Town officials are seeking funds to begin the renovation of the Chapel of St. Gabriel the Archangel at the Highland Cemetery.

At the Oct. 13 Board of Selectmen meeting, Town General Manager John Carroll announced the intention to request $175,000 at the upcoming Town Meeting in November for design plans and specifications for the chapel's restoration, which was unanimously accepted onto the Warrant by the Selectmen.

Carroll said the chapel had some elements come into disrepair and that it was the Town of Norwood's obligation to keep it in good shape, and that they would not likely be receiving any financial aid from the state's historic commission.

Public Works Superintendent Mark Ryan agreed that the chapel is in need of a renovation.

"There is significant damage to the interior brick work, exterior brick work and wood beams because of water infiltration," Ryan said, noting that the project is included in the fiscal year 2017 portion of Norwood's Capital Improvement Plan. "Since 2009, the town has contracted with two separate architectural firms that came to the same conclusion that significant damage has occurred over the years and a restoration project is necessary if we are to Another proposed development for the old Plimpton Press site is set to come before the Town.

Developers Avalon Bay, Inc. filed for a project eligibility letter with the state for a 40B housing development that will feature 218 town homes and apartments spread across 45 buildings. Norwood is yet to receive a full application for a comprehensive permit for the project, though the Selectmen did receive word of the company's intent.

Town officials believe that the application could reach the Zoning Board before the winter.

The Massachusetts Housing Partnership sent notification to the Town that it has 30 days to submit comments regarding the project, which Selectman Bill Plasko had warned of on Oct. 6.

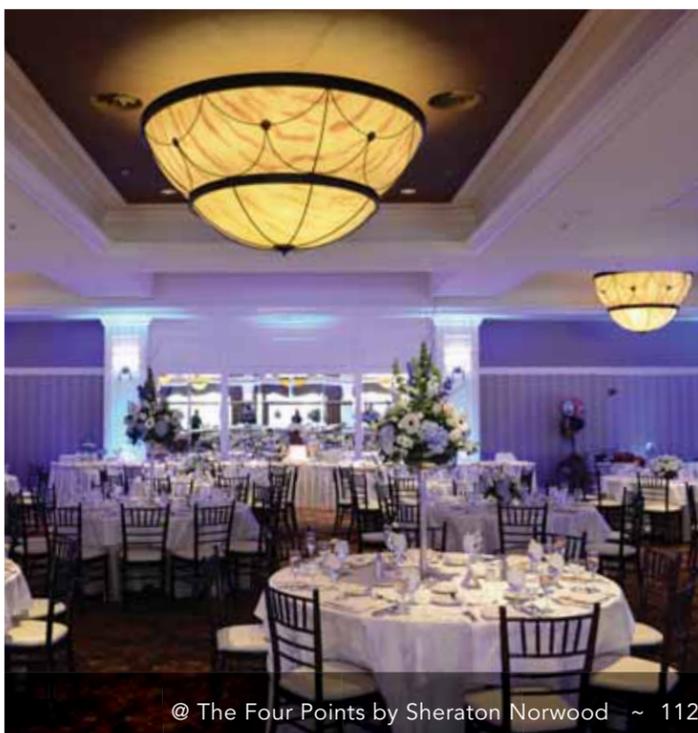

Plasko said that based on what he's seen of the project, he has concerns about a rodent issue there which should be taken care of "whether the project goes forward or not."

Town and public safety officials took part in an official site visit of Plimpton Press to prepare their comments on the morning of Oct. 21.

So far, it is known that the planned apartments would be confined to a four-story building, while the town homes would occupy the

 Coordinated Family and Community Engagement coordinator Carole Poirier was happy to announce the success so far of the recently opened playgroup and tutoring facility Village Center.

Poirier, who is also the Title 1, English Language Learner and grants coordinator, said Village Center, located at 82 Roosevelt Ave., had been completed over the summer with the help of partners Norwood Housing Authority. Norwood Housing Authority owns the building and donated it to the preschool program, which has bounced around the district's elementary schools for several years.

"It's really an exciting project for me. It looks small from the outside, but it's perfect for what we're using it for," Poirier said.

The building is a small, two-bedroom house that has been converted into a facility with a playroom, new educational supplies, resources for parents, and a tutoring center complete with recycled computers from Norwood Public Schools. Village Center also has a take-home books program that Poirier said allows children to expand their home libraries, as well as loaner books throughout the year.

According to the Norwood Housing Authority, the building was previously used by contractors for storage of materials before they gave it a facelift

Selectmen discuss 40B fight

Sam Nickerson
Staff Reporter

The Board of Selectmen discussed several issues related to the Town's current fight against 40B developments during its Oct. 20 meeting.

The Massachusetts Housing Partnership sent a letter that it has received a "Request of Project Eligibility" from developers Avalon Bay, Inc. on behalf of AvalonBay Communities, Inc. for a housing development at the former Plimpton Press site, street address 119-165 Lenox St. The Board said officials made a site visit on Oct. 21 to view the site in preparation of making comments about the project.

Additionally, two residents - Denis Drummey and Mary Cassidy - made public records requests regarding work on the 1.5 Percent Task Force and the Town's status regarding having 1.5 percent of its developable land area dedicated to affordable housing. Drummey included a deadline of Oct. 28 for his request, to which Selectmen Chair Paul Bishop said Town Counsel was working to address.

In response, Selectman Bill Plasko cited a quote by a Cheryl Richardson. "Some people are fueled by drama, but that doesn't mean you have to attend the performance. I've been trying to live by that for over a year now," Plasko said, citing Drummey, Kevin Pentowski and others, who he said have spread "misinformation" in letters to the editor and in other ways.

