Town Hall restoration an ongoing discussion

Daniel Kobialka

The Permanent Building Construction Committee (PBCC) has maintained a consistent dialogue regarding a potential Town Hall restoration project.

"There are things going on with the building that we need to take care of," PBCC Chairman Ted Callahan said.

Gienapp Design Associates made a presentation to the PBCC at its Aug. 11 meeting regarding a potential Town Hall project.

Gienapp Design conducted an on-site study of the building's masonry exterior to examine the existing conditions and determine the cause of ongoing water infiltration into the building's exterior.

Gienapp Design owner Dale Gienapp said he performed an initial assessment of the Town Hall's overall condition, finding a series of issues with the 75-year-old building.

However, two areas of urgency and significant cost stood out in Gienapp's report.

Liquor games a cause of concern

Norwood Police Chief Bartley E. King Jr. addressed the Board of Selectmen's concerns regarding the prohibition of drinking games at local bars and restaurants at the Board's Tuesday meeting.

Selectmen discussed potential measures to eliminate drinking games in town establishments following two August liquor incidents.

"I don't think liquor or alcohol is something people should play games with," King told the Board.

The police reported incidents at Napper Tandys and Lewis' restaurant that lead to questions about the amount of alcohol served at local restaurants.

King stated in a letter to Selectmen that the first incident occurred at Napper Tandys on Aug. 28 at approximately 9:25 p.m. The police responded to a possible disturbance between two small groups of men, but the men left the Day Street bar due to the police response.

King noted he received a similar disturbance report on Sept. 22 at Napper Tandys as a few men began a verbal argument at the bar. However, the men exited the bar once the police were called.

King's letter stated there was no evidence to support any alcoholic beverage violations by Napper Tandys or its staff.

The police reported a liquor incident at Lewis' on Aug. 19 at approximately 12:45 a.m.

Norwood Police Officer Timothy McDonough responded to a call regarding a report of an intoxicated woman who was treated at Norwood Hospital due to her being in medical distress from apparent alcohol intoxication.

Norwood lost a hometown legend following the death of local photographer Donald McLean, 87, on Friday.

"He was a beautiful man," Norwood Town Manager John Carroll said of McLean. "He gave a lot to the town of Norwood. We all loved him." McLean served both his town and his country during his lifetime.

McLean made his presence felt as a photographer throughout Norwood, utilizing his skills with the Norwood Messenger and other news outlets. McLean followed the example set by his father, Eugene "Scoop" McLean, and brother, Kenneth McLean.

"Being a willing volunteer, he was willing to do just about anything in the way of photos," Carroll said.

McLean showed he was an active community participant as a member of the Norwood Veterans of Foreign Wars, Norwood Rotary Club, Norwood Retired Men's Club, the Norwood Knights of Columbus Council 252 and the Sunday Evening Concerts on the Common.

McLean served his country, joining the Army at age 17 to serve in World War II.

Norwood Veterans Agent Ted Mulvehill Jr. noted McLean spent time in Normandy, northern France and Rhineland during his military career. McLean participated in the Battle of the Bulge during World War II.

Mulvehill said McLean received several honors for his military service, including the World War II Victory Medal and Good Conduct Medal.

In addition, Mulvehill noted McLean, an army combat engineer, served Norwood veterans as well, using his photography skills to capture special moments.

"For every event, he was always there for us," Mulvehill said. "He was an absolute ace."

Mulvehill recalled when McLean made the switch to a digital camera, a welcome move for the veteran shutterbug.

"He said it was the best move he ever made," Mulvehill said.

McLean married his wife, Helen Lydon, in June 1950, celebrating their 60th wedding anniversary last year.

"He's a very devoted husband," Mulvehill said.

Mulvehill noted McLean showed his commitment as he ers, both of whom denied serving the woman any alcoholic beverages.

Norwood Detective Richard Giacoppo spoke with the woman involved in the incident on Aug. 29.

Giacoppo noted the woman told him she arrived at Lewis' restaurant at approximately 9:30 p.m. on Aug. 18. The woman said she played beer pong at the restaurant "for an hour or two," consuming at least five beers and two mixed drinks.

Giacoppo's report stated the woman told him that when she switched from drinking beer to consuming mixed drinks, she said she felt that is what made her sick.

