Kids Have Fun At The NFD

The Norwood Fire Department held its annual Open House on Oct. 11 in honor of National Fire Prevention Month. Families gathered at the Firehouse to learn about fire safety and see the facility. There was also a demonstration of the Jaws of Life and a chance to put out a "house fire." Dunkin Donuts and Papa Gino's provided refreshments.

Norwood MCAS results show good progress, work ahead

Sam Nickerson
Staff Reporter

MCAS results are in for the 2014 examinations and the Norwood School District received a level two Accountability and Assistance rating overall.

Norwood High School was rated a level one school - up from last year - but because the other schools were rated at level two, the district receives that rating instead.

According to the Department of Education, accountability and assistance levels determine whether a particular school or district is meeting its performance gap-narrowing goals.

Level One is the highest, meaning that the school or district is meeting its gap narrowing goals for all its students.

Norwood High was the district's only level one school, but 79 sophomore students, or 29 percent of that graduating class, received John and Abigail Adams Scholarships, meaning they scored proficient or advanced on math and English Language Arts (ELA) aspects of the exam and are entitled to attend a state school tuition free.

The Coakley Middle School and Balch Elementary both maintained level two statuses for another year. The Callahan, Cleveland, Oldham, and Prescott Elementary Schools all dipped from last year to level two.

During a report to the School Committee on Oct. 8, Assistant Superintendent Dr. Alec Wyeth said that the rating was due in large part to the high needs student population.

This population showed anywhere from a 12-40 point difference in proficiency ratings from the non-high needs student population. High needs students include English Language Learners, students with disabilities, and low-income students.

According to the report, however, the district outper-

South Norwood Committee reactivates over multiple issues

Sam Nickerson
Staff Reporter

The Oct. 15 meeting of the South Norwood Committee (SNC) marks the first such meeting in some time that the group has gathered to discuss key issues facing the neighborhood.

SNC meetings, including the Oct. 15 meeting, are held at the Morse House at 1285 Washington St. at 7 p.m.

Current Chairperson Olga Abdallah said that the meetings have an agenda, but attendees are welcome to bring up any concerns they have about the neighborhood.

The issue of possibly securing additional beer and wine licenses for the neighborhood - which was discussed at recent Selectmen's meetings - and the future public ice rink near the Coakley Middle School were likely part of what prompted the Oct. 15 meeting.

Schedules and information about the committee will be posted on the town's website, in the media and on Norwood Public Access, Abdallah said. Mailings for the Oct. 15 meeting also went out to some residents.

While not a governing body, the SNC was formed by volunteers from the neighborhood as an informal way to address concerns regarding beautifying or improving the area, which is different from the uptown area in many ways, Abdallah said.

"South Norwood is very residential and you have kids walking to the Jr. High school and Balch, and walking to the pool and Norwood center," Abdallah said. "There seems to be more businesses downtown, more parking than in South Norwood. I think we're talking about two different areas and the needs of the people in the area are different too."

"It just helped to give the neighborhood more of a voice of its own for issues that came up," said former SNC chairperson Patty Bailey.

According to Abdallah, many of the members have been involved in civic activities in South Norwood for around 30 years.

"Many years ago, the South Norwood area had a lot of overgrowth, trees, a lot of rubbish items like washing machines and things like that all along the area along the brook and along the woods at Hawes Pool Park," Abdallah said. "There was a whole group of volunteers and neighbors, people who really love the wildlife and enjoy the parks, who went there and physically cleaned out as much as we could of the debris that had collected over the years."

From there, the committee went on to place trees and benches along Washington Street, improve the landscaping outside of the Balch School, and host community events, such as fishing derbies.

"Everything that we do in Norwood seems to be a leader in the whole area around our town," Abdallah said. "A lot of people come to Norwood to look at our signage, the colors on facades, and our flower programs are admired everywhere."

Abdallah said that because of the volunteers' schedules, most SNC meetings take place in the fall and winter, and when they're not busy volunteering with other organizations, like the Food Pantry. Some members did meet at the beginning of the summer, she said.

Bailey said she was only aware of one meeting of the SNC taking place after she resigned around two years ago, in which Chief of Police William Brooks came to introduce himself.

"I don't know of any activity going on with the South Norwood Committee before I got the mailing, I could be mistaken," Bailey said.

Bailey said she has also been involved with the South Norwood Steering Committee, a town-appointed committee that strives to improve neighborhood appearances and business, and functions much like the Downtown Steering Committee.

The South Norwood Steering Committee was referenced during the Oct. 7 Selectmen's meeting, after a letter was sent, tasking the committee with discussing "the possibility of requesting additional Beer and Wine Licenses as we have in the uptown area."

In years past, the South Norwood Steering Committee handled things like walking tours, a housing rehabilitation program to bring homes in the neighborhood up to code, and hiring a consultant to conduct a "vision plan" study for the area.

