Schools, budget committee appear more unified

Joe DiFazio
Staff Reporter

The Budget Balancing committee met Thursday with a much friendlier disposition than their last meeting, but the future is still uncertain, with the school system still needing to cut $1.1 million from their proposed budget.

“Functioning is something I don’t think we’ll be able to do after that $1.1 million [cut],” said Chairwoman of the School Committee Courtney Rau.

The town-wide budget had some revenue projections changes and expenditure adjustments in the most recent pass that allowed the school’s budget to gain around $522,000, which puts their budget ceiling at $38.25 million. The school’s proposed operating budget, however, is currently at around $39.3 million, which is after close to $900,000 in reductions have already been made.

The thought of possibly using some of the town’s free cash to help the schools was dismissed when Town Accountant and Clerk Robert Thornton pointed out that the town will have only around $300,000 left in the account after additional snow and ice expenditures are taken out.

Superintendent of Norwood Schools James Hayden said that special education costs are one of the main components of the school’s budgetary increases and that much of the spending is state mandated. He also said he has applied to the state for special education aid under

The faces and places of Norwood’s drug problems

Joe DiFazio
Staff Reporter

The Norwood Police Department (NPD) has made five drug-related arrests in the middle of March involving several types of drugs including heroin, marijuana and cocaine.

“We’ve had drug arrests all along. No records are being set,” said spokesperson for the NPD, Officer Kevin Grasso. “Often it is the result of investigations coincidentally coming together at the same time.”

The recent arrests, however, include Schedule One and Schedule Two drugs, the Drug Enforcement Agency’s most dangerous classifications.

On March 20, Norwood detectives and Norfolk County Police Anti-Crime (NORPAC) detectives executed a search warrant at 15 Short Street, the home of Jeffrey Roberts and Christine Keough. The search warrant stemmed from their arrest in the early morning of March 18, when a simple traffic stop for speeding executed by Officer Gregory Shore turned into a much larger issue. According to the police, the vehicle “reeked of raw marijuana.” Investigations found that they were transporting approximately two pounds of marijuana and were in possession of prescription medication without a prescription. At the time, the two were arraigned in Dedham District Court on charges of Possession with Intent to Distribute Marijuana and Unlawful Possession of Prescription Medication.

During the search of their home, police said they discovered "significant evidence of large scale marijuana cultivation." Police found 29 marijuana plants, cultivation materials and prescription medicine for which neither had a prescription. All materials were seized from the home and the two were additionally charged with the following: Cultivation of Marijuana; Possession of Class D Marijuana with Intent to Distribute; Possession of Marijuana with Intent to Distribute within a School Zone, because of the home's proximity to Coakley Middle School; and Unlawful Possession of Class C prescription Gabapentin.

Another set of arrests occurred on March 19 when detectives from the NPD Bureau of Criminal Investigation (BCI) and patrol officers apprehended two men after a drug transaction in the parking lot of Home Depot on Route 1. Miguel Angel Escobar-Cruz, age 25 of 929 Washington Street was arrested and charged with Distribution of Class B Cocaine, and Conspiracy to Violate Drug Laws. Walter Mulock, age 37 of Medfield was arrested for Possession of Class B Cocaine and Conspiracy to Violate Drug Laws. Norwood and NORPAC detectives searched Escobar-Cruz's residence and seized additional cocaine, materials used to package and distribute drugs, and money thought to be garnered from drug sales.

According to Grasso, the arrest was the result of an ongoing criminal investigation.

Police apprehended a drug dealer on March 14 as well, after a search warrant was executed at his home at 285 Dean Street. Gerald Lee Vick Sr., age 45, was arrested and charged with Unlawful Possession of a Firearm and Ammunition; Improper Storage of a Firearm; and Possession with Intent to Distribute Class A, B, and C substances. According to police, Heroin, Suboxone and Gabapentin were discovered in his home in addition to an illegally possessed loaded .25 caliber semi-automatic pistol and ammunition.

The Norfolk County Police Anti-Crime (NORPAC) Task Force serves the Norfolk County towns of Canton, Dedham, Foxborough, Medfield, Millis, Needham, Norfolk, Norwood, Plainville, Sharon, Stoughton, Walpole, Westwood, Wellesley and Wrentham. It was founded in 1987.