Plasko said the request for the information was valid, but took issue with Drummey's letter.

"Mr. Drummey has every right to ask for this information... but in his letter ... he has to go on and make basically accusations and challenges to people's credibility and personally, I've just had enough of it," Plasko said. "It goes without merit, it's demeaning. The whole process would be much better if people in town with the same concern we have ... would use their energy to support our town officials rather than try to undermine them at every turn.

"According to Plasko, the letter contained challenges to the Town's selection of Karis North as the Town's counsel in the legal proceedings against the Forbes Hill project. Plasko called Drummey's assertion that North was 0-2 "untrue." Plasko touted her credentials, which included publication in Municipal Law Quarterly and honors from colleagues.

In the letter, Drummey suggested hiring attorney Dan Hill and 40B consultant Dick Heaton to represent the Town. Plasko said he has reviewed seven or eight cases the attorney has made before the Housing Appeals Committee, and saw no victories.

"They might be experienced in going before the committee, but that doesn't make them an expert in the matter when they continually fail," Plasko said.

Similarly, he said the proposed 40B consultant was also a problematic selection.

"In fact, the Housing Appeals Committee has specifically criticized his work and his methodology and even his math," Plasko said.

Bishop invoked the image of Nikita Khrushchev during the Cold War, paraphrasing a quote and drawing parallels to Norwood's 1.5 percent situation.

"We're destroying ourselves from within," he said.

The Selectmen also voted to include an article on the Town Meeting Warrant that was brought forth by a signed petition with 125 verified signatures (100 is the threshold). The article suggests appropriating $125,000 from free cash or another source to hire a specialized counsel and a 40B consultant for the Town.

The issue was preceded by a discussion of the amount of free cash currently available. Plasko said the $2,598,112 that was left was not very much and that the Town was "not in a very strong financial position based on the availability of free cash."

Bishop said some of that had already been earmarked for certain uses and there would be "very little money going into Town Meeting."

The stakes are very high

This 40B nightmare just keeps getting worse and worse in that it is the gift that could just keep on giving (or taking, depending on how you want to look at it). Many incorrectly thought that should the Davis Group succeed in the courts and win the right to build hundreds of apartment units in the Upland Woods neighborhood known as Forbes Hill, right next to the hundreds of apartment units already under construction by Campanelli, that this would at least provide Norwood with more than enough low income/dense housing to withstand any challenges by developers in the future. In fact, a representative of the Davis Group used this as an argument to allow his project to go forward while in front of Norwood's Zoning Board of Appeals.

It appears that should any other 40B paperwork be filed with the state prior to a settlement of the Forbes Hill matter in the courts, the merits of these applications will be based on Norwood's low income density at the time the application is filed, not based on the disposition of Forbes Hill. In other words, should the court find that Norwood does not have 1.5 percent of its land or 10 percent of its housing stock dedicated to affordable housing under state law, not only will the Davis Group build its monstrosity at Forbes Hill, but other proposed projects filed prior to this finding could have the same advantages of skirting local zoning laws and be allowed to build.

One such project proposing to build 218 town homes and apartments at the former Plimpton Press site on Lenox Avenue is already in the pipeline, as Avalon Bay developers filed for a project eligibility letter to the state. Assuming their application to build is filed with the Town in a timely manner, there will be little in the way of stopping the project from moving forward. So, should Norwood lose their fight with the Davis Group, Norwood would be in very serious trouble as close to a thousand housing units, at least that we know of now, will be ready for occupancy in the not too distant future.

Of course, the glass half full scenario would be that Norwood prevails against the Davis Group and secures safe haven against all other would be dense housing proposals, including the Plimpton Press plan. To say that there is a lot riding on this Forbes Hill court case would be an understatement of epic proportions. The taxing of public services would be difficult to comprehend, saying nothing about the potential for serious degradation in current real estate values.

Town Meeting voted in favor of a proposed 238 units at the Plimpton Press site filed under a much town friendlier 40R application by the Finley family in May of last year. This may have closed the door on other developers, including the Davis Group, from moving forward with their projects but, unfortunately failed to garner a necessary two-thirds vote for it to pass.

During all of the discussions prior to that vote, it became obvious that this issue had divided residents more than any other this newspaper had ever witnessed. Well, it is time to put all animosities aside and come together for the common good. Everyone needs to silence the vitriol and all the "I told you so's" and become a more cohesive, constructive force to defeat this very real threat to the quality of life for all Norwood residents. The stakes are just too high not to.

Letters to the Editor

RECENT LETTER ASSUMES A LOT

To the Editor:

In a recent letter to the editor, Mr. Conor Kenney states that the town must hire two consultants if the town hopes to win its case for having reached 1.5 percent and block the latest 40B development off Upland Drive. The truth is, no city or town in the Commonwealth has ever won a claim to be at 1.5 percent before the Housing Court. It would seem Mr. Kenney places a lot of faith in two individuals who could not have won a 1.5 percent case at the Housing Court since no town has ever won. So what leads him to believe they would win if hired by the Town of Norwood?

As for Mr. Kenney's claim that Norwood has been at 1.5 percent for the past three years, his belief borders on the delusional. Norwood only approached the 1.5 percent after the town purchased several lots within the town in the last year or so.

Miller also said that crews at the Balch have begun removing the old light pole bases and have started trenching in the ground for the conduit. Miller said work at the Balch should be finished by Nov. 1.