Giacoppo said he spoke with a friend of the woman involved in the incident on Aug. 31. The friend told Giacoppo both arrived at a beer pong tournament at Lewis' on Aug. 18, and was near the woman until just after midnight, before she needed medical attention.

The restaurant bartenders told police on Sept. 17 that they did not recall seeing the woman involved in the incident at the bar on the date in question.

"[The bartenders] informed me that the event was very well attended and that Lewis' had people at the door and walking around supervising the room," Giacoppo stated in his report.

Giacoppo indicated the restaurant did not have working video cameras inside the establishment, and the bartenders involved had received Training for Intervention Procedures by Servers of Alcohol (TIPS).

"There were no witnesses that observed that she was served or delivered alcohol while being intoxicated on these premises," Giacoppo said in his report.

Selectman Allan Howard said he would like to eliminate the possibility of extreme consumption of alcohol at local bars and restaurants.

"I for one don't want that at our establishments in town," Howard said.

King said there are no statutes prohibiting drinking games in Norwood.

"Binge drinking is a big thing at colleges," King said, "and there isn't anything on the books about that."

Selectman Bill Plasko said an establishment should have enough awareness to know what is going on to prevent patrons from being overserved.

"They should just look around and see the behavior," Plasko said.

Selectmen accepted a motion to send a letter of concern to the establishments involved regarding drinking games. The motion passed by a 4-1 vote.

Howard said he would like to do what is necessary to hold establishments responsible for their actions.

CORRECTION: Last week's edition indicated Selectmen accepted a motion to continue the show cause hearing regarding Thai Celantro in six weeks by a 3-1 vote with Selectman Helen Abdallah Donohue providing the sole vote against the measure. The Selectmen had accepted the motion unanimously with a 4-0 vote.

spent several hours every day with his wife at the Ellis Nursing Home.

"He was totally devoted. He was there every day," Mulvehill said.

McLean began his photography career in his 50s after his retirement from his custodial work, becoming a full-time photographer 26 years ago.

Darren Towne, McLean's nephew, noted his uncle displayed a special energy in his photography.

"I don't think I've ever met someone who's had such a positive attitude," Towne said. "I give him credit for everything he's done."

McLean has taken photos of reunions, concerts and other events chronicling the history of the town.

McLean also served as an unofficial photographer for the Norwood Police Department as well.

"He was a kind gentleman and a thoughtful friend," Norwood Police Chief Bartley E. King Jr. said, noting he had known McLean for nearly 40 years. "He always had a smile on his face and a smile in his heart."

McLean was honored for his commitment to the town when named the grand marshal of last year's Fourth of July parade.

McLean took photographs at several events this year, including the new Norwood High School ribbon cutting ceremony, the Sept. 11 remembrance at the Town Common gazebo and this year's Norwood Day.

Towne said McLean was taken to the hospital to be treated for pneumonia on Sept. 22. McLean passed away on Sept. 30.

McLean was the son of the late Eugene "Scoop" and Mary Etta (Alberts) McLean, brother of Betty Davison of Mansfield and the late Eugene McLean, Kenneth McLean, Robert McLean, Alma (McLean) Towne and nephew of Doris Reid of Quincy. He is survived by many nieces and nephews.

Donations in memory of McLean may be made to The American Cancer Society at 30 Speen St., Framingham, MA 01701.

Bank of America instituted a $5 monthly service charge for debit card customers last week.

Local banks avoid debit fees

Gil Haylon

Staff Reporters

Bank of America's recent decision to install a $5 monthly service charge for debit card customers has left many residents, both local and nationwide, up in arms.

Even President Barack Obama was critical of the new fee, which will be assessed monthly on customers who use their debit card to make purchases starting next year. Bank of America has said that new government regulations - most notably a cap on the amount banks can charge retailers each time a debit card is swiped - have eaten into their profit margins.

This so-called Durbin Amendment (named for Illinois senator Richard Durbin) is a rule that enforces a limit on the amount that a bank can levy on merchants. Banks with less than $10 billion in assets remain exempt from the regulation.

The amendment was created as an addendum to the Dodd-Frank Financial Reform and Consumer Protection Act, proposed by Senate Banking Committee Chairman Chris Dodd and US Rep. Barney Frank in Dec. 2009. The act expanded the Federal Reserve powers for setting interchange fees related to debit card transaction processing, and was signed into law in July 2010.