Bailey said that this committee too had not met for a long time, though she believed that Town Planner Paul Halkiotis was interested in getting the South Norwood Steering Committee together for a meeting in the near future.

And recently, yet another volunteer group in the neighborhood has started.

"There was no support about the rink issue, so after I had resigned my position on the South Norwood Committee, we branched off and formed the South Norwood Citizens for Community Action," said Bailey, who is a member. "We created our own little group based on our opinion that a rink in South Norwood is not a good fit, especially at that location."

For Abdallah, all the activity points to a very engaged citizenry.

"The most important thing is that everyone on the committee and in the neighborhood, they love Norwood," Abdallah said. "I don't really know if this happens in other towns, but you don't always have to agree on everything together and it's a wonderful feeling that you can still work together and love and enjoy it."

Selectmen appoint residents to 1.5 percent task force

Sam Nickerson
Staff Reporter

The Board of Selectmen decided which three Norwood citizens will be appointed to the 1.5 percent Task Force during a meeting on October 14.

The Board voted unanimously on a motion by Selectman Bill Plasko to have John Hall, David Hajjar, and Brian Hardiman join the Task Force, which will be examining Norwood's housing and properties to make sure that at least 1.5 percent of the town's developable land is devoted to affordable housing.

Massachusetts 40B laws require that a town meet this 1.5 percent requirement - or have 10 percent of its housing be affordable - before it can have more control over large development projects within its borders. Otherwise, 40B laws allow developers to bypass certain zoning laws when building affordable units.

The Board of Selectmen had decided on having a 1.5 percent Task Force after securing a one-year safe harbor status in September, when the Upland Woods project was allowed to move forward.

During last week's meeting, the Board opted to hold off on discussing the letters of intent and resumes it had received with the hope that there would be a wider applicant pool by the time of the October 14 meeting.

The Board received two more applications in this time period. Plasko suggested that current Conservation Committee chairperson Cheryl Rogers - who submitted a letter and resume for consideration to be on the Task Force - replace conservation agent Al Goetz as a member of the administration on the Task Force.

This would mean that the Board could still appoint three more residents from the applicant pool to the Task Force, which is designed to have a number of residents and officials working on the project.

Selectman Helen Donohue said the motion was "an excellent idea."

The Board agreed that the appointment was appropriate, given Rogers' status as a resident, Town Meeting member, homeowner, and Conservation Commission chair.

"(Rogers) also manages commercial properties for a living, has a construction supervisor's license, and has a lot of ... knowledge about commercial properties," Selectman Paul Bishop said.

Bishop also went on to suggest some of the reasons why Hardiman, Hall, and Hajjar would also be good additions to the 1.5 percent Task Force.

"(Hardiman) has put a lot of time and commitment into the issue of the 1.5 percent. He's also spent over $15,000 of his own money," said Bishop.

Bishop also mentioned Hajjar's experience with Verizon and real estate as evidence of his qualification to be on the Task Force. Hall, who said in his letter that he would be conservative in his estimates on the Task Force, also impressed Bishop. Bishop added that Hall was an interesting individual who had served well on other committees.

The Board voted to have these four individuals join other town administrators, including Town Planner Paul Halkiotis and members of the Selectmen, to round out the Task Force.

The Selectmen also discussed a notice from Halkiotis that Norwood has received $75,000 from a Zoning Incentive Payment for taking on the Regal Press Smart Growth Overlay District.

"There's some discussion now about the Regal Press and the current zone and whether they can build the number of units they intended to," said Plasko, who suggested they request the money have a designation to keep track of it in case the project does not end up going forward as planned.

Selectman Allan Howard mentioned the issue of whether the developer could fit the required and intended amount of parking spaces for the smaller, 40-unit 40R project.

Massachusetts 40R laws encourage towns to create more dense housing areas and mixed-use areas that include a number of affordable residential units. The laws also encourage build-

Are you like us? Still torn over who to support in the upcoming gubernatorial race?

Oh sure, many of you will blindly vote for your chosen party, without much worry or investigation. But this is Massachusetts and, despite our reputation as a liberal Shangri La, our voters are more inquisitive than that. We did, after all, vote Scott Brown to the Senate and Republican governors around here are as common as Democrats.

WBZ-TV broadcast the latest gubernatorial candidate debate this week and, if nothing else, it set our mind at ease just a little. To be blunt, we have very little affection for Martha Coakley and a distaste for politicians who think they are "owed" bigger and better political offices.

Prayer to the Blessed Virgin
(Never known to fail!)
 Oh, most beautiful flower of Mt. Carmel, fruitful vine, splendor of Heaven, Blessed Mother of the Son of God, Immaculate Virgin, assist me in this necessity. Oh Star of the Sea, help me and show me herein you are my mother. Oh Holy Mary, Mother of God, Queen of Heaven and Earth, I humbly beseech thee from the bottom of my heart to succor me in my necessity (make request). There are none that can withstand your power. Oh Mary, conceived without sin, pray for us who have recourse to thee (three times). Holy Mary, I place this cause in your hands (three times). Say this prayer for three consecutive days and then you must publish and it will be granted to you.
Grateful thanks. —J.R.G.