2. Burning must take place at least 75 feet from any building.

3. Burning may not be started prior to 10 a.m.

In all cases, the fire must be extinguished by 4 p.m.

Beat the Beep!

Beat the Beep: Replace Aging CO Alarms - They Don't Last Forever. Carbon monoxide (CO) alarms have been required in nearly every residence since March of 2006. The life expectancy of carbon monoxide alarms is 5-7 years, depending on the alarm manufacturer. Many CO alarms installed after the state's CO law was passed are now reaching the end of their useful life and need to be replaced. No home appliance lasts forever. Signs the CO Alarm Needs Replacing: One of the signs that a carbon monoxide alarm has reached the "end of life" stage will be a "chirping" that does not stop until the unit is powered off. For models with a digital read out, it will have an "ERR" or "EO9" or "END" message. Another sign could be if it makes the low battery signal even after brand new batteries are installed. That's the main reason behind the Beat the Beep campaign. Beat the Beep - Don't Go Without Protection from the Invisible, Odorless Killer The purpose of the Beat the Beep campaign is to alert families that their CO alarms may be reaching the end of their lifecycles and should be replaced BEFORE the beeps indicating end of life. This also provides better protection against possible CO poisoning and reduces the number of false alarms to local fire departments and emergency service providers.

Town tackles sewer contaminants

Joe DiFazio
Staff Reporter

Director of Public Works (DPW) and Town Engineer Mark Ryan outlined new projects his department is taking on in his appearance before the Board of Selectmen (BOS) Tuesday.

A sewer-lining project is one of the major current undertakings of the DPW.

"[Sewer lining] helps us clean up streams and brooks that sewers could be leaking into," said Ryan.

The process, Ryan explained, takes a device that applies and cures an epoxy lining to the inside of old and brittle sewer pipes. A camera then goes down the pipes to inspect the new hardened epoxy coating for mistakes. After, a smaller device cuts holes in the lining for sewer services to homes and then the service lines are coated and inspected for mistakes. According to Ryan, over 400 services have been lined already and he has seen only one mistake.

"This has been very successful," said Ryan.

Ryan said the next phase of the project would focus on the downtown area because many of the sewer pipes there have ground water pipes underneath. Ryan continued by saying that because the sewer pipes were so old, they were leaking contaminants into the ground water pipes, which feed into the books and streams.

"This is a pollution problem we're trying to fix," said Ryan. "We're doing the worst [pipes] first."

Ryan added that this phase will take around 15 months and that it might cause minor traffic disruptions.

Chairman of the BOS, Bill Plasko, said that some of the National Grid work has been a concern among residents and has caused disruptions.

Ryan responded that The National Grid is bringing in an extra crew to expedite the work they are doing on Central Street is to replace gas lines. Ryan encouraged people to attend a public meeting with National Grid to voice any concerns they may have. It takes place on Fridays at 10 a.m. at Town Hall.

Ryan finished his appointment with an update on the construction of the new DPW facilities. He said that next week the DPW will be moving out to a temporary facility on Winter Street. As part of the new construction a fence will be erected around the current DPW site, and several parking spots around the civic center will be lost. Access to Dedham Savings Bank and Santander Bank should be unaffected, said Ryan.

Malcolm McDonald, superintendent of the Municipal Light and Broadband Department, appeared next before the BOS. With him were Assistant Superintendent James Collins and Broadband Division Manager Darryl Hanson.

Collins began by stating that the 115 Kilovolt Transmission Line Maintenance Project that will replace overhead structures that run from Sharon to the Dean Street Station is still in the permitting stage. The town is requesting permits through the Army Corps of Engineering. The Light Department is also preparing documents regarding a small easement from Norwood Gardens for the project.

Collins said that telephone pole testing would begin next week. The project will begin on Chapel Street and will work towards downtown. Crews will drill small holes in the poles to check for rotting wood.

Plasko said that the BOS was concerned about the amount of double telephone poles creeping up around town. When telephone poles are being switched out, often the replacement pole is installed next to the old one, then the equipment on top is transferred and the old pole is removed.

"We try and stay on [Verizon and Comcast] to transfer them," said Collins "The problem is we don't have a lot of power over them."

Selectman Mike Lyons asked if it would help speed the process up if the BOS sent a letter to the companies. Collins said that it might help since the companies may have to appear before the BOS at some point.