According to The New York Times, the fees used to be, on average, 44 cents per transaction. Now, the fees have been cut to 24 cents per transaction. As a result, banks are out around $6.6 billion on top of the billions of dollars lost from other fees cancelled by the newly enacted laws.

Therefore, banks are levying a new fee on debit card users to make up for the revenue shortfall.

The new government regulation will affect larger banks much more than the smaller local branches and credit unions.

The outrage about Bank of America's new fees has many customers contemplating switching banks, and has already caused Bank of America's stock to drop significantly.

"I think we still continue to encourage debit card usage,"

Morbid or spiritual?

It is the habit of this writer to sit down every morning with my daily newspaper. Yes, mine is still printed on paper and delivered early enough for me to ingest both the world's latest happenings and my second cup of tea at the same time. It is a vital part of my day and I pity those who consider firing up a laptop to read the same news electronically, and have concluded that trying to explain to those failing to understand the difference is impossible. It is a joy those born of the Electronic Age will simply never experience.

Jokingly referred to as "The Irish Sports Pages," the Obituary section of The Boston Globe is must read journalism. For me, the daily listing of those who have passed on from this mortal coil is more than a collection of notices, it's some of the best writing one can experience because the descriptions under the names and faces of the deceased are written by those in the throes of despair at having just lost a loved one. The writing is loving, funny and educational. It comes from the heart and is a final attempt by those left behind to describe how special their husband, wife, father, mother, sister, brother, aunt or uncle was. And the best/worst writing of all is the profile of a young child. Nothing is as touching as someone trying to capture the essence of one who passed much too soon, cheating the world of what might have been.

A few days ago, I was following my usual routine of looking closely at the pictures of those who died. I particularly like to see pictures of people smiling. Some pictures draw me to their eyes, or perhaps a special grin that wants me to learn more about this person. I assume that if a person is smiling in their death notice it means that this is the way those responsible for posting the obituary saw that person, and it's nice. That's when I was shocked to see the smiling face of Donald McLean.

It would be disingenuous to write that Donald and I were friends. Truth be told, I hadn't had a conversation with Donald in perhaps five years. But, he was a good acquaintance, someone I enjoyed talking to when he walked in the door and had a smile on my face when he left. He would take pictures for us when we owned the Norwood Bulletin and had our offices at the ground level at 850 Washington St. Donald would walk in with his folders and proceed to explain how he was able to capture this picture or that picture, how the police or firemen would let him in behind the lines or how Town Hall had called him because whatever was going on was special and they wanted Donald there to capture the moment. Everyone wanted Donald to take the pictures, that's just how it was.

Examining the obit more closely, I was happy to observe that it referred to him consistently as "Donald," for that's who he was. Not a Don or a Donny, he was Donald, plain and simple. And his picture was perfect, because that smile captured his personality better than any description could. If you didn't know Donald, that picture was a very good way to be introduced. I only wished it showed both his ears, because man did he have big ears. Everyone should know that Donald's ears were almost as big as his heart because that's who he was. I then took notice of the symbols under his picture. Both the American flag and the Army star were there, and not only didn't I know he was a veteran, I didn't learn until reading our piece on him later that he was a decorated war veteran in WWII, having been both in Normandy and at the Battle of the Bulge. He often spoke of his parents, his brothers and sisters and of his wife who he loved dearly, but never once mentioned he was a hero because that's just how he was.

Guys like me who never served will always be envious of those who have, especially when they wear the uniform and stand at attention and salute during ceremonies. We are especially jealous of guys like Donald who did it all and never thought to mention it once in passing conversations because it would be like trying to describe the joys of reading a printed newspaper to those who never have. We just wouldn't get it, just like we won't get an American flag on our obituary notice.

So don't be hesitant to dive into the Obituary pages and read about your brothers and sisters here on terra firma, because no man is an island. You can learn a lot...just like the Sports pages.

Dedham Savings Executive Vice President Jerry Lavoie said, noting Dedham Savings does not charge debit card user fees. "We are not being affected by this change like bigger banks are."

Nevertheless, many other large banks have already begun testing debit card user fees in small sections of the country.

The fee will apply to basic accounts, which are marketed toward those with modest balances, and will be in addition to any existing monthly service fees. For example, one such account charges a $12 monthly fee unless customers meet certain conditions, such as maintaining a minimum average balance of $1,500.