Lost a Senate race that was all but wrapped up with a bow? No problem! Governor has a nice ring to it, too! Baker is not much better. People seem to forget that his last stab at the State House was poorly executed and he was hardly a stellar candidate. And yet, somehow, he still is the only Republican or conservative who emerged this year — aside from Scot Lively, whose pitch for the criminalization of adultery, a government crackdown on sex outside of marriage, and claims that homosexuality was a catalyst for the Nazi party all but assure us a quick exit.

And, please Charlie, take the pandering down a notch. Having women randomly yell "pro choice" during TV ads isn't convincing anyone. And, yeah, it's great "you" and Gov. Weld created so many jobs, but that was back when we were still wearing piano ties and Members Only jackets.

Back to Coakley: Can we please, please, please stop penalizing people for making money? Did Baker lay-off people at Harvard Pilgrim Health Care? Yes. Cuts had to be made to save the entire operation. Did rates rise? Sure they did. Did the board triple his salary? Sure, what's wrong with rewarding the guy who saved your company? Repeating anti-Romney screeds from 2012 isn't going to help, Martha.

So, given all this, why are we just a little encouraged? The WBZ debate surprised us on multiple levels. One, Baker and Coakley came across as rivals, not enemies. Both, more so Baker, even had kind words for their opponent and stressed that differences weren't to be equated with a personal attack. That was a big change from pro-Baker ads that accuse Coakley of failing to protect abused children in the state's Department of Children and Families.

Heck, the two even seemed to agree more than they disagreed on certain healthcare issues, notably waivers that would preserve state control in the face of national oversight as part of "Obamacare."

And, this may be shallow, but both stuck to a solid campaign strategy. Going into the debate, both Coakley and Baker needed to work on potentially harmful character traits. Baker avoided his quick temper and condescending attitude; Coakley came across as more likeable. Lest we forget them, Evan Falchuk, and Jeff McCormick also came across as skilled and knowledgeable, such that they have any prayer.

The good news: the two top candidates showed they can hold a mature, informative debate on substantive issues. The bad news: it probably won't last long. Attack ads are sure to emerge in an effort to break their statistical dead heat.

Letters to the Editor

RE: UPLAND WOODS GROUND BREAKING CEREMONY

To the Editor:
 During the long and arduous 40B application process of Upland Woods Apartments recently before the Norwood Zoning Board of Appeals, I made no secret (along with 99 percent of Norwood residents) of my displeasure and opposition of the developer(s) and their proposal, resulting with an undesirable approval for the Comprehensive Permit. Today, I received an invitation to Upland Woods Ground Breaking Ceremony to "celebrate the start of construction on the Upland Woods apartments."

As you know the Campanelli Company, in partnership with Thorndike Development, has succeeded in throwing our zoning by-laws out the window on the basis of the archaic and antiquated 40B statute, tying the Town of Norwood's hands, forcing this reluctant approval, to the chagrin of each member of the ZBA. I find this invitation to myself and any Town Official, Board, Committee Member or resident of Norwood distasteful. I feel anyone attending this event and embracing this groundbreaking ceremony will be sending the wrong message, it is the height of hypocrisy. I will not subject myself to further manipulation by attending this "celebration", nor will you see my image as part of their "photo op" which you can be sure to be included in the brochure of a future 40B proposal to another unsuspecting victim/town.

KENNEY'S COMMENTS WITHOUT MERIT

To the Editor:
 I read with dismay the comments of Mr. Conor Kenney in a letter to the editor concerning his view of Mr. William Plasko in last week's edition of the Norwood Record. I found most of Mr. Kenney's comments without merit and a great disservice to the work Mr. Plasko has done for the town over his many years on the Board of Selectmen. Norwood needs more residents like Mr. Plasko who give up their personal time in service to the town.

As for Mr. Kenney, it might serve him well to recall the words of the late President Abraham Lincoln when he said, "Better to remain silent and be thought a fool than to speak out and remove all doubt."

Fantasy Footsteps theater returns just in time for Halloween

Sam Nickerson
Staff Reporter

The Backstage Boosters annual Fantasy Footsteps event returns for its eighth year in its current form this month at the James Savage Educational Center.

Fantasy Footsteps, a "storybook tour" through several scenes of beloved fairy tales, is a lighthearted way for people of all ages, especially youngsters, to celebrate Halloween.

"The whole idea is to give the younger children, ages 3 and up something that they can go to for Halloween that is not going to be scary or gory," said Jody Smith of Backstage Boosters.

