

Norwood to hold 9/11 ceremony

Daniel Kobialka
Staff Reporter

Norwood will honor the memory of the victims of the Sept. 11 attacks at a remembrance ceremony at the gazebo in the Norwood Town Common on Sunday evening.

Veteran Services Director Ted Mulvehill Jr. said the ceremony will feature music, prayer and the reading of the names of the victims of the 9/11 attacks.

"What we're offering to the town is a unique and respectful event for people to come and participate in," Mulvehill said.

Mulvehill noted music will begin at 7:00 p.m., with the remembrance ceremony scheduled to start 30 minutes later.

Mulvehill said the ceremony will be different from other 9/11 remembrance events as the town will host an event in the most respectful manner possible.

"I think it's going to be what it's supposed to be: somber, solemn and respectful," Mulvehill said.

A group featuring 12 Norwood citizens and elected officials has been invited to read the victims' names during the ceremony.

"Obviously, nobody said No," Mulvehill said. "Folks wanted to be a part of this ceremony."

Mulvehill noted that readers will cite each victim's home state, followed by their hometown, name and age.

Each reader will read five names, but will receive no introduction during the ceremony.

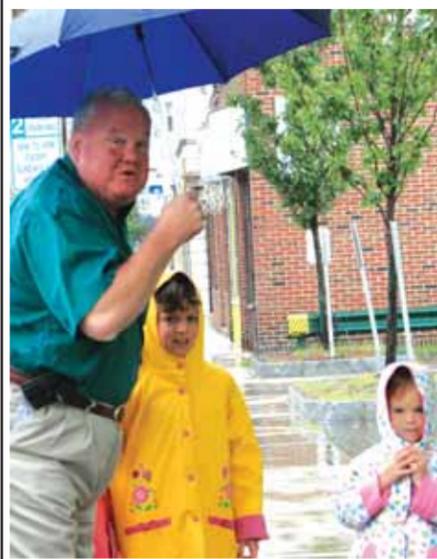

"It's going to be different and unique from other remembrance ceremonies," Mulvehill said, noting Sunday's event will not include a master of ceremonies.

The Norwood High School Alumni Choir will recite two songs, and a guitarist/vocalist will perform a song of hope at the event.

In addition, clergy members will lead prayers of hope, remembrance and peace in the Middle East.

"It's going to be composed of prayer and even those saying prayer will not be introduced," Town Manager John Carroll said, noting three clergy members of different faiths

A soggy Tuesday morning could not dampen the spirits of students as they battled the rain and wind on their first day of classes.

Bright-eyed students begin inaugural year at new NHS

Daniel Kobialka
Staff Reporter

The new Norwood High School (NHS) began classes amid a rainstorm Tuesday morning, but students maintained optimism as each began their first year at the New School on the Hill.

"We're all freshman this year," NHS Principal George Usevich said. "We're all learning this building and I'm sure it will take a little bit of time."

Usevich and Norwood Public Schools' Superintendent James Hayden addressed the student body from the NPA-TV news desk on campus.

Hayden noted the rain could not diminish the historic occasion.

"Even though it's raining, it hasn't dampened our spirits," Hayden told the student body. "We have tremendous possibilities in this building."

Usevich, who began his 48th year with NPS on Tuesday, noted this year's first day features similarities to past school openings because students are dealing with schedule changes, finding their homerooms and dealing with traffic.

But Usevich said the inaugural day at the new NHS carries a special feeling to the Norwood community.

"It's exciting," Usevich said. "I think we saw glimpses of it at orientation, but now we're seeing it today."

Usevich said at least 90 percent of students attended each of the four orientations at the new school, but there will be a continuous learning process for students, parents and faculty as they become acclimated to their new surroundings.

"The keyword is being patient," Usevich said. "I think there's going to be tweaks."

Usevich said traffic was an issue on the first day as a school bus arrived shortly after the initial 7:45 a.m. bell.

"There was a lot of congestion earlier," Usevich said, noting the biggest issue the school faced Tuesday morning was the traffic flow. "We will see what we can do to alleviate that."

Students and faculty can go with the flow for now, but will have control over a historic aspect of the school in the near future.

Usevich said a contest will be held to give students and teachers the opportunity to name the school's main corridor, a hallway which features historic plaques honoring Norwood's past.

"I would like the kids and maybe the faculty to get involved," Usevich said.

Hayden said the contest gives students a chance to make their mark on the New School on the Hill.

"We'll let the students take ownership of it," Hayden said.

Usevich said a committee featuring students and teachers will be established to decide the name, once submissions have been completed.