Hansen then described an issue that the Department was having with some network negotiations. The Department buys cable programming through a collective for small cable companies called the National Cable Television Commission (NCTC).

According to Hansen, Viacom, which owns 23 networks including MTV, VH1 and Nickelodeon, was demanding a 60 percent increase in subscriber fees for its programs from the NCTC. Hansen said that the negotiations were ongoing, but that there was a chance that subscribers may lose those channels for a period. NCTC wants to keep subscribers costs low and allowing Viacom a 60 percent increase would allow other providers to ask for larger increases, said Hansen.

Letters to the Editor

VOTE "YES" ON QUESTION 1

To the Editor:

Question 1 on the upcoming Town Ballot asks the voters if they wish the School Committee to reverse their prior, unprovoked 3-2 vote that changed the school calendar from the longstanding "Christmas Recess" to the "Winter Recess." When I say unprovoked, there was no discernible reason for the subject to even be brought up.

We are a country that was founded on Judeo-Christian principles. The Federalist Papers, the Declaration of Independence, and the U.S. Constitution all are replete with references to God and as creator; He endowed us with His God-given – not government – given rights. People will say: "Well what about the First Amendment and the separation of church and state? This is probably the biggest 'red herring' fallacy in the history of this country. The "Establishment Clause" is saying that no religion shall be imposed by the government on the citizens. Why did they say this? Because most people in this country were escaping a tyrannical government in England that forced them to join the Church of England. The groups that fled persecution in England fled because they wished to worship in their own and varied ways. Thus, it was codified in the Bill of Rights that the government will never impose a singular religion. End of story.

Well, did the schools calling it the Christmas Recess since 1872 impose Christianity on the people of Norwood? Apparently not, since we have a Jewish Temple, a Jain Temple, and numerous non-denominational, inter-denominational, orthodox, protestant-denominational, and Roman Catholic churches in Norwood. I'm sure there are atheists and agnostics, also. The fact is that the vast majority are Christian and that "recess" begins a few days before – you guessed it – Christmas. The fact that two out of five selectman and three out of five School committee members were in favor of this makes me wonder why they would take this so nonchalantly since it offended so many in town – both young and old. How do I know this? So many requests are coming in for the "Vote Yes" signs, to the extent we had to order another shipment.

Did anyone ever stop and think that there might be a correlation between the precipitous moral decay that has happened in this country over the last several decades and the fact that we tell Him to take a hike at every turn out of political correctness. If we reject Him, why should He continue to bless the last great hope for this world – the U.S.A.?

Ben Stein – the comedic actor and economist – wrote a recent column bemoaning the actions such as the School Committee took. He is Jewish and he loves Christmas. It is the one time of the year when he feels fellowship with other people. If someone says Merry Christmas he enjoys it every bit as much if they say Happy Hanukkah.

In other words, eliminating all traditions out of political correctness, keeps us all farther apart. Please vote YES on question 1 on Monday, April 7, 2014.

WE NEED TO LIVE WITHIN OUR MEANS

To the Editor:

We read in the local newspapers that the school department's projected budget is millions of dollars more than what they expect to receive from the town's 55/45 revenue split. As most may know, the bulk of the school's spending is for teacher salaries. The school's recent budgets are provided on their website in PDF form for downloading. I downloaded it recently and found some interesting facts.

For one, the cost of teacher salaries for FY12 was $20.6 million. The cost of teacher salaries in FY13 was 22.1 million. For FY14 it was $22.9 million and the projected cost in FY15 is $25.3 million. Doing the math, the increase for FY13 over FY12 was 7.6 percent. The increase of FY14 over FY13 was 3.9 percent and the anticipated increase for FY15 over FY14 is 10 percent.

I list out these year-to-year increases to point out the fact that since most of the town's year-to-year income comes from property taxes and that as most know, property tax increases are limited by law to 2 1/2 percent plus new construction. Then why are teacher contracts being negotiated to allow year-to-year increases of 7 percent, 4 percent and most recently 10 percent when the school department should know that they are unlikely to get a budget increase of more than 2 1/2 percent?

The argument goes that if we don't sign teachers to 'competitive' contracts, they will all leave and we will lose all of our teachers. The school department seems to think we should compete with towns like Dover, Westwood, Newton and Needham when it comes to teacher salaries and year-to-year increases. We aren't Dover, Westwood, Newton or Needham. We need the school department to understand that we are Norwood and need to live within our means.