Customers will only be charged the fee if they use their debit cards for purchases in any given month; those who only use their cards at ATMs won't have to pay.

As smaller banks are not charging such a fee, many economists are predicting at least some of the population will begin using smaller banks for such debit accounts.

"It's unfortunate," Lavoie said, "and it's causing quite an outcry."

Other local banks added that they had no plans to institute any such debit card user fees, including Needham Bank and Norwood Bank.

"If they're going to charge $5 a month, that adds up to $60 a year," Needham Bank receptionist Joanie Paquin said, noting Needham Bank prides itself on not charging debit card fees.

A study by Bankrate.com this week found that just 45 percent of checking accounts are now free with no strings attached, down from 65 percent last year and 76 percent in 2009.

Customers can still get free checking in most cases, but only if they meet certain conditions, such as setting up direct deposit.

The study also found that the total average cost for using an ATM rose to $3.81, from $3.74, the year before. The average overdraft fee inched up from $30.47 to $30.83.

The regulation, which went into effect on Oct. 1, caps the fees that banks can collect from merchants whenever customers swipe their debit cards. Those fees generated $19 billion in revenue for banks in 2009, according to a Nilson Report, which tracks the payments industry.

However, there is no similar cap on the merchant fees that banks can collect when customers use their credit cards. That means many banks are increasingly encouraging customers to reach for their credit cards, in hopes of reversing a trend toward debit card usage in the past several years.

Cottage St. lot permit program launched

Daniel Kobialka
Staff Reporter

Norwood is taking the initiative to improve parking for local residents and businesses by offering complimentary parking permits for its municipal parking lot behind the Apollo Function Facility at Washington and Cottage Streets.

"Prior to the program, all municipal [parking] lots in town were two-hour lots," Veterans Agent and Parking Hearing Officer Ted Mulvehill Jr. said. "This enables people to park in the Babel's [Paint and Decorating] lot all day without restrictions."

Business owners wanting to utilize the parking can visit the Veterans Services Office at Town Hall to provide the information necessary to receive permits for the parking lot.

Mulvehill said business owners must provide information including the number of employees in need of a permit along with their names and automobile makes and models.

"They want to encourage people to use the on-site parking for businesses in Norwood," Mulvehill said.

Mulvehill said businesses have received at least 115 parking permits to date, including 50 in the first two days of the program.

"It's taken off like a rocket," Mulvehill said of the program.

Mulvehill noted the parking program has been successful in the early stages.

"It's a pretty seamless transition," Mulvehill said. "We're reasonable in this office. We try to accommodate businesses as much as possible."

However, the town faces a tough road as it attempts to enforce parking violations within the parking lot.

Mulvehill said a $20 parking violation is to be enforced for those who do not possess permits. In addition, there will be a $5 fee if violations are not paid after 21 days, and failure to pay could impact a motorist's

The Norwood Health Department hosted a retirement celebration for Sanitarian Carl Bruno on Friday, but Norwood could face a tough task replacing the 10-year health official.

"He was phenomenal," Health Department Superintendent Sigalle Reiss said of Bruno. "He really walked the line of education and enforce-

Bruno, a Whitman resident, assisted the Norwood community as sanitarian by enforcing government regulations while educating restaurants and individuals on the importance of food safety.

Bruno noted his greatest accomplishment in Norwood was getting people to wash their hands through education.

Wenstrom overwhelmed by recognition

Daniel Kobialka
Staff Reporter

Norwood resident Bernice Wenstrom said she was overwhelmed following the acceptance of the Anne T. Lydon Volunteer of the Year Award at the ninth annual Norwood Day.

Yet it is the 90 year old, 60-year Norwood Hospital volunteer who has overwhelmed the community with her commitment to her volunteerism.

The Anne T. Lydon Award ceremony has become a part of Norwood Day festivities for the past four years. The award was named in memory of the late Anne Lydon, a Norwood resident who died in 2006.

The Anne T. Lydon Award winner receives the honor based on the work he or she does within the community, and is given to someone who offers the most of him or herself and is the epitome of a true volunteer. Past winners include Anne Benson, Olga Abdallah, Martha Colamaria and Dan Burns.

