brian Wright. Norwood more than doubled its rushing attack from a modest 84 yards per game on the ground in the first half to 178.2 in the latter half.

"I thoroughly enjoyed it," said Tighe of his rookie campaign. "I have a phenomenally good coaching staff that is extremely close, and they stuck together when things weren't good. At 0-6, it can get bad quick. The kids, I enjoyed working with them, and they literally hung in there and kept fighting. I think that's a testament to them and their tenacity."

On keeping momentum going into next season, Tighe believes that having such a young team will be a positive. "That taste of winning for the underclass is going to be motivation for them in the offseason," he said.

It was indeed a young bunch for Norwood this season. The Mustang seniors are: captains Aaron Cockrane, Mike McDonough, Joe Panetta, Mario Sabha, Eric Sullivan, Richie Whelan and Brian Wright, as well as Mike Kane, Chris Quinn, try to stress," said Cormier. "This year, I do think we have some nice offensive players that should help us on that end of the court, but we're defense first.

"We certainly try to play in transition," Cormier added. "We usually have at least three guards on the court, if not four, and try to run as much as possible."

One area where Norwood may need to improve is its offensive discipline, said Cormier.

"We have some really talented players, but sometimes shot selection isn't what it should be," he said. The coach also wants his team to improve its interior defense and rebounding, realizing that while his team has great perimeter speed and quickness, it lacks size.

Norwood is captained by senior Kevin Perry and junior Chris Bell. Bell enters his third year with the varsity program, having started every game for the Mustangs since he joined the team his freshman year. Despite only being a junior, Bell has played more minutes than anyone else on the current Mustangs roster.

"Improving on three wins isn't good enough," said Cormier, taking a big view of the season ahead. "We need to compete for the Herget [title] and for the state tournament. Those are very realistic things."

With a roster that was competitive in many games a season ago, but struggled to keep pace in the second half of said games, Cormier believes his team has benefitted from playing together in the off-season. Only time will tell, but he believes the Mustangs will be able to kick their second half issues. We'll begin finding out the answers in Norwood's season debut on Friday, when the Mustangs travel to Randolph to take on the Blue Devils at 6:30 p.m.

“DAMNATION” FILM SCREENING AT THE LIBRARY

Come to a film screening of the award-winning 2014 documentary “DamNation” at the Morrill Memorial Library on Wednesday, Jan. 7 at 7 p.m. This evening of film and discussion is jointly sponsored by the organization Together Yes and the Neponset River Watershed Association. “DamNation” is a powerful film odyssey across America that explores the change in our national attitude from pride in large dams as remarkable feats of engineering to a call for removal of dams that interfere with the Earth’s ecosystems. Beautifully filmed, this study of dams and the damage they can cause to wildlife, soil, and plant life is both inspiring and informative. To sign up, please stop by the library Reference or Information Desk, call 781-769-0200, x110 or 222, or email norprograms@minlib.net.

RESUME WORKSHOP AT THE LIBRARY

Need some help creating or updating your resume to make it stand out? Join Career Counselor Debbie Lipton at the Morrill Memorial Library on Monday, Jan. 12 at 7 p.m. at a workshop to learn how to write a resume that gets results. You will also get valuable advice on composing a cover letter that will maximize your chances of getting that all-important view. Did you know that employers generally scan your resume for no more than 10 seconds before deciding whether to consider you for the job? In this ultra-competitive job market, Debbie can help you make sure your cover letter and resume get the attention you’re looking for. To sign up for this event, stop by the library Reference or Information Desk, call 781-769-0200, x110 or 222, or email norprograms@minlib.net.

GARY HYLANDER LECTURE ON THE BOSTON TEA PARTY

Please join historian Dr. Gary Hylander at the Morrill Memorial Library on Thursday, Dec. 18 at 7 p.m. for an informative and always entertaining talk on one of the most famous incidents in our city's history: The Boston Tea Party. When three ships carrying East India Company tea arrived in Boston in December of 1773, patriots would not allow the tea to be unloaded and the tax paid. For three weeks Bostonians appealed to Governor Hutchinson to send the ships away. Upon his refusal, the Sons of Liberty took matters into their own hands. To sign up for this program, funded by the Friends of the Library, stop by the Reference or Information Desk, call 781-769-0200, x110 or 222, or email norprograms@minlib.net.

the materials for your project, including needles and patterns. Also, please let us know ahead of time what sort of project you'd like help with, in case we need to look up a new technique. A second pair of eyes can't hurt! Please contact Adult Services Librarian Liz Reed to schedule all appointments and to answer any questions about this service. "GASLAND: PART II" SCREENING AT LIBRARY

Come to an evening of film and discussion at the Morrill Memorial Library on Thursday, Dec. 11 at 7 p.m., which concludes the Together Yes fall Sustainability Series. "Gasland Part II" is a provocative follow-up to the Oscar-nominated film shown at the library last fall. This new award-winning film continues to explore the controversial method of extracting natural gas and oil known as fracking and the resulting health hazards. Tempered by the filmmaker's trademark dark humor, the film shows how the stakes have been raised on all sides in one of the most divisive environmental issues facing our country today. To sign up for this event, stop by the library Reference or Information Desk, call 781-769-0200, x110 or 222, or email norprograms@minlib.net.