Miller reported that the department sold 3,000 of around 5,000 Norwood Day buttons and broke even as far as funds going into the event and after, with a total of $8,000.

Deer cull commences, but Norwood's problem is minimal

Sam Nickerson
Staff Reporter

In response to deer overpopulation in the Blue Hills State Reservation, state officials have announced a four-day controlled hunt to regulate deer numbers in hopes of preserving the fragile ecosystem.

The hunts will take place from 5 a.m. to 5 p.m. on Nov. 30, Dec. 1, Dec. 7 and Dec. 8 on around 3,000 acres of the reservation's 7,000 total acres. Officials say the hunt will be limited to the parts of the reservation that sit north of Route I-93.

"The health of the Blue Hills State Reservation's forest has been, and continues to be, negatively affected by the current overabundance of deer within the region," said Department of Conservation and Recreation (DCR) Commissioner Carol Sanchez. "This controlled hunt, modeled after the hugely successful initiative at DCR's Quabbin Reservoir, will allow the agency to revitalize the Blue Hills ecosystem and ensure its health for years to come."

The state plans to issue 196 hunting licenses that will be distributed via lottery to an applicant pool. These hunters will be split into groups of 98 hunters each, and will be allowed 30 acres of land to hunt for two consecutive days. Each hunter will be allowed to harvest up to two male and two female deer.

Louis Santoro of the Norwood Sportsmen said, "There will be some of the members who will apply for Blue Hills permits" for the hunt. Normally, hunters in Norwood are limited to asking permission to hunting on private land or seeking out wildlife management areas. In Norwood, hunting and shooting is not allowed by law, unless the Selectmen provide explicit consent.

Officials have said a public drawing will be held to award the licenses and the selected hunters will have to go through a brief course to find out about the hunt's strict regulations.

The hunt is being organized between the DCR, the Department of Fish and Game (DFG), the state's Environment and Energy Affairs Secretary Matthew Beaton, and several law enforcement agencies, including the Environmental Police and the State Police.

According to DCR Deputy Commissioner Matt Sisk, the organizers held three public meetings in Milton, Quincy, and Canton for comments about the hunt. In response to the comments from supporters and those opposed, the organizers decided to hold the hunt, but reduced the number of licenses and increasing hunting boundaries in the property.

"We heard all of their concerns, but at the end of the day, it is the most effective way to reduce the herd," Sisk said.

Despite Norwood's proximity to the Blue Hills reservation, Animal Control officer Henry Cerqueira said deer are not as much of a problem in town as they are in neighboring communities.

"We don't have as much of an issue. Walpole has a lot of deer, they have on the average

Ryan said that the chapel has undergone several minor repairs before, and that insurance covered the replacement of the building's copper roof after a windstorm blew it off in 2012.

The chapel, which was donated by the Day family and consecrated on May 30, 1903, was given to the Town so that any Norwood resident could hold funeral services for their loved ones there free of charge and regardless of religion.

“It was a very generous and also very liberal progressive idea at the time,” said local historian and St. Gabriel chapel supporter Patricia Fanning. “Norwood has always been pretty diverse, so it's kind of a neat thing to have.”

The driving forces behind the chapel were Frederick Holland Day, a renowned Norwood photographer, and his parents, Lewis and Anna Day. Lewis Day served on the cemetery committee when the cemetery was founded in 1880, and the building was dedicated to Lewis and Hannah's parents, Joseph and Hannah Rhoades Day and Lyman and Melinda Guild Smith.

According to Fanning, a dedication note was made during the dedication of the support the Days and Smiths showed to their hometown.

“They were among those who comprised the small family of the early town of South Dedham, who were interested in its prosperity and its moral welfare. Here they lived and labored and died and we have entered into their labors,” the dedication read.

The gothic chapel, designed by architect Ralph Adams Cram of Cram, Goodhue and Ferguson - the firm was part of Frederick Day's artistic circle in Boston - features granite, limestone, marble, wrought iron decorative grills, oak pews, and wood from an 18th century South Dedham farm house for the door, among other architectural features.

The design was based off of 15th century styling, which enabled the use of simple proportions rather than excessive decorations for an elegant look. According to Fanning, the lectern is an original piece that is believed to be several centuries old.

“Cram went on to become one of the nation's preeminent ecclesiastic architects,” Fanning said, noting that Cram would go on to design the Cathedral of St. John the Divine in New York City and the chapel at Princeton University.

Inside the chapel, two sarcophagi mark the final resting places of Lewis and Anna Day, while another two lie empty. They were presumably for Frederick Holland Day and a spouse, though Day never married and was cremated after he died in 1933. Fanning believes the building may be the only such mortuary chapel in Massachusetts.

Recognizing the chapel's historical importance in Norwood, Fanning and others organized two concert series in 2014 to bring people inside the building and garner interest in its upkeep. In years past, Fanning said, it had been used for storage and the storm that knocked the roof off served as a wakeup call to preserve the building.

“While the chapel is used in lieu of graveside services during inclement weather as well as for various concert events and tours, it was closed recently per the recommendations of the structural engineer that has inspected the structure,” Ryan said. Fanning said a fall 2015 concert series at the chapel had to be moved as a result.

According to structural assessments of the building in 2013, it was found that “wood rot was prevalent toward the south end of the probe in both the decking and roof rafters. Water damage is evident at all of the rafter ends, and three of the four exposed rafters exhibit widespread cracking, splitting, and material loss at their bearing ends. These end connections are significantly compromised, creating an imminent threat to the building.”