"It's always a well deserving person," Nora Jo Lydon, daughter of Anne Lydon, said. "Bernice Wenstrom is certainly one of the people to be deserving of the award."

Wenstrom joined elite company on Norwood Day as the newest recipient of the honor.

"This young lady is in her 60th year as a volunteer at [Caristas] Norwood Hospital," Recreation Department Superintendent Gerald Miller said of Wenstrom. "She has done unbelievable things for the town."

Lydon noted Wenstrom showed humility and selflessness on Norwood Day as she declined to give a speech following the award presentation.

Gienapp noted large areas of veneer stone are cracked along at least two faces of the tower (back and Washington Street sides). In addition, the areas included failed mortar joints and appeared to no longer be tied to the back-up masonry.

In these areas, Gienapp emphasized the veneer stone could fall off the building.

Gienapp's report stated this problem could worsen in sections running several feet high and wide, rather than individual stones. These large areas of failed masonry, coupled with the decorative stone at the top of the tower, are responsible for significant water infiltration around the tower, visible all the way to the first floor near the building's main entrance.

Gienapp noted it appears the entire masonry assembly of the tower is saturated with water currently.

Gienapp's report revealed some stone units of the finials have shifted, and while it is impossible to determine the exact state, it does not appear that these units are as susceptible to "falling pieces" as the main veneer of the tower.

Despite concerns regarding Town Hall, Gienapp said the primary stone masonry of the main building appears in generally good condition.

Gienapp noted there are numerous areas where localized repointing or other repairs are needed, but there is not extensive damage of the main building.

The report revealed many areas of failed masonry joints and damaged decorative stone elements on the main building, generally around windows, which has raised concerns regarding water infiltration in specific areas, such as the main stair and the north side of the Town Manager's office area.

Gienapp noted most of the large chimneys appear to have a limited number of cracks that need to be repaired. They do not appear to be damaged as to require dismantling and assembly.

Gienapp Design has estimated the repairs would cost between $1.5 and $1.75 million.

Callahan noted Gienapp Design offers tremendous potential for a Town Hall restoration project.

"The bottom line is we're very much hoping to get this started and to bring him on board," Callahan said of Gienapp.

Gienapp said he would use professional masons to do hands-on work if selected to complete the restoration effort.

"We're essentially continuing on the same path," Gienapp said.

tation as a humble volunteer in her efforts with Caritas Norwood Hospital.

Wenstrom said she was honored to receive an award recognizing the work of Anne T. Lydon.

"Anne was a great person," Wenstrom said following her acceptance of the Anne T. Lydon Award at Norwood Day. "She was very giving."

Wenstrom has donated at least 20,000 hours of her time to Caritas Norwood Hospital. In addition, the longtime volunteer has provided assistance to Meals on Wheels for 36 years.

"She not only worked for me, but she's a friend," Caritas Norwood Hospital Gift Store Manager Eileen Meade said. "She's a sweetheart."

Meade said she has worked with Wenstrom for 15 years, noting Wenstrom has shown humility throughout her volunteer work with the hospital.

"She is remarkable," Meade said of Wenstrom.

Meade said Wenstrom has donated at least 12 hours per week to the hospital.

Caritas Norwood Hospital Director of Volunteer Services Linda Gregoire said Wenstrom began her hospital work as a volunteer hostess through the Women's Auxiliary in 1949.

Gregoire said Wenstrom has visited the hospital at least two to three times per week, providing assistance in various capacities including the emergency room, surgical unit and gift shop.

The hospital has even named a volunteerism award after Wenstrom, but Gregoire said Wenstrom showed reluctance to accept any credit for her actions.

"She never wanted any recognition," Gregoire said, noting Wenstrom was hesitant to attend a ceremony where she would receive the hospital's volunteerism award named in her honor.

Wenstrom displayed an original personality in her volunteer efforts, setting the tone for her peers and co-workers.

"She has a very warm personality and a twinkle in her eye," Gregoire said. "She's a very special person."

Meade said Wenstrom has been away from the hospital for roughly six months due to an injury, but anticipates she will return soon.

"She's recuperating, and she's going to come back," Meade said.

ability to renew his or her license or registration.

Mulvehill emphasized the Norwood Police have been supportive of the new program.

"It's easy for us to safeguard the program, but there has to be a human element involved," Mulvehill said.