Fantasy Footsteps tour guides lead groups of around 15 people through the lit and decorated hallways of the James Savage Educational Center - located at 275 Prospect St. - to a series of skits. Attendees are welcome to wear their Halloween costumes to enhance the whimsical atmosphere of Fantasy Footsteps.

This year, the cast will put on seven performances, including The Frog Princess, The Emperor's New Clothes, Little Red Riding Hood, Jack and the Beanstalk, Cinderella, Tortoise and the Hare, and Sleeping Beauty.

Dean Calusdian returns for another year as the director.

The tradition began has a way to provide a more fun and less spooky Halloween event for younger children, but so many of those children have gone on to perform in Fantasy Footsteps and other drama performances in Norwood that it has become something of a pipeline for Norwood theatrical talent.

The cast includes Norwood students - from the fourth grade up - who are veterans of the stage as well as those making their acting debuts. This year, around 40 students will be participating in the event.

"What it gives to the actors and the actresses is a theater experience that is short lived," Smith said. "There is not a lot of rehearsal time leading up to the four performances, so it is a way to learn. And it gives audiences a chance to see live theater."

And children aren't the only ones who enjoy the show, as adults find themselves chuckling throughout the entire event.

"They absolutely love it because the way in which Dean writes the scripts, there is a lot of embedded humor that goes right over the kids heads," Smith said.

The evening is clearly a smash hit each year, since anywhere between 350-450 people attend the event each year, Smith said.

The event dates back many years, to when the Boosters had partnered with Boston Children's Theater, which put on an outdoor fairy tale-themed event. The Backstage Boosters had to change the event's name and bring it indoors due to a copyright held by Boston Children's Theater.

"I know that my daughter was probably in middle school and she's 32 now. That's when we started doing it as 'Enchanted Walk,'" Smith said.

Bomb threat tests Norwood Schools security measures

Sam Nickerson
Staff Reporter

Following an anonymous bomb threat received late on Wednesday, Oct. 8, Norwood Public Schools officials and the Norwood Police tested their crisis management plans as they secured the schools.

By mid-morning on Oct. 9, all the schools had been cleared and the threat was deemed a hoax by Norwood Police, who maintained a cruiser at each school afterward to address concerns.

"I thought that everything went very well," Chief of Police William Brooks said. "It's an uncomfortable situation and nobody's happy when our students and faculty are in that position."

The emailed threat was sent to Norwood High School principal George Usevich, but the entire district was mentioned.

According to Chief Brooks, Superintendent James Hayden called him very early on Oct. 9 to report the incident and to devise a plan of action.

"It's a collaborative approach," Hayden said. "Just as soon as we became aware of the threat, I shared what we knew with Chief Brooks and we worked together as to what would be the best solution to protect the students and evaluate threat and possible situations."

Chief Brooks presented the idea of a more "enhanced lockdown procedure" during a School Committee meeting on Sept. 22, in which schools and police work together to empower staff members to make decisions about whether to lock down in the classroom or evacuate and move to a rally point away from the school, if safe to do so.

"We rely heavily on faculty and staff at the schools, they're so familiar with the schools as far as what should be there, who should and should not be there," Brooks said.

Brooks said that police and school staff conducted searches of the facilities and reviewed security cameras and alarm systems. He also said that the mid-night shift at the department was held on into the morning.

Hayden said that his staff and building crews maintained communication through an emergency channel on their walkie-talkies.

The examinations did not find any materials and Hayden said that the cameras did not show any sign of suspicious behavior.

"In the elementary schools, we were able to check the schools before many of the kids arrived," Brooks said. "At the middle school, because of timing, some students were arriving as we were checking the area. We decided to hold some of them on the bus and the kids were moved out of the area until the building was checked."

According to Brooks, the situation had been fully controlled and cleared before 10 a.m., but his officers maintained a presence at the schools to welcome students and answer questions from parents.

"These issues are almost always a hoax. In the history of the U.S., there has never been an explosion at a school following a bomb threat," Brooks said. "We still have to take precautions and check the area and then try to keep things calm."

Hayden said he used the ConnectED system to notify parents of children in the District and sent out over 4,000 phone calls and over 2,000 emails to reach out to families.

"They appreciated the fact we tried to share information with them without scaring people," Hayden said.

He said that there are drills in place for scenarios involving active shooters, bomb threats, earthquakes, and fires, but that each situation takes on its own individual nature, which needs to be addressed accordingly.

According to the School Committee discussion on Sept. 22, the drills are tailored to the age group they are intended to address, so that kindergarteners are not being addressed the same way as high school students.

Hayden said that parents were allowed to dismiss or keep their children home, but each school reported an attendance record that day of over 90 percent.

On Friday, things were back to normal, but Hayden said that it didn't mean the staff wouldn't be alert.

"We were vigilant and watchful, but this is what we call a non-specific threat," Hayden said. "We're vigilant as always, but we didn't see the same need as the work that we did before. Our buildings were watched closely, screening who was coming and going in and out of the schools. It was a regular day."