PRESERVATION A LOST ART

To the Editor:

Add one more demolition site to the list. Norwood has just lost one of its most precious historical treasures. Sadly, historic sites and buildings are all "endangered species" here in Norwood.

This time it was the colonial house at 806 Neponset Street (circa 1753), which was listed on the Norwood Historical Commission's top 100 historical sites in town. The reason this house was so significant to Norwood as well as to the entire County of Norfolk is the fact that it was one of the few houses built prior to the Revolutionary War (1775-1783) that was still on its original foundation. The Town of Norwood has written documentation attesting to this.

In January, the property, which included this historical house and 11,571 sq. ft. of land, was sold to an out-of-town developer for $245,000 cash. Some in the real estate business did not even know of the transaction. Moreover, according to town documents, there is one address listed for the buyer in the Office of the Zoning Board of Appeals and a different address at the Assessor's Office. (Another mystery one might say?) On Saturday, it took all day to demolish the house still standing after 261 years because the beams were so thick. By 5:00 pm, it was a pile of rubble. The Norwood Historical Commission had contacted a noted preservation consultant and specialist from Lexington to come and evaluate the house. However, as this Commission was prevented from obtaining access, the evaluation never took place.

Now, the Norwood Historical Commission has learned the old Norwood Pumping Station, which was classically designed by William G. Upham, the same renowned architect who designed our Town Hall, is slated to be demolished, too. Norwood residents, we implore you, do not let this happen. It also is a beautiful building that can be renovated and used for another community purpose.

If none of Norwood's precious buildings are saved, then we as residents of this town lose our focus, our history and our identity. Please let's keep and preserve what we have.

Norwood loses dedicated member and good friend

Joe DiFazio
Staff Reporter

Former Town Meeting Moderator and Knights of Columbus member Robert Capasso died on March 17, at the age of 89.

“Bob Capasso was a great friend of the town. He was a Town Meeting member for many many years, but the thing that made him unique was that he did his homework, and was very dedicated,” said Selectman Paul Bishop.

Capasso would also voluntarily run Town Meeting member orientations so new members would understand all the rules and procedures.

“[Running orientation] goes above and beyond. He wanted the town meeting members under his domain to be the best they possibly can and to be the most educated,” said Bishop.

Selectwoman Helen Abdullah Donohue, who has been a town meeting member for 46 years, also thought very highly of him.

“As a Town Moderator he was very fair. He called on various people, he didn’t favor issues, he didn’t try and push decisions one way or another. He was just fair,” said Donohue.

Capasso was a self-employed general practice attorney and was the former Deputy Registrar for the Massachusetts Registry of Motor Vehicles and former Under Secretary of Public Safety.

“As a fellow attorney he was very wonderful to work with,” said Donohue, who sometimes opposed Capasso in court.

A well-versed member of Norwood life, Capasso was on the panel of “Table Talk,” a show hosted by Tom Cummings on Norwood Public Television. The show has a panel discussion of local news and topics.

“He was exceptionally intelligent and exceptionally rational. He always weighed out the facts,” said Donohue. “We were on the show for about 15 years, Bob Capasso would be so intelligent that he would gather information on both sides of the topic both for it and against it.”

Donohue said Capasso would take the side of the issue not represented just to stimulate a better conversation; he also came up with a lot of the topics. She relishes some of the battles she had with him on the show.

“He took care of his family very well, always a caring man,” said Donohue.

Cummings also held Capasso in high regard. Cummings said that he would speak with Capasso at his office while out jogging. It was Capasso’s intelligence that led Cummings to invite him on the show.

“He was extremely helpful, very intelligent, ... his mind was very sharp,” said Cummings.

Cummings said that Capasso used his knowledge of health care and insurance to help out an elderly lady he knew, saving her a great deal of money. Donohue stated that Capasso saved the town a lot of money insurance as well.

“That’s the kind of man he was,” said Cummings.

Capasso was also a distinguished veteran; he served in the U.S. Army during WWII and was awarded the Purple Heart and Bronze Star.

Capasso was buried at the Highland Cemetery in Norwood with military honors last Friday.

“He was a great guy, very straight-forward, very helpful. I’m going to miss him,” said Cummings.

Spingarn gets the nod

Joe DiFazio
Staff Reporter

Norwood's Recycler of the Month program is in full swing as it names its second recipient.