Norwood Police Chief Bartley E. King Jr. noted police visit the parking lot at least once in the morning and once in the afternoon on a daily basis, but the department faces challenges enforcing violations.

"It's become very difficult for us because we've had to reduce our manpower and staffing," King said.

Mulvehill said local businesses can continue to receive temporary parking permits that will expire at the end of the year, but anticipates additional permanent placards will be available in the future.

However, he emphasized the importance of setting goals in his work with the health department.

"If you don't set goals, you're not going to accomplish anything," Bruno said.

The Board of Selectmen honored Bruno with a proclamation noting his hard work and effort to the town.

"Your attention to detail and efficiency in your position as the Town's sanitarian will be extremely difficult to replace," Selectman Paul Bishop said Friday, citing the proclamation. "Your diligence and hard working ethic is part of who you are and you will be missed."

Selectman Allan Howard said Bruno stood out because of his "hands-on approach" to his work.

"He took his job seriously every day," Howard said. "Day after day he did a wonderful job for Norwood."

Howard noted Bruno was not afraid to get his hands dirty to help the town through his daily work.

"He's not around here very often because he was doing his job," Howard said.

Bruno said he plans to return to work in the private sector during his retirement. The longtime sanitarian noted he appreciated the retirement celebration.

"I'm kind of shy," Bruno said, "but I guess it was inevitable."

Norwood began its search to replace Bruno following his retirement announcement.

Health Department Assistant Director Stacey Lane noted the town has begun conducting interviews to fill the vacant sanitarian position. However, Bruno's replacement could have big shoes to fill.

"He's going to be hard to replace," Lane said of Bruno.

Football tops Brookline, readies for showdown with Walpole

Kevin Stone
Staff Reporter

Following Saturday afternoon's 37-2 blowout win over an undermanned Brookline team at home, Mustangs head coach John Sarianides looked his team dead in the eyes and told them they could now set their sites on the Bay State Conference title.

"I won't stand here and pretend like we aren't in this position," he told the Mustangs. "We can now focus on the Herget and say...the Walpole Rebels."

With the win over Brookline, combined with Walpole's blowout victory over Milton last weekend, the Mustangs will head to Walpole on Thursday night at 3-1 to take on the 4-0 Rebels with first place in the Bay State Conference on the line.

As for the Brookline game, Sarianides was pleased with his defense, but said he was still was not satisfied with his team's offense.

"We were still very sloppy today," he said.

"Defensively we didn't give up a score and that's great, but defense is usually our strong point anyways. Offensively we went three-and-out to start the game and we cannot have that. We need to be cashing in on all our possessions, especially against a team (like Walpole)."

Both teams struggled to find a rhythm early. Norwood's Andrew Alty fumbled on the first play from scrimmage, but recovered, while Brookline could not sustain its momentum on their opening drive.

With 2:18 to play in the first quarter, Norwood's Tom Munro found Brendan Cathcart for a 20-yard touchdown pass over the middle to go up 6-0. Kenny Michael added the extra point.

Brookline's Nick Scott played both quarterback and defensive back for a Warriors team that had 15 players in uniform. Scott showed his athleticism when he took a quarterback sweep from his own 23-yard line down to the Norwood 9-yard line to end the first quarter.

However, the bend but don't break defense of the Mustangs stood tall, shutting down Brookline from inside the 5-yard line twice to keep a goose egg on the scoreboard.

That same defense made its presence felt again quickly. After forcing a sack to Munro on a 3rd and 17 play, Brookline quickly gave the ball right back when Scott was stripped of the ball, which was recovered for a touchdown by Cathcart to make it 13-0.

The young and inexperienced Warriors seemingly sealed the game when they fumbled the ensuing kick off after the score.

Three plays later, Munro scrambled during a broken pass play and found paydirt for 27 yards, giving the Mustangs a 19-0 lead.

"Turnovers are like Christmas...they're always good," joked Sarianides.

"They're big for us and that's been a big emphasis all year. If we can get the ball back to our offense then we always have a chance to do something productive."

Norwood's Peter Kelly jumped a quick screen route and picked off a pass and returned it for a touchdown with 4:15 to play in the half.

Despite a 25-0 lead at halftime, Sarianides said he thought his team came out too slow to start the game, perhaps because of a delayed start time due to SAT testing.