The threat is being investigated in connection with similar threats received by Westwood Public Schools and Xaverian Brothers High School in recent weeks.

PIRIFORMIS SYNDROME

"Piriformis syndrome" is a condition involving the piriformis muscle, a small muscle located deep in the buttock (behind the gluteus maximus). When the piriformis muscle irritates the nearby sciatic nerve, it can cause buttock pain, spasms, and tingling along the back of the leg and into the foot that is similar to sciatic pain. While an accurate diagnosis can be elusive, it is often the case that irritation of the sacroiliac joint or hip can lead to spasm of the piriformis muscle. If so, chiropractic treatment involving manipulation of these joints may provide pain relief. Similarly, chiropractic treatment often proves to be effective when buttock and leg pain and weakness result from impingement of the sciatic nerve from other causes.

A serious inability to sit without severe buttock pain and / or Sciatica is a big red flag as far as Piriformis Syndrome is concerned. The symptoms of Piriformis Syndrome usually begin as a deep aching. Most people see a chiropractor because they're in pain. The result is that we can help in the management of your pain. Call us today for a simple spinal evaluation. We provide safe and gentle chiropractic care for the entire family. Let us help you and your family. We offer both chiropractic care and physical therapy. All major insurance accepted.

P.S. Piriformis syndrome may also result from swelling of the piriformis muscle due to injury or spasm.

ing near transportation hubs, and are intended to encourage more housing stock at a lower overall cost, with financial development to follow.

Town Manager John Carroll suggested that the Selectmen have the funds put in a separate account, in case the project could not go forward and it needed to be returned. The Selectmen voted unanimously on a motion to hold the funds in a separate account.

The Selectmen then mentioned the need to fill a School Committee member position following the September resignation of Paul Samargedlis.

Board of Selectmen Chair Michael Lyons will reach out to the School Committee Chair in order to coordinate a date within the next month or less to hold a joint meeting to appoint a new School Committee Member.

Lyons said that Samargedlis' vacancy left "big shoes to fill," and urged interested members to get their resumes to the School Committee as soon as possible.

Plasko added that interested community members should forward their information and requests to be considered for appointment to the School Committee office.

While Samargedlis' term officially ends in 2017, the appointment will last until the 2015 town election. The appointee is welcome to run in the election to retain the position if they so choose.

The Selectmen also met with and thanked Norwood Bank President and CEO Christopher Dixon for the bank's donation of 125 mature trees to be placed in the town's parks and athletic fields, as well as a purchase of year round street banners for the light poles downtown. The donation was in honor the bank's 125th anniversary.

Airport Commission talks transparency, future development

Sam Nickerson
Staff Reporter

The Airport Commission discussed efforts to be more open to the public during a meeting on Oct. 8.

The Commission noted that Norwood Public Access Television was broadcasting the meetings, and the meeting was the second one to be filmed.

"I think it's a step in the right direction so they know what their Airport Commission is doing," Commissioner Paul Shaughnessy said.

Airport Manager Russ Maguire also mentioned that agendas and minutes for Commission meetings were now being posted to the town's website.

Towards the end of the meeting, Shaughnessy proposed the idea of adding a public comment section at the end of Airport Commission meetings.

Shaughnessy made a motion "to change the agenda at the end of the meeting so the public can address the manager, ask questions and also ask questions of the Commission (to provide) more openness for the public and transparency."

Commissioners Martin Odstrchel and Michael Sheehan said that the public does have the option get on the agenda for a meeting, which they encourage.

Some commissioners felt that allowing the public to address the Commission and the manager could be problematic if it lengthened meetings or caught members by surprise.

"It's not fair to the manager or the commission. One of the reasons you have a set form is...if someone's going to come up here and play 'I gotcha with a question,'" Sheehan said. "There's also a vehicle in place if someone wants to speak we can vote to suspend the rules and they can speak."

Commissioner Mark Ryan said he was leaning towards the public comment idea, provided the comments were "short and sweet" and there was some control.

The Board voted to table the issue until more investigation could be done into similar practices at other committees and at other airports.

During a review of meeting minutes, Commissioner Hylie Hutchens said that he wanted to have the last meeting's minutes amended to include a motion he made to let Boston Executive Helicopters president Christopher Donovan address the Commission, after Thomas Wynne initially recognized Donovan. Sheehan had said it would require a vote to suspend the rules for Donovan to speak.

"I made a motion to suspend but there was no second. I would like that in the minutes," Hutchens said.

The Commission also heard a recap of the West Apron study by Dubois & King to explore future development options.

Adler said that the West Apron currently caters to Group One aircraft, which tend to be smaller than Group Two corporate style jets. There are 30 tie downs for aircraft, with about 18 or 19 vacancies.