Town Manager John Carroll recently visited Norwood resident Debbie Spingarn to offer his congratulations on being selected as the Recycler of the Month. Spingarn won $200 in gift certificates to Norwood eateries such as the Old Colonial Café, Spot!, Conrad's, Guarino's Pastry Shop, and Lewis' Bar and Grill. Norwood's waste disposal service, Waste Management, provides the gift cards.

"I've always been interested in environmental things. I read a lot. I'm always reading about the environment and what's happening," said Spingarn. "I knew the town was getting on board [with recycling], so of course I participated because I'm trying to help the Earth."

Spingarn is also a member of Norwood-based group Together Yes which she says does a lot of education about recycling. The group was created to inform Norwood residents and businesses about sustainability, including economics, conservation of resources, and ecology.

"I've always been interested in [environmental studies] because of health reasons. I'm interested in how the environment affects our health, what kind of cancers come out of the environment, just anything," said Spingarn.

Spingarn says she watches a lot of movies about the environment in addition to the reading she does. She says she uses the warmer months to compost food scraps, brings leftover medications to the Police Station for safe disposal, and takes advantage of the town-sponsored hazardous waste and recycling days which are each held annually. Even vitamins that have expired get into the waste stream, she says. Spingarn also recycles any kind of bottle, such as ones used for shampoo or contact solution. She believes that there is too much packaging in retail goods, such as toys and shoes, that can be recycled and urges people to recycle this packaging. A tip, Spingarn says, is to have a system, such as a designated place for recyclables.

New products made from recycled materials such as sneakers excite her.

"They're really cool," said Spingarn.

She found the recycling magnets and town website are very helpful with detailing what you can recycle. For example, she wishes she had known she could recycle spiral bound notebooks when her two daughters were going through high school and college.

Spingarn doesn't think young people are recycling enough. She believes they will have to become better informed with environmental problems because they will become more pressing. According to Spingarn, while walking her dog by the Westover Parkway, she sees a lot of trash she believes is caused by teenagers. She says she picks up bottles and beer cans and is able to fill up a grocery bag. She says the trash is ruining it for the wildlife.

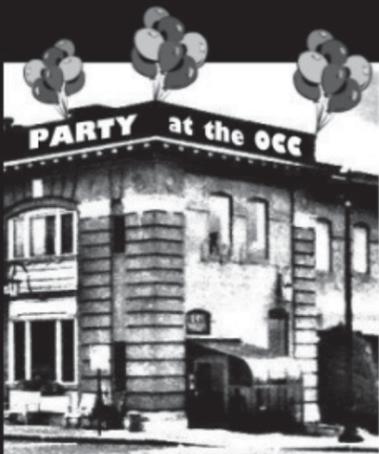

Though she has several environmental concerns, she is excited about the town's program.

"I think it's a really good way to motivate people, to incentivize them through a really good prize ... to get everybody doing their part," said Spingarn. Spingarn is the second recipient of the award that was established through a partnership between the Town of Norwood and Waste Management. Waste Management donates the prizes for the program in an effort to bring attention to the benefits of recycling.

Spingarn's entry was selected from a number of nominations received through a survey that can be accessed on the Town's website. To nominate a person or family as "Recycler of the Month" visit the DPW page of the Town's website at dpw.norwoodma.gov. For more information about the program contact Doris Burtman, Recycling Coordinator at dburtman@norwoodma.gov.

Candidate's Forum rehashes 40B Discussion, School Budget woes

Joe DiFazio
Staff Reporter

The Board of Selectmen candidates traded rhetoric Monday night at the Candidate's Forum, hosted by the Norwood League of Women Voters. As the only contested race, the discussion was the main event and focused on affordable housing.

"I have been extremely active in my attempt to curb the many proposed multi-family apartment complexes," said Selectman Allan Howard in his opening statement.

The three-way race for two Board of Selectmen's seats pits incumbents Howard and Paul Bishop who are seeking their second term against first-time candidate Kevin Pentowski. All candidates made opening and closing statements and fielded written questions.

Bishop stated that his career as a police officer showed how he takes the trust of the town very seriously, and that he considers himself a service provider for the town.

"I am not perfect ... [but I'm] constantly trying to do the right thing," said Bishop.