Ryan anticipates that a complete restoration would cost around $1.1 million. Fanning said that the Day family left $5,000 for upkeep of the chapel, and the Town has continued to use the interest on that $5,000 for basic work around the chapel. During the concert series, organizers also sold postcards and accepted donations from individuals and organizations, like the Women's Community Committee, for the chapel.

Fanning said she would like to see the chapel restored to its original grandeur.

“It will be an absolute gem of a building,” she said, likening its donation to other similar donations by Town fathers, including the Morrill Memorial Library and the Carillon at Memorial Hall. “It's connected so much to the history of the town. It was built for the townspeople in memory of some of the founders of the Town.”

40-50 deer that get hit (by cars)," Cerqueira, who also helps out in Walpole, said. "We probably have maybe 10 here in Norwood."

Cerqueira said many deer used to be located near the old Polaroid site off of Route 1A. Recent residential developments in the area have almost surely forced them to move on.

According to Cerqueira, some groups, such as the Animal Rescue League, had proposed a sterilization program in lieu of the hunt. Cerqueira said that nature has shown that it has ways of working around these programs, which can also be quite costly. He said the state's biologists have examined the deer population extensively and believe that the hunt is the best and most efficient option.

Currently, researchers believe that there are at least 85 deer per square mile of forest in the reservation, which is well over the sustainable density range of six to 18 deer per square mile.

"When they have the hunting licenses, people to go and tag them," Cerqueira said. "This gives an idea of how many are being taken out of certain areas, how many come in and out."

As for public safety, the organizers of the hunt have ensured that signs will be posted at each trailhead around the reservation, which will be checked daily. There will also be electronic message boards along major highways, including Routes 28, 128, and 24, and other roads that crisscross the reservation.

During each of the four days of the hunt, there will be a "command center" for all of the coordinating agencies, as well as staff on the ground from the DCR, DFG, and law enforcement.

According to Sisk, hunters are welcome to keep the meat for themselves, and the coordinating agencies will provide a place for the meat to be kept. While Sisk did not believe the meat could be sold, he suggested the hunters may be able to give it away or donate it to shelters.

Cerqueira said Norwood Airport used to have a deer problem, which resulted in at least one deer struck by a plane. After he joined Airport Manager Russ Maguire and the State Police on a deer count, it was determined that the large population of deer could be kept from the airport with a fence. Cerqueira said several police officers received permission to do a limited hunt as well.

Cerqueira said nature is often able to regulate populations on its own, as links between coyote and deer populations have shown. One year in Walpole, animal control officers noted that the deer getting hit by cars were male, which cut down on the number of mating deer.

"Nature knows itself how to control things," Cerqueira said. "It needs a little help, that's why they have these hunts."

Hunters interested in applying for a license should visit the Blue Hills Reservation's website.

"Unfortunately the high deer population is destroying habitat for birds and other animals," said Executive Director of the Friends of the Blue Hills Judy Jacobs. "The deer population needs to be brought down to a healthy level through a controlled hunt for the health of the forests, its inhabitants and visitors."

and some interior renovations, including knocking down walls between bedrooms to create larger spaces.

Village Center hosted an open house and tour of its new facility on Oct. 21. The facility offers playgroups, which will be offered for children ages 2-5 and tutoring will be available for those in first and second grade. The first fall playgroups began on Oct. 6 and registration for spring offerings will take place throughout the fall and winter.

Poirier said it is important to start "at birth working on cognitive development," and signs around the facility say they are "a brain building facility." Similarly, while the program has always tutored fourth and fifth graders, Poirier said getting started earlier with students in need is more beneficial.

The program's slogan is: "Have big dreams. You'll grow into them."

No Town of Norwood funds needed to be allocated for the project, which was funded by Massachusetts Department of Early Education and Care grants secured by Poirier and donations. In addition to Norwood Housing Authority staff, Poirier's husband, as well as Norwood Public Schools Building and Grounds staff helped with the labor, while the furniture was donated anonymously.

Superintendent of Schools James Hayden said Poirier had been a "woman on a mission" to complete this project and thanked her for creating a buzz in the neighborhood around the facility.

"This has been a neighborhood excitement, also. We're out in the community because of your efforts," Hayden said to Poirier.

Poirier said she hopes to open another similar facility in South Norwood in the near future as well.

As part of the state's 40B laws, the project, if approved, would not be subject to local zoning laws, provided Norwood does not have 1.5 percent of its land or 10 percent of its housing stock dedicated to affordable housing. Under this same state law, the entire complex could be counted towards meeting the Town's local need, even though only 25 percent of the units need to be affordable.

In May 2014, Town Meeting rejected plans by the Finley family and Charlotte Maynard to put a 238-unit 40R development at Plimpton Press, when it could not garner a two-thirds vote. The project fell despite a favorable vote of 93-70.

The project would have included apartments and condo units, and would have featured a commercial section. As a result, Lenox Street would have been unblocked.

The Avalon Bay developers plan demolish the existing buildings onsite, which have gone unused for years, and they said none are still useable.

The property would also require substantial environmental cleanup work, as the site's industrial past means the ground is still contaminated, though Halkiotis said the current owners have attempted to do the work in order to make the property more marketable.

Under 40R laws, the project would have gone before the Planning Board and could still work around local zoning restrictions, though the Town does have more room to work with the developers. The regulations call for smart growth overlay districts to be created and provide financial incentives to do so.

The Town of Norwood had achieved a safe harbor status from 40B projects for two years, which expired on Sept. 5. On Sept. 8, the Town received a comprehensive permit application for a 300-unit housing development off Upland Road.