"I get calls all the time for hangar space, not so much for tie downs," said Maguire of the reason for the vacancies. The occupied tie downs account for $28,000 of revenue per year.

The first development option included incorporating more tie downs for Group One aircraft. The second option incorporates box hangars for Group Two aircraft and a few tie downs.

The third option allowed more space for smaller hangars for Group One aircraft, additional hangar space on the DC3 ramp, and around 13 tie downs. The final option planned for a combination of Group One and Two hangars.

"There certainly is room to develop the West Apron and part of DC3 ramp for hangars," said Adler. The ramp's current build must last until 2026, fulfilling its 20-year lifespan, before any development can take place.

The Commission decided to move forward with consolidating occupied tie downs and putting out a request for proposals to lease the part of the ramp with the unoccupied tie downs.

Here is how I propose to make a difference:

- ✓ Lower our tax burden You cannot tax people into prosperity. By lowering taxes, more economic activity will be generated. I will work to reduce the sales tax back to 5 percent and end automatic gas tax hikes.
- ✓ Improve education by allowing teachers to teach and eliminating Common Core.
- ✓ Strengthen public safety We can work to give our law enforcement officials and fire departments the tools they need to protect our families.
- ✓ Stop wasteful spending We can require public accountability of our tax dollars.
- ✓ Revive our economy by supporting small businesses, which create 3 out of every 4 new jobs in Massachusetts.
- ✓ Restore integrity to the State House by ending the practice of secret back room meetings that prevent the public from voicing their opinion. We can initiate a reasonable amount of time for public hearings on fees, taxes, and other public monies.

Join me in preventing Taxation without Representation. On November 4, 2014, vote Yes on Referendum 1, Repeal the Automatic Gasoline Tax increase. Tax increases should not be automatic, they should be voted on.

formed the state average across many grade levels and subjects. Wyeth highlighted the 8th grade results for both ELA and math in particular, calling them a "homerun."

Eighth grade students made a jump from 58 percent proficiency to 64 percent and made a 12-point gain over the statewide results, which saw a drop in proficiency points. On the ELA portion, 8th grade students in Norwood made a jump from 81 percent proficiency to 91 percent, which was also 12 points above the statewide results.

"Hats off to the 8th grade team at the middle school for contributing to that increase," Wyeth said.

Third grade students in the district dropped, but still performed 9 percent better than the state. Fourth grade ELA results were encouraging, and Norwood students performed 11 percent better than the state.

Seventh grade ELA proficiency results were 10 percent higher than the state results and Wyeth said the growth rate was trending towards a high growth rate. Math results remained at a high level, with a good performance on right triangles and trigonometry questions.

Tenth grade saw an incremental increase in ELA proficiency results, up to around 94 percent between all students, while the state fell behind 5 percent.

Non-high needs 10th grade students demonstrated a 99 percent proficiency on the ELA portion of the exam, while high needs students showed 87 percent proficiency, which was the smallest gap between the two populations throughout the test.

The 10th grade MCAS is important because it includes a composition component and is a graduation requirement, Wyeth said.

School officials identified several key areas for district-wide improvement as well.

Fifth grade ELA results for both Norwood and the state declined, though the state performed slightly better. Wyeth said this was likely due to a test effect and that open response questions were a target area for fifth graders.

This group had the largest disparity in proficiency rates between non-high needs and high needs students at 44 points. Non-high needs students exhibited 82 percent proficiency, while high needs students were only at 38 percent proficiency on the 5th grade ELA exam.

Sixth grade ELA results also dropped in the District and across the state due to a test effect. Wyeth said educators would be working more on vocabulary acquisition and use for this age group.

Third and fifth grade math results dropped in the District and across the state. Both grades in Norwood finished about even with the statewide results. Wyeth attributed the performance to a test effect that was being addressed in Norwood through the adoption of a new math program for both grades.

"The fractions were something that was really beefed up on these tests," Wyeth said.

Math for 6th and 7th grade was also identified as a target area for improvement. Norwood 7th grade results dropped seven points from last year and showed low growth rates.

Wyeth attributed this in part to a shift in requirements for Common Core that put a lot of new material into the curriculum.

"Grade seven math is one of the most challenging across the state," Wyeth said. "If you look at the statewide results, they are among the lowest for all these tests."

Overall, non-high needs students showed above 80 percent proficiency on 10 out of the 17 different tests. The gap between these performances and those of high needs students in Norwood must be cut in half by 2017 in accordance with state mandates.

According to the report, high needs students currently do one third as well on the MCAS as the non-high needs student population, but disabled students in Norwood were still outperforming their state peers in 12 out of 17 tests.

Wyeth said steps were being taken to address the areas of low growth in proficiency for both populations - non-high needs students only showed low growth in 5th grade math, while high needs students showed low growth in 5th grade ELA and 5th and 7th grade math - and that the MCAS is only one of many measures of student performance.

More information on the 2014 MCAS results is available on the School District's website.