Howard used his opening statement to discuss his stance against new apartments and his service on various committees. He said that he has learned a tremendous amount in the past three years as Selectman and wants to continue to make a positive difference.

Later, Pentowski talked about being a lifelong resident and being taught many important values by his father Mitch, a former School Committee Member. He also highlighted his opposition to 40R and 40B developments, saying that he saw their ill effects when he lived in Dedham, which caused him to move back to Norwood.

"I'm faced with either moving [again] or fighting," said Pentowski on his willingness to fight the proposed Plimpton Press project near his home.

The Plimpton Press project is a proposed 40R apartment development on Lenox Street. As a 40R project, it would contain some affordable housing and count towards a town's state-mandated affordable housing threshold of either 1.5 percent of a town's developable land area or ten percent of its total housing stock.

Moderator Kathy Hasenjaeger, of the Walpole League of Women Voters, levied the first question regarding 40Rs, 40Bs and Plimpton Press. The passion for the issue was felt as the discussion between the candidates occasionally became contentious. Pentowski saw the issue as a non-starter because he felt that the town had reached 1.5 percent. Howard and Bishop stated that they were against the Plimpton Press project because of its size and density, and Bishop suggested that it might be a good place for a community for people over the age of 55. Pentowski jabbed that this was the first he had heard of the idea of an elderly community, to which Bishop responded that it was a personal idea.

Pentowski then said that he felt the 40Rs and 40Bs were the same. Howard responded that a 40R is something the town can work with and a 40B is very different because the town is at the hands of the developer with a 40B.

"Saying we have reached the 1.5 percent ... you must be a lawyer," said Howard to Pentowski.

Howard continued that it was unfair to make a blanket statement that Norwood had reached 1.5 percent because though the town is close, Norwood hadn't yet made the mark. Bishop and Howard also stated that the 1.5 percent had to be defensible in court.

Candidates were also asked about the DPW project, saving historical homes, medical marijuana laws and plans for bringing back town center.

The candidates were uniformly in favor of the DPW project. The candidates all felt strongly about saving historical homes as well, but pointed out saving them can be tricky. Bishop stated that the town doesn't have a lot of extra cash and that free space in Norwood is dwindling. Medical marijuana received a stance of opposition from the candidates, but the men differed on what to do with the struggling downtown economic area.

"I would look at the people there and ask how they're surviving," said Pentowski.

Howard lamented the fact that only a few people owned the buildings in the downtown area. Bishop said that he would want to work with the new Town Planner and Downtown Steering Committee.

Howard said in his closing statement that he is always available for the people of Norwood. Pentowski said that it was jobs, not more housing, that the town needed and that he will try to stop more development. In his closing remarks, Bishop said it was his goal to make Norwood the best it could be.

Earlier in the forum, unopposed candidates each fielded questions and school budgets, a particularly popular topic.

James Gormley and Paul Samargedlis are running for School Committee positions, but Gormley wasn't in attendance due to a family medical issue.

"[There's] only a certain amount of dollars," said Paul Samargedlis about the School Committee's decision to cut bussing after sixth grade.

Samargedlis said that the town is in a bind with budget constraints and hopes to work collaboratively with other town officials to solve the problem.

Judith Langone, candidate for Finance Commission and Housing Authority, thought that the drama would eventually work itself out.

"I'm not in favor of an override," said Langone of the option to temporarily raise taxes to cover a school budget shortfall.

a provision that allows for help in extraordinary circumstances. Hayden added that if the town was lucky, the state could grant them around $565,000 that they can push forward into next year's budget.

School Committee member Paul Samargedlis pointed out that critical cuts have already been made to the schools' budget. He said that if the School Committee could stop cutting now, get back half of the budget decreases already made and get a sizeable amount of extraordinary relief money from the state, that the schools could survive in the short term.

Thornton responded that the issue he saw in the school budget was the increased staffing. He stated that Town Meeting approved 445 full time equivalents (FTE) in 2013 and now the school system is up to 472. FTEs are a measure to gauge full-time work by staff.

"Here's the problem I see, we have mandates too, [they're] called prop[osition] two and a half," said Thornton, referring to the Massachusetts law that limits property tax increase to only 2.5 percent. "[The schools added] 27 people and we do not have the money."

Thornton said that the only source of revenue increase in Norwood is taxes, and that those are constrained by law. According to Thornton, Norwood sees an increase of $2.1 million a year, which he said would not support the hiring increases of the schools.