On Oct. 6, the Zoning Board of Appeals unanimously voted to deny the application based on the Town's calculations that it has reached 1.5 percent of land used for affordable housing. The developers are anticipated to file an appeal with the state Department of Housing and Community Development when Norwood officially reports its denial.

According to the Planning Department, accepting the Forbes Hill development off Upland Road would not prevent Avalon Bay's application, even though Norwood would then be above the local need threshold. And if the Housing Appeals Committee has determined Norwood has not reached the 1.5 percent - and the Avalon Bay application has already been submitted - the Town will be unable to deny the project based on the 1.5 percent argument.

Field Hockey falls to Needham, downs Wellesley

Jake Levin
Staff Reporter

Norwood had few, if any answers for the soaring Needham Rockets in a 4-1 loss at home last Thursday afternoon.

After allowing just four goals in their previous seven games combined, the Mustangs allowed exactly that number on the turf of Norwood High School vs. the Rockets, the most they'd given up in a single game in the last two seasons.

"They're a strong program," said Norwood head coach Allison Doliner following the loss to the Rockets, who are ranked No. 4 in the Boston Globe Top 20 poll with a 12-0-2 record. Needham is also two-time defending champions of the Bay State-Carey Division. "Stephanie [Magni] has done a great job the last couple of years. No. 18 [Allinson Brinkhaus] was the Carey MVP last year."

Bryn Garczynski scored for Norwood just 3:59 into the contest, a blistering slap shot that gave the Mustangs a 1-0 lead for the time being.

They would manage just one more shot on goal in the half, giving up three unanswered goals to the Rockets in the process. Needham had a 14-1 advantage in corners during the game, including a 9-1 advantage in the first half.

Doliner wouldn't make any excuses for the loss, regardless of Needham's record. But she did see the game as a learning opportunity for her team as the regular season winds down, with just three games left before the tournament.

"A loss is a loss at the end of the day, you don't really shoot for that," said Doliner. "It's not bad as the season winds down to have a reality check. You're not always going to be ahead. You're not always going to be the team that scores first. You're not always going to be the team that has a one, two or three-goal cushion. Moving into the postseason, that's something we need to work around. We need to work around being able to come back if teams put in a couple of goals against us."

"It's not a bad lesson learned going into the tournament."

Needham tied the score at 10:23 of the first half, and took the lead at 16:08.

"We had a good idea about the kind of game they were going to play coming into it,"

The Mustangs Field Hockey team gave up as many goals on Oct. 15 vs. Needham as they had in the seven games prior in a 4-1 defeat. Here, Hannah Benson battles for position with a Needham Rocket opponent.

said Doliner of the Rockets strategy. "We did a great job the first 10 minutes making them adjust, then they made those adjustments, and we didn't."

Norwood had five days off between the Needham game and Tuesday's game against Wellesley, where the Mustangs got back on track with a 2-0 shutout win over the Raiders. Maura O'Neill and Garczynski scored for Norwood, while Beth Tobio notched the shutout in goal. O'Neill also assisted on Garczynski's goal; O'Neill's goal was assisted by Valerie Quinlan.

This afternoon is Senior Day for the Mustangs, when they welcome the Natick Redhawks to town at 3:45 p.m. The game will be played on the Norwood High football field rather than the front lawn. Earlier this season, the Mustangs breezed by the Redhawks, 5-1, on Sept. 24.

After Natick, it's a pair of away games for Norwood to close out the regular season: at Newton North at 3:45 p.m. on Tuesday, and a rematch with the Walpole Porkers a week from today at 5 p.m. at Walpole High School.

Lepley named new girls hoops coach

Jake Levin
Staff Reporter

Norwood High School's search for its new girls basketball coach ended with the hiring of one of its own last week.

Amy Lepley, a math teacher at Norwood High who spent the previous two seasons coaching the girls JV team, will take over for Alex DaLuz following his departure for the boys head coaching position at Seekonk High School, his alma mater.

"I've wanted to be a varsity coach since I was in high school, really," said Lepley, who won four consecutive Eastern Athletic Conference titles while starring at Bishop Feehan High School from 2005-09. "So this is really like a dream come true for me. So I applied, went through the interview process. It all worked out."

Boys Soccer draws with Stoughton

Jake Levin
Staff Reporter

Two early goals for Saurav Kandel were neutralized by two second half goals from Stoughton as Norwood played to a 2-2 draw on Senior Day.

Kandel scored in the third and 16th minute of the first half for the Mustangs (2-10-3), the latter of which gave Norwood only its second two-goal cushion of the season. But a lackadaisical remainder of the contest cost the Mustangs a second point, as well as a season sweep of the Black Knights.

"I honestly did not think that that was their best game of the season," said Norwood head coach Jason Andrews after the game. Andrews called a timeout a few minutes after the second goal, to try to keep the Mustangs on track, but a creaky remainder of the first half derailed the momentum of the 2-0 advantage. "I was happy that we scored, but when I took the timeout, I said 'you guys are up 2-0, but it's not our style of game.'"

Norwood came from a goal down to knock off the Black Knights, 2-1, on Sept. 25 in Stoughton.

"It just didn't happen this game," said Andrews, citing a lack of crisp passing and too many turnovers for his team to preserve the lead. "I think they got a little nervous in the second half when Stoughton scored, and started playing very responsive soccer, instead of aggressive."

The Black Knights struck quickly in the second half, with goals in both the fifth and ninth minutes.

Vying for a second point, the teams traded chances for the duration of the second half, the best opportunity for either side being a hit goal post for Stoughton in the 21st minute.