Mustang Field Hockey still perfect Runs record to 13-0-1 with wins over Milton and Dedham

Another week, another pair of victories for the Norwood Mustangs field hockey team, a juggernaut that now stands at 13-0-1 on the season.

“We’re a team that people are going to be looking to beat, getting excited to play,” said head coach Allison Doliner following her team’s 7-2 throttling of Milton last Thursday. “We need to make sure the intensity that we brought to some other games, we need to make sure we have that for every single game.

“You can’t let down. You let down, silly mistakes happen. But they’ve been pretty good about bringing the intensity every time,” Doliner said of her team.

Norwood also defeated Dedham last Saturday evening,

5-2, under the lights at Norwood High School. According to the Norwood Mustangs official twitter account (@NHS_Mustangs), it was the first girls sporting event played under the lights at home in school history.

The Mustangs, who have yet to trail this season, played a quiet first 10 minutes or so against Milton on Thursday before erupting for five goals in a 7 minute, 13 second span in the middle of the first half. Maura O’Neill got the party started with a hard-earned goal in traffic at the 18:35 mark, followed by a Kacie Smith goal as she ran along the baseline at 15:26. Hannah Benson chipped in with a goal at 13:52, Smith found the net again at 12:47, and Katherine Gillis capped off the ridiculous run with a goal of her own at 11:22. When the dust settled, Norwood had a 5-0 lead.

Milton did get two goals near the end of the half, including one on the first shot they took of the game with a little more than four minutes left. Even so, Norwood had quadrupled the number of shots to Milton (20 to 5) in the first half, and led 5-2 at the break.

To put the game away, Sammy Hayes had a pair of goals 57 seconds apart early in the second half, ensuring a Norwood romp. Beth Tobio Junior Forward Hannah Benson contributed to yet another stellar performance for Norwood Field Hockey.

Boys Golf prepares for playoffs despite recent losses

One more regular season match before it's off to the Division II south sectional tournament for the Norwood Mustangs golf team.

Norwood stands at 7-5-1, assured of a winning season on top of the post-season berth. But since clinching a spot in the sectionals vs. Weymouth on Oct. 2, the Mustangs have scuffled a bit, going 0-1-1 in the two matches that have followed. This mini-speed bump includes an 89-89 draw vs. Needham and an 80-59 loss to Newton North, a 21-point defeat which was the Mustangs' second-worst loss of the season.

Six players will comprise the Mustangs' sectionals roster, as per allowed by the MIAA for winning at least 50 percent of their team's matches. Had Norwood won less than half of their matches, only one Mustang would have been permitted to compete.

Captains Mike Murphy and Chris Ciriello, along with Paul Galvin, David Saad, Nick Naumann and Mike Saad will represent Norwood in the tournament, which will be held at Easton Country Club on Monday, Oct. 20. It wasn't easy for head coach Jim Sweeney to select six golfers from his roster of 13.

"All 13 were contributors for us as a qualifying team," said Sweeney. "I just told them, you guys earned your way in by competing and playing well."

"I told them to put their best foot forward, and let the scores play out they way they do," Sweeney continued. "The six guys that I picked, they earned their way to go there and represent the team."

There are two aspects to the sectionals tournament: the team and the individual. Advancing in the tournament, to the state finals, is conditional on the size of the field, which is still to be determined. Generally, two or three teams advance to states, Sweeney said. Team scores are added together, with the lowest two or three teams moving on.

Individually, the top 10 percent of participants move on to the state finals. This usually includes six or seven golfers, according to Sweeney.

Murphy, Ciriello and David Saad were also selected by Sweeney to participate in the Bay State Conference championship on Oct. 8. Three players from each of the BSC's 12 teams participated, with the top 10 finishers (plus ties) earning "all-star" nominations. Brookline won the team aspect of the event, with their three players combining for a lower score than any other team's three. It was a stroke play event, rather than the conference's usual version of a modified-Stableford scoring system. Ciriello came closest to finishing in the top 10 for Norwood, shooting an 84.

Norwood's final regular season match was on Tuesday vs. Walpole, in a match held after the Record's deadline. Norwood is 5-0-1 on the season at home, and will be looking for some momentum to close the regular season.

"Just playing them well at home," said Sweeney when asked of his expectations for the match. "To beat [Walpole] at home going into it, I think would be a good feeling."

Norwood Football falters against Wellesley

Jake Levin
Staff Reporter

Something had to give in last Friday night's football game between Norwood and Wellesley.

In a game in which the teams came into the contest with identical 0-4 records, as well as matching minus-88 point differentials, the Wellesley Raiders prevailed, 35-6.

The first and only home night game for the Mustangs on the season drew a big crowd to Norwood High School, on a reasonably cool fall evening. But too much firepower from Wellesley in the first half made the result of the game a formality before Norwood even had a chance to catch its breath.