The School Committee members argued that the teacher increases were necessary, and in large part due to special education spending which they again pointed out was mandated.

"We could not enroll the [special education] students, which is against the law. We cannot not have second grade, which is against the law," said Rau.

Town Manager John Carroll said that the provision in Proposition 2 1/2 that allows for an override is there for a reason. An override would be a one-time increase in taxes to help cover the school system's budget requests voted on by Town Meeting.

"We ought to be thinking that we can't solve this without an override," said Carroll. "It is not unusual to have an operational override."

Samargedlis was concerned, however, about going to Town Meeting and asking for an override if the Budget Balancing Committee was divided.

"We need to get on the same page before we go to Town Meeting. There needs to be more unity," said Samargedlis.

Plasko agreed with Samargedlis, saying that the School Committee would need outside support to help get an override accomplished. Thornton stated that in order to get the budgets balanced there either needed to be revenue increases or a reduction in expenditures and that stabilization funds were not for balancing budget gaps. He offered to help in any way he can.

"These are not Thursday, March 20 problems," said Joe Greeley of the Finance Commission. "These problems are not going away."

Greeley said that in order to get Norwood on board with an override, the School Committee and administrators would need to do a better job of showing that the increase in teachers directly correlates to special education needs.

Thornton agreed that obtaining an override would be difficult. He stated that one of his proudest moments was getting an override for construction of the new high school, but that it took him five years in order to do that.

The Budget Balancing Committee agreed they would have to get creative in order to accomplish a balanced budget and that there would be a lot of brainstorming before their next meeting on March 31.

dream of playing.

"It was completely different from playing on the high school team," Sheehan said. "We were facing different competition, tougher competition, and I think we represented our high schools well."

Sheehan said the South team – which was comprised of players from Martha's Vineyard, Hingham, Marshfield, Dartmouth, Braintree, Framingham, Xaverian, Duxbury, Brookline, St. John's, Brockton, Hudson, Archbishop William, Falmouth, Rockland, Norwood and BC High – found their stride early and was able to form a team easily. "Our team just clicked," he said. "We had a really good time."

Sheehan and DeForge grew up playing hockey, starting on the Norwood Nuggets and rising through the ranks to high school, when they parted ways.

Sheehan's hockey career started early on, when he discovered a love of roller blading around his house at two years old, and developed that love into a skill when he started skating at three years old. Through his youth hockey career, Sheehan began to feel more comfortable on the ice and the sport became an almost therapeutic experience for him. "It's just this place where all my stress and frustration disappears," he said. "It's unlike anything else."

Sheehan attended Xaverian Brothers High School for his freshman and sophomore years, where he improved greatly as a player. After playing on the freshman team, Sheehan bypassed junior varsity and held a coveted varsity spot his sophomore year. His successful ranking was short-lived, however, after a serious injury kept him out of 10 games during his sophomore season. For his junior year, Sheehan transferred to Norwood High School, where he and his teammates formed an unbreakable bond.

Before the puck dropped each period, Sheehan and the Mustangs would gather around the goalie and say "Family together on three."

"We won and lost as a family," Sheehan said. "That bond made us all better players." Looking back on his final high school season, Sheehan said the most memorable victory was against Archbishop Williams in the playoffs.

"Nobody believed we could do it," he said. "The odds were against us and at the end of the first period I looked at my teammates and said, 'We can do this.' And we did." After playing against Sheehan for several years, DeForge said he was excited to get a chance to play on the same team. The last time they played together was in middle school.

"It was a lot of fun just to get to play with some of the best players in the state," he said. "It was a huge privilege for me to play with some of the guys I grew up playing with." What stuck with DeForge after the game was how the players formed a quick bond in the locker room right before the Classic and how they played off of each other's strengths to sink the puck several times.

"We scored goals, put up offense and had fun," he said. "We didn't even know each other before hand and then we just clicked."

BC High had a successful season this year, advancing all the way to the Super 8 semifinals for Division I. Though they lost in the eighth round of a shootout, the Eagles were able to win the Catholic Conference for the first time in 11 years.

"Bringing that championship back to BC High meant a lot," DeForge said. "Our success meant a lot this year and I was very fortunate to have been the captain."