Norwood also had its chances, including a bid from Adam Gold off a free kick in the 18th minute, as well as Declan O'Brien slipping behind a Black Knight defender in the 23rd minute, getting a shot off but sending it well over the crossbar.

Despite only coming away with a draw, Andrews was still pleased that his team was able to come away with three of a four possible points against Stoughton this season.

"I'm happy with that, Stoughton was tough," he said. "They press a lot of guys up top. Their defense knows how to push the ball up and support the offense."

"I'm happy with the result [today], I'm happy we got a point, I just thought it was going to turn out a little bit better after those first two goals."

The game was played at Norwood High School rather than Father Mac's due to the Senior Day ceremonies.

With just two games left, Andrews is hoping the team can build a little bit of momentum for next season, while sending out the senior class on a high note.

"They have to stop trying to score goals, and start trying to play soccer, if that makes any sense," Andrews went on to explain. "They need to get the ball worked with passes. They need to support each other, and they need to transition better. We need to leave it in good shape for next year's class, in terms of the style we play."

Norwood was at Wellesley on Tuesday, in an event held after the Record's deadline. Today, they play their final road game of the season at Natick, at 3:45 p.m., and then wrap up the season on Tuesday at home (back over at Father Mac's) vs. Newton North, also at 3:45 p.m.

Lepley, a Norfolk native, would go on to star at Holy Cross from 2009-13, scoring more than 1,000 points in her career with the Crusaders. She was a two-time all-Patriot League selection while on campus, in 2012 and 2013. Lepley served as a captain at both Feehan and Holy Cross in her respective senior years.

Of the 15 players on the Mustangs roster by the end of last season, only one, Julia Copponi, was lost to graduation. There is plenty of returning talent for Norwood, which excites Lepley.

"It's awesome, I think another thing that really helps me is that I know the girls really well, having coached them for the last two years," said Lepley, who's ecstatic that she'll be able to teach and coach in the same building. "They're very experienced. They've been playing together since they were younger. So I think that's going to be a huge plus for me coming in. I'm really excited about this team; they're a group of girls that works really well together."

Schematically, Lepley said she doesn't plan on making any big changes from DaLuz's system, but added that there are some things she did while playing she may try to incorporate on both the offensive and defensive ends of the floor.

"I'd really like an up-tempo kind of game, hopefully we can play that type of game," she said of the offensive end. "It won't be drastically different, because they did so well last season, so I'm not really trying to change a whole bunch, but I will throw some new things in there."

Glancing ahead, Lepley already knows exactly what the team needs to accomplish this season: to win a tournament game, especially after losing in the first round the previous two seasons by a combined five points.

"Every team should want to win the state championship, so that's our big one," said Lepley of her teams goals. Norwood has gone 29-17 in the two seasons since she joined the coaching staff, including a 16-7 mark last winter. "Last year, we did a really good job in qualifying for the state tournament, and getting a home game, but this year, we need to win a state tournament game."

Swim team continues to make strides

Jake Levin
Staff Reporter

Going into nearly every match undermanned, Norwood swimming coach Jennifer Rodger has had the Mustangs competitive in the majority of their meets this season.

After securing its first win of the season over Weymouth on Oct. 13, a 104-70 triumph, Norwood (1-7) fell to Braintree, 102-84, last Friday, and more recently was edged by Framingham, 96-85, on Tuesday.

Among the highlights of the meet vs. the Flyers was the 400-yard free relay group winning its heat. Austin Reardon, Victoria Mullen, Grace Gillis and Brendan Hurley swam their way to victory.

Norwood had a chance to tie vs. the Wamps on Friday heading into the 400-yard free relay as well. Had the Mustangs placed first, second and third, they would have secured the points to pull even with Braintree. But seeing as only the top three finishers earn points in relays, and Norwood only placed a relay team second, the comeback bid fell short.

Football shut out by Wellesley 14-0

Jake Levin

It'll all come down to Saturday for Norwood after its third consecutive loss last weekend, a 14-0 shutout at the hands of the Wellesley Raiders.