"Well, we obviously need to come out with a lot more energy," he noted. "But I thought that the delay may have had a little bit to do with it. It's no excuse but it's something that needs to be addressed if we're going to have a chance Thursday."

The first four minutes of the second half may have ended the game for all intents and purposes.

Field Hockey falls to Walpole

Kevin Stone
Staff Reporter

The Sept. 28 field hockey game against Walpole may be considered one of those games that the Mustangs could try to throw away quickly as it may not have been one of their best efforts against a strong team, but the squad will look forward to the next opportunity at redemption.

Despite losing 7-0 to a powerful Walpole team, the Norwood field hockey team stands at 3-4-1 heading into this week's action. A team hoping to make the tournament must be at least .500, so while the Mustangs are on the outside looking in as of now, the team has the remainder of the season to accomplish its goal.

"We knew this was going to be one of the toughest games we have this season... They are one of the best teams in the state," said Norwood head coach Allison Parks.

"I actually thought there were a few stretches during the game where we played pretty well. We just had too many mistakes against a really good team and they made us pay for them every time."

The Rebels came out early, dominating possession and peppering goalie Courtney Fernandes with a bunch of corner opportunities.

Walpole struck first, roughly 10 minutes into the game, and continued to add sustained pressure in Norwood's half of the field.

It was quickly 2-0 moments later as Walpole converted another corner with excellent ball movement resembling a crisp power play in hockey.

Swim still unbeaten

Kevin Stone
Staff Reporter

Stop if this sounds familiar.

The swim team won again and remains unbeaten.

It is becoming repetitive, but the Norwood swimmers are dominating in the pool. In doing so, the Mustangs are making noise with a 5-0 record.

It was more of the same for Kim Goodwin's squad as they won their first mixed meet against Marshfield on Sept. 27, winning 107-79.

"People just keep stepping up," said Goodwin. "Everyone is just trying to get better every day and because of that we're getting better in meets and as a team."

Mustang swimmers and divers set more records during the meet, a recurring theme so far this season.

Evelyn Metta, Alex Metta, Jimmy Conley, Marguerite Lee, Patricia Lee, Charlotte Rivard, Caitlin Sullivan, Anthony Rogriguez and Manny Escobar all swam to personal best times that provided big points during the meet for Norwood.

Conley and Lee also lowered their own team records, while divers Brianna Whalen, Kristen Folan and Mackenzie Begley recorded huge dives as each placed. Norwood co-captain Mary Pat Norton was also part of the diving group that helped secure a fifth victory for the Mustangs in the pool.

The tough part for Norwood could be maintaining focus and taking each meet one at a time without looking ahead.

"All I can ask is that they keep doing what they've possession for Brookline, Alty took a toss play to the left side 81 yards to the end zone for a 31-0 lead.

Brookline got its only score of the day after blocking the extra point and returning it to the end zone, a score that is only worth two points.

"He's a gamer," Sarianides said of Alty. "You just keep grinding with him and keep feeding him the rock. Eventually he's going to pop one off and he did it there. That was a big point in the game for us to kind of close the door early after they had some success towards the end of the half moving the ball."

Throughout the rest of the game, the Mustang defense allowed nothing as Alty, Joe Civattone, Kenneth Stokes and Ryan Igoe dominated possession in the backfield and ate up yards and the clock.

As time expired and Sarianides had his players gather in the end zone as they do after every game, a sense of urgency and heightened focus could be felt as he explained to them the significance of the upcoming week.

"It's been 11 long years [since Norwood beat Walpole]," Sarianides, told the Mustang players, and he may know better than others as he was a member of the Walpole staff in 2002.

"If we have an unreal week of practice, with an unreal sense of focus, and if we don't talk or chirp and just walk in there Thursday night and play our game...we'll see if we can come out of there with a big W. If the thought of potentially playing in the playoffs doesn't motivate you, nothing will."

Thursday's game may be considered the high school equivalent of the 2001 Patriots playing the 2007 Patriots. Walpole has been one of the top programs in the state since the mid 90s, winning Super Bowls seven times in nine appearances, and winning 14 outright Bay State titles. Walpole head coach Barry Greener has been with the team since 1973.

Asked if their huge win over Natick earlier this year (for the first time in five years) could help in any way during the Walpole week, Sarianides made it clear that the Rebels are a completely different beast.