DeForge spent four years as an Eagle on the ice and said the most memorable game was during his sophomore season. As the Eagles found themselves in a major slump, DeForge's father passed away, and DeForge turned to his teammates for support. With the semifinal game approaching, the Eagles looked to face St. John's Prep, a team they had played twice already that season, splitting the games against the rival team.

"It was a tough time for our team and for my family," he said. "We decided to rally and came together, putting in an honest effort to fight for the win."

DeForge said it was the hardest game he had ever played and despite everything, the Eagles beat St. John's 3-2.

"It was the toughest game," DeForge said. "But it was also the most rewarding." DeForge started playing hockey around age 6, and said he "didn't have much of a choice" because his family was very much into hockey. After participating in the learn-to-skate program in Norwood, DeForge quickly began to form a love of the sport, as well. "There's never an emphasis on the individual in hockey; it's always only about the team," he said. "The bond I've made with my teammates is what I've cherished the most over the years."

Looking forward to life after high school, both seniors are contemplating taking a year off to play in the juniors. DeForge said his busy hockey season kept his mind off making post-graduation decisions, but now he is choosing between one of several colleges and prep schools or playing for the juniors. When asked what professional hockey team they would most like to play for, Sheehan said the Minnesota Wild, for the "great playing atmosphere," and DeForge said the Bruins, for the "hometown fans."

After growing up learning to love the game together and spending several years competing against each other, both Sheehan and DeForge said they were honored to have the chance to play with each other one last time.

Young wrestlers wrap up season

Norwood High School wrestling coach Dan McDonough wrapped up his season with his middle school wrestlers on Sunday at the Rebel New England Classic in Derry, New Hampshire, as seven middle school students competed in their last event of the season.

McDonough said the team, which is comprised of mostly sixth graders and a few seventh and eighth graders, has come a long way since they started practicing in January.

"After weeks of practice, the young grapplers were thirsty for some action in another tournament," he said. "I saw this one and was eager to introduce my wrestlers to a challenging tournament."

The tournament invited 450 kids from kindergarten through eighth grade from all over New England to compete against other teams.

"The atmosphere is electric," McDonough said. "It was great exposure for my team to experience [this kind of tournament]."

Sixth grader Jose Reyna placed third with a 3-1 record and qualified for the Gene Mills Eastern Nationals Qualifier.

"He is a very strong first-year wrestler and has an appetite to win," McDonough said. "He is a great leader on the team for the smaller guys."

Seventh grader Cordell Struther placed as well, earning a medal at the tournament. McDonough said the tournament was a successful day for the wrestlers, even the ones who did not take home medals.

"They showed promise and a desire to become better wrestlers," he said. "I am proud of all of them for what they put out there on Sunday. It's a great feeling to see their work come to fruition over the course of the season."

LIBRARY TALK: RESCUE DOG TO FAMILY PET

Hannelore Tice, owner of Boston for the Dogs, will come to the Morrill Memorial Library on Wednesday, April 23 at 7 p.m. to talk about how to help a rescue dog become a family pet. A foster recruitment coordinator with Survivor Tails Animal Rescue, Hannelore will share some remarkable stories about rescuing dogs from all over the country. She emphasizes the importance of not judging a dog by its cover: all breeds can make wonderful family pets. Hannelore, a dog lover who actually "walks the walk," will bring one of her dogs, Maya, to the presentation. Sign up for this program at the library Reference or Information Desk or call 781-769-0200, x110 or 222.

Join self-professed non-hikers Nancy Sporborg and Pat Piper at the Morrill Memorial Library on Thursday, April 10 at 7 p.m. to hear how two ordinary, 50-something women decided to climb the 100 highest mountains in New England. This is the story of what they found inside themselves as they hiked over 1,600 miles to the tops of more than 244 mountains through all four seasons. This presentation is not about the hike. It is an inspirational and motivational program about pushing ourselves beyond our comfort zones, overcoming our fears, finding our passions, and living our lives to the fullest. Sign up for this program, part of the Norwood Reads "Following Atticus" six-week series of events, at the library Reference or Information Desk or call 781-769-0200, ext. 110 or 222.

Among other accolades, "Blue Gold" received the Audience award for Best Environmental Film at the Vancouver International Film Festival. Please sign up for this evening of film and discussion at the library Reference or Information Desk or call 781-769-0200, ext. 110 or 222.