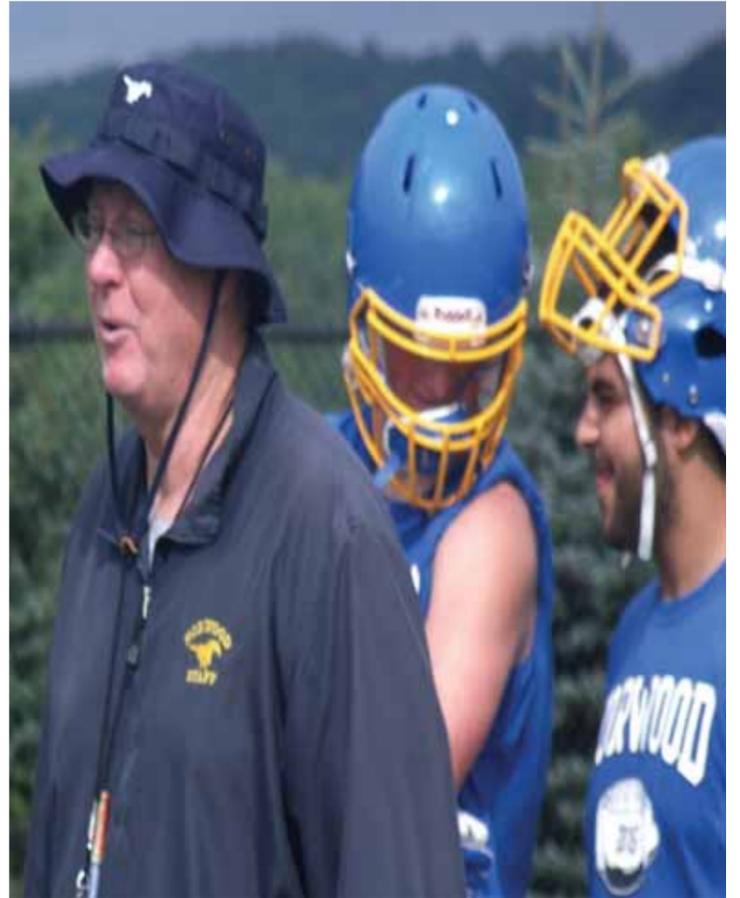

The Mustangs are one of six teams with a 3-3 record in the 13-team Division 3 Southwest field, of which the top eight will qualify for the postseason. Currently, the six 3-3 teams are ranked 5-10, according to the Boston Herald's rankings.

Norwood checks in ahead of the cut line, at No. 7 in the latest ranking, which was released on Monday. Stoughton (No. 5), Bishop Feehan (No. 6), Milford (No. 8), Hopkinton (No. 9) and Medfield (No. 10) round out the current 3-3 teams in the Div. 3 Southwest bracket.

Against Wellesley (6-0), Norwood struggled on offense throughout the day, never advancing the ball beyond the Raider 20-yard line. It was the second time they've been shut out during Tighe's tenure with the Mustangs, the first since Oct. 2, 2014 (at Natick, 35-0).

"Their defense was really good," said Tighe. Wellesley defeated Norwood last season as well, 35-6. "They were fast, they were athletic, they were strong and big up front, they had real active linebackers that went side-to-side well."

The Raiders scored first with 3:41 left in the first quarter, converting a turnover into points. Will Cramer picked off Norwood's Joe Leanos, and Grant Chryssiacs put the Raiders on top with a 6-yard run for a 7-

Mustangs football coach Jim Tighe and his squad will need to win their next game to ensure themselves a spot in the postseason tournament.

On Saturday, the Mustangs host the Natick Redhawks at 1 p.m., who are having a down year (2-4) and coming off a 42-7 blowout loss to the Walpole Rebels. Win, and the Mustangs are in.

"With so many teams at 3-3, we probably have to win to get in," said Norwood head coach Jim Tighe. "I don't know if we lost, and other people won, how the points would fall. I talked to the kids today, and I told them that it's win and in. Win and we can get in, lose and we're out. And that's how we're going to approach it."

"It's basically the playoffs start on Saturday."

0 lead. Cramer's interception was the first of three Norwood turnovers, two of them interceptions thrown by Leanos.

Wellesley would score again in the second quarter, with Chryssiacs again doing the honors-this time from 30 yards out-with 4:12 to go in the period. The Raiders led 14-0 at the half.

For the second week in a row, the Mustangs held an opponent off the scoreboard in the second half. But unlike the prior week against Milton, the offense failed to come alive.

“We have to finish drives,” said Tighe. “I think that’s what hurt us. Our inability to finish drives. We keep acting like our own worst enemy; we struggle putting 12, 14 plays together without making a mistake.”

The shutout marked the end of Zac Pungitore’s touchdown streak to begin the season, as he had scored at least once in each of the Mustangs’ first five games. Still, he boasts seven touchdowns total (six receiving, one interception returned for a score) on the season.

“It was another game that ended on a positive note,” said Tighe, adding that against good teams, the team that makes the fewest mistakes usually wins the game. “The kids played right to the end, there was no quit in them.”

Wellesley and Milton play this weekend for the Bay State-Herget Division title.

Whether Norwood beats Natick on Saturday and qualifies for the postseason or not, they are bound to run into a familiar opponent(s) either way.

Milton (6-0) and Walpole (4-2), each of whom defeated the Mustangs prior to Wellesley, have either already clinched (Wildcats) or are virtual locks (Rebels) for the D3SW field.

On the flip side, if Norwood fails to qualify, there are two opponents from last year’s consolation bracket who’ll be right back there again this year: Hingham (2-4) and North Quincy (1-5).

Norwood knocked off each school in last year’s consolation round, 23-7 at home vs. North Quincy and 14-7 on the road at Hingham.

The Duxbury Dragons (5-1) have clinched a spot in the D3SW as champions of the Patriot League, while the North Attleboro Red Rocketeers (6-0) are a lock for an at-large berth, but have technically not clinched yet as they haven’t won the Hockomock-Kelley-Rex Division (they play Mansfield for that distinction this weekend). If the bracket holds its look from this week to next, Norwood’s first round playoff opponent would be the Red Rocketeers.

Oliver Ames is the last of the 13 teams, currently winless and in the basement of the Hockomock-Davenport Division.

proved for the Mustangs this season, its roster increasing from 18 swimmers a year ago to 24 this season, behemoths such as Framingham go upwards of 50 swimmers deep. But that hasn’t put a damper on the enthusiasm for Rodger.

“It’s definitely exciting to go into a meet, thinking it’s going to be close, and then have it really come to life and see the kids bring an intensity into each of the races,” said Rodger, who’s in her second year as head coach of Norwood. “We haven’t necessarily come out with [many] wins, but it’s been close that the kids are excited, no one’s feeling let down getting on the bus, and people are having some really strong races.”

Several Norwood swimmers and divers have already qualified for sectionals, which will be held after the regular season winds down in November.