"Not much can be said about Friday night," head coach Jim Tighe said via email on Monday. "Very frustrating. Our execution needs to be better on offense, and we need to play better on third down defense."

"We need to eliminate unnecessary penalties," Tighe concluded.

Wellesley scored on each of their first three possessions of the game to make it 21-0, hardly playing the part of a winless team. Zack Pungitore would add the lone touchdown on the evening for the Mustangs in the third quarter. Joe Mazzotta was the Mustangs' leading tackler, with 10 on the evening.

At 0-5, Norwood has similar stats at this point this year they did through five games last year, when they also started 0-5. The defense has been improved, giving up 40 points fewer in their first five games this season. The offense has remained about the same, scoring four points fewer than the same stretch a season ago.

Norwood has three games left in the regular season, which includes their annual Thanksgiving game vs. Dedham. There is also the post-season, which all teams qualify for, and includes a consolation bracket. All told, Norwood is still guaranteed five games left on the season.

This week, the Mustangs will try to enter the win column for the first time in 2014, at home again vs. Walpole on Saturday at 2:30 p.m. The Rebels won last year's contest, 35-6 at Walpole High School.

Girls Volleyball aims for strong finish

Jake Levin
Staff Reporter

The Norwood Mustangs volleyball team continues to try and find its way after a 3-0 loss to Ursuline Academy last week.

The Mustangs are in the midst of a 6-game losing streak, and overall stand at 3-11 on the season. Head coach Paul Nimblett knows his team is capable of a breakthrough, but with just six matches left on the season, time is running out.

"It's one of those things, we battle with teams," said Nimblett after the loss to Ursuline. "We're in every set. 7-7, 10-10, and then they make a little run, and we make a couple errors. In volleyball, it's all about momentum."

Nimblett and the Mustangs have had to overcome the loss of captain Amanda Springer to a torn ACL, leaving a huge hole in the middle for Norwood.

"It's tough," said Nimblett. "She's still there, she's still being a leader the best she can. She's just not out on the floor, and it makes a big difference."

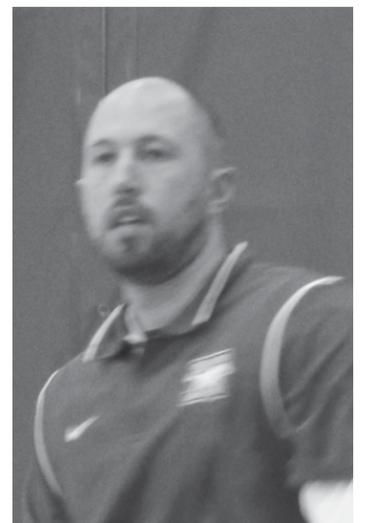

Amanda, she's a big part of our team, and it's unfortunate we lost her, but we still have more season left."

With six matches to go, Norwood faces an uphill battle in qualifying for the Bay State Conference post-season tournament, but a slight chance still remains.

"We just have to keep bat-

Volleyball

Paul Nimblett

ting, and keep focused,” Nimblett continued. The coach will continue to preach ‘the little things’ moving forward, continuing to maintain focus in a tied set at 10-10, for example, and not letting serve-receive go awry. “What they need to do is buckle down and get over that hump. There’s adversity in a game, it can turn like that.”

Of the six matches remaining, five are against BSC opponents. As Nimblett points out, there will be a level of familiarity in these matches, as it’s the portion of the schedule where teams face each other for a second time.

Whether that can help or hurt the Mustangs remains to be seen, but Norwood will have a chance to get back on track this week. Each match is at home, including Tuesday vs. Milton, a match which takes place after the Record’s deadline, and today at 4 p.m. vs. Dedham. The match against Dedham may come at a perfect time for the Mustangs, as they’ll face a Dedham team that is winless (0-10) on the season.

The season winds up the following week, a busier slate for the Mustangs with three of the final four matches coming on the road. The season finale is Monday, Oct. 27 at home vs. Walpole.

Despite a losing record, the Norwood Girls' Volleyball team is confident going into its final six matches.

saved nine of the 11 shots she faced overall on the afternoon.

In addition to being the first girl’s night game in school history, Saturday was a pink-out game. Norwood wore pink jerseys in honor of October’s Breast Cancer Awareness Month. Both O’Neill and Smith had a pair of goals in the victory. For Smith, the tallies put her at 30 goals for the season, and 50 for her career.

The Mustangs moved up one spot in the Boston Globe Top 20 poll this week, up to No. 6. Walpole (11-0-3) is the only other Bay State Conference team in the poll, maintaining their No. 3 spot in this week’s ranking.

A Thursday afternoon match at Wellesley (6-4-3) is the only game action for the Mustangs this week, and they have just three regular season games left overall. The Raiders gave Norwood one of their closest calls earlier this season, a 2-1 Mustangs victory on Sept. 16 at Norwood High School.