"They're Goliath and we're David," he said. "It's been a long time since we've beaten them. I am hoping our senior leadership can really keep these guys focused and really zoned in this week. We're going to go in their hard for 48 minutes...and see what happens."

her teammates tried to pick up the pace of play on their end and got a few good rushes up field because of it, but could not convert.

The Rebels made it 3-0 just before the half after Fernandes was beaten when Walpole was able to clean up the garbage in front of the net and bang one home.

Nicole Casey relieved Fernandes at the start of the second half, something that Parks said was good for her squad.

"It was just a matter of us needing to switch things up a bit, combined with the fact that Nicole's been playing real well in practice lately," she said.

"I figured this was a good opportunity to try and get a little spark for us and also saw it as a chance for us to let our senior goalie get in and try and help us out a bit."

Despite the change, the story stayed the same for the Mustangs as Walpole continued to dominate possession and eventually added four more goals before the final whistle in the second half.

Sweeney steps down as baseball coach

Kevin Stone
Staff Reporter

As many people say, all good things must come to an end.

For the Norwood High School baseball program, that good thing is the tenure of two-year manager James Sweeney, who recently stepped down as the club's leader Sept. 23 after determining that the expected birth of a second child was just too much to balance along with the strains of the season.

Sweeney took the high road, and even took an the summer to decide on his future. However, he may have done the right thing for himself and his family, something that Norwood Athletic Director Brian McDonough can respect.

"It was actually his call all the way," said McDonough.

"He approached me last summer explaining the situation, and I told him that it'd be completely up to him and for him to think about it and talk with as family as much as he wanted and then to let me know when we came back in the fall. It was tough for him but we both agreed that it is pretty obvious that family comes first and that is pretty much all this decision comes down to. [It was] the right thing."

Sweeney, an NHS graduate, took over as manager in Oct. 2009 and garnered a 15-26 record in his two seasons at the helm. He led the Mustangs to the state tournament last year, where Xaverian ousted Norwood in the first round.

As far as a replacement goes, that is something that will take a little time, McDonough noted.

"Well, we're going to have to get a committee together and wait a bit until we can post the actual job opening," he explained. After we do that hopefully we get a lot of quality applicants and make an informed, careful decision as far as someone to take over what Jim started building here. It's going to be tough."

Despite the hole the baseball program is now left in with a season starting in roughly five months, McDonough had nothing but praise for Sweeney, and commended him for a job well done and professionalism in the way he stepped down.

"Jim was very adamant about the fact that if he couldn't put his full effort in due to family matters, then it wasn't fair to expect maximum effort out of the kids.

He did an excellent job for us and really focused on teaching our kids the right way to play the game and how to respect the game. He's definitely going to be missed in the dugout."

FOOD PANTRY NEEDS PASTA, PEANUT BUTTER AND OTHER BASICS

Think of a meal that's wholesome, inexpensive, and delicious, and you'll probably come up with something that involves pasta and tomato sauce. Yet right now, the Norwood Food Pantry has only a very limited supply of these basics to distribute to neighbors in need. We're running extremely low on dry pasta, canned pasta, spaghetti sauce, mac and cheese, canned tomatoes, paste, and sauce, and almost out of baked beans, canned and jarred fruit - even peanut butter. We urgently need donations in all these categories. In the fall, food pantries often find themselves short of important staples, as supplies from the Postal Workers' Drive in May are depleted and holiday giving is still months away. Because of the economy, the need is especially critical this year as the families in need have grown from about 250 to over 350 families have come to us for help. Anyone wishing to make a donation can drop it off at the food pantry, located at the rear entrance of Grace Episcopal Church, 150 Chapel Street, Thursday mornings between 8:30 and 9:30 or Saturday mornings between 7:30 and 11. Plentiful parking is available, and volunteers are on hand to assist in carrying bags and boxes. For those who prefer, convenient drop-off boxes are located in the Morrill Memorial Library and Hannaford's Supermarket, both on Route 1A/Walpole Street; Shaw's on Nahatan Street; and Stop & Shop on Route 1/Providence Highway. Checks and cash donations are always greatly appreciated, as well. Checks should be made out to "Ecumenical Community Food Pantry of Norwood" and sent to 150 Chapel Street, Norwood, MA 02062.