Reardon has qualified in both the 50 and 100-yard freestyle, Hurley in the 100-yard freestyle and 100 breast stroke, and most recently the 200-yard freestyle. Rodger said the latter is especially impressive, as it’s a race Hurley doesn’t typically swim in.

Aidan Mulligan has qualified in the 50-yard freestyle and the 100 fly stroke.

In diving, Emerson Kearns has qualified for states, the lone member of the team to reach that accomplishment thus far.

In the 100-yard backstroke, Gillis is closing in on qualifying for sectionals.

“Her turns are looking really strong,” said Rodger. “We’ve talked to her about her starts and turns, and really focusing on that. Every single meet she’s improving and we’re really hopeful that she’s going to qualify in the next couple of meets. She’s really focused on it too, it’s a personal goal of hers.”

The Mustangs are off until Tuesday, their final home meet of the season vs. archrival Walpole at 4 p.m. at Westwood High School, Norwood’s home pool.

INSURANCE STRATEGIES

by George Grant and Jim Ambrose

PICKING UP WHERE OTHERS LEAVE OFF

Small business owners, in particular, should be prepared for the eventuality that they might find themselves on the losing end of a lawsuit or settlement (with accompanying legal fees), the costs of which exceed the limits of a general liability insurance policy, commercial auto insurance, and employer’s liability policy. The number of lawsuits filed against companies and the size of the settlements are rising. A slip-and-fall accident, an auto accident involving an employee in a company car, or a harassment suit by an employee can bankrupt a company without proper coverage. With this in mind, it pays to purchase a “commercial umbrella policy” that increases liability protection when a lawsuit maxes out the limits of current coverage.

Would this umbrella policy be something you should have? We urge you to call AMBROSE & GRANT Insurance Agency and let us assist you in evaluating your current policies. We’re located at 1500 Providence Hwy., Ste. 24B, where we encourage you to protect yourself, your family, and all of your assets with the proper insurance. To find out more, or to schedule an appointment, call us at 781.762.2300.

NOTE: A common requirement of purchasing a commercial umbrella policy is that the policyholder must have $1 million in underlying liability coverage.

GARY HYLANDER LECTURE AT THE LIBRARY:

"A PILGRIM THANKSGIVING" Popular historian Dr. Gary Hylander will return to the Morrill Memorial Library on Monday, Nov. 2 at 7 p.m. to present "A Pilgrim Thanksgiving." When the Pilgrims celebrated their first Thanksgiving, they were well-acquainted with hunger. In the months following their arrival, they came close to starving. That they survived at all was largely due to the help they received from the local Wampanoags. The actual day the Plymouth Colony celebrated its first Thanksgiving is unknown. What is known is that sometime in the early fall, the Pilgrims, along with Massasoit and 90 braves, "entertained and feasted" together for three days. To sign up for this event, funded by the Friends of the Library, call 781-769-0200, x110 or 222, email norprograms@minlib.net, or stop by the library Reference or Information Desk.

SPOOKTACULAR ORGAN CONCERT

On Saturday, Oct. 24, at 7:30 p.m. Located at 150 Chapel St., Norwood. Grace Episcopal Church is celebrating the restoration of its historic 1897 George S. Hutchings Opus 415 organ with a Spooktacular Organ Recital! The organ has just undergone a major restoration and we're celebrating with a concert of spooky Halloween music. Classical, popular and Broadway hits will be featured. There will be fun music the entire family can enjoy! Grace Episcopal Church is fortunate to enjoy the beautiful sounds of this antique organ. First constructed for a Grace Church in South Boston, the organ was relocated and then rebuilt and enlarged through the Philip A. Beaudry Company of Somerville. The organ was installed at Grace Church in Norwood in 1973. Although repairs and maintenance have been performed over the years, the organ was in desperate need of a major restoration. Through the generosity of an anonymous donor, Grace was able to see this beautiful instrument brought back to its original beauty. Listen to haunting music performed by Grace Music Director Paula King and listen to the beautiful voices of our special guests, Mezzo Soprano Lisa Sheppard Hadley and Soprano Katie King. You will be truly put under a spell! Lisa Sheppard Hadley has performed extensively throughout New England. She has appeared as alto soloist for several area churches and choral groups, including King's Chapel, Boston; Hancock Church, Lexington; Temple Emanuel, Marblehead; and currently Church on the Hill in Boston. Ms. Hadley has also sung with the Boston Baroque; The Academy of Arts, Science and Letters, Cambridge; WGBH, Boston; First Night, Concord, NH; St. John Music Series, Beverly Farms; and Monadnock Music Festival, Peterborough and Wilton, NH. Additionally, Ms. Hadley was also soloist for "Passion," a Mark Morgan original retelling at the Hancock Church in Lexington and singer in residence throughout the 2013 Tanglewood summer season. Ms. Hadley also performs with her sister as "The Sheppard Sisters" and their latest concert entitled "Mozart, Musicals and More" will be performed at several venues in the Boston area this fall. The community is invited to attend this fun event and help celebrate the restoration of this special instrument. Suggested free will donation of $10 is appreciated.

This workshop will discuss the origins and symptoms of anxiety in young children, when to become concerned and specific ways to help the child and the parents in dealing with separation anxiety.

This workshop is for families with children from toddler to early elementary years. To register contact Christine Tomasello in the CFCE Office at 781-440-5983 or e-mail ctomasello@norwood.k12.ma.us. Get ready for a fine winter with all the supplies you'll need to enjoy being indoors. Please bring only materials and tools in good condition to share with others. Leave larger items at