Usevich said he anticipates the new corridor name will be determined by Oct. 1.

"I think it'll be fun," Usevich said.

The Norwood Department of Public Works (DPW) continues its efforts to remove branches throughout the town following Tropical Storm Irene last month.

"It's been busy," DPW Assistant Superintendent Gary Schorer said.

Schorer noted the tropical storm brought trees and limbs down in Norwood. In addition, the town experienced isolated flooding during the storm.

But Schorer said the town has been very well prepared to deal with the tropical storm.

Town Manager John Carroll recognized it has taken a collaborative effort among several departments to assist with the cleanup.

"We had terrific cooperation between the Department of Public Works (DPW), Norwood Light and Broadband, the Norwood Police Department and the Norwood Fire Department," Carroll said.

DPW Director Mark Ryan said there were no reports of any home damage from the storm.

Ryan noted the department had a plan in place prior to the storm to deal with the cleanup.

"There were a lot of limbs and branches that came down," Ryan said, "so we focused on those first."

Ryan said the DPW, fire department, police department and Norwood Light and Broadband met prior to the storm to establish a plan. The departments worked together to track the storm's development prior to its arrival Aug. 28.

The DPW has worked since the storm on the cleanup effort, but Ryan noted Norwood Light and Broadband has played a key role in the brush removal.

"Having a light department is such an advantage in this community," Ryan said.

Norwood Light and Broadband Superintendent Malcolm McDonald said the department was able to assist the community immediately once the storm hit Norwood.

"We're lucky," McDonald said. "We all worked together."

In addition, Norwood Light

Selectmen send land purchase to TM

Central St. location to be used by Light Company

Daniel Kobialka
Staff Reporter

The Norwood Board of Selectmen passed a motion to seek approval at a Special Town Meeting (TM) to pay $475,000 for the acquisition of the Norwood Print Building and underlying land at 188-190 Central St. TM should receive the request at its next gathering.

Selectman Helen Abdallah Donohue noted acquiring the property provides a tremendous value to the town.

"I think it's very important to acquire the property because, to put it in common terms, it's in our own backyard," Donohue said.

The town will receive a discount if it completes the land and building purchase.

Kelliher Associates of Walpole had conducted an initial property appraisal for the town in July 2010, determining the land and building were worth $460,000. The most recent appraisal placed the value at $370,200.

But the Trustees of 190

Trust, the owners of the Central Street location, could have received significantly more than the initial value of the property in better economic times.

"If the economy wasn't as depressed as it is now, the sellers could have sold it for 25 percent more," Donohue said, noting the town could purchase a valuable addition because of the economy.

The Board noted it intends to demolish the building to give the Electric Light Department a place to house its vehicles, which are currently exposed to the elements in the parking lot near Railroad Avenue.

The property's gross building area is 5,160 sq. ft., while the land area totals 8,343 sq. ft.

Donohue said a possible property purchase by the town provides benefits to the seller and the buyer.

"It's one of those rare situations where it's win-win," Donohue said.

The Board will require the approval of TM to obtain the funds for the project, which will come from the revenues of the Electric Light Department.

Selectmen said the plan to seek approval at a TM could take place in the next two months.

Selectman Bill Plasko noted the opportunity for the town to acquire the property remains too good to pass up.

"A property that's next to us, if we can afford to buy it," Plasko said, "We should."

Donohue said she looks forward to going to town meeting in the future to get approval for the property purchase.

Town Planner Steve Costello discussed the Vanderbilt Area Strategic Master Plan with the Board, asking Selectmen to insert an article for $40,000 at the next Special Town Meeting.

Costello noted the Vanderbilt property contains more than 200 acres of land on 43 parcels. The property value has decreased from $148 million to $139 million since 2009, but taxes on the land have increased by 11 percent during the same timeframe.

could have provided assistance in other areas if necessary.

"We provide mutual aid to the other communities if need be," McDonald said, "and they would be there for us if need be."

McDonald noted the town's overall effort to clean up the brush has been successful thus far.

"They did a very, very good job," McDonald said. "The crews responded fantastically."

Smaller branches and brush can be bundled and left curbside for pickup as DPW crews are working continuously to remove large branches and brush throughout the town.

The Winter Street Landfill will remain open to Norwood residents for brush and leaf disposal until Sept. 9.

will conduct the prayer services.

The town hosted a remembrance ceremony at the Town Common for the fifth anniversary of the Sept. 11 attacks. Mulvehill said roughly 1,200 people attended the ceremony.

"It was astonishing," Mulvehill said of the fifth anniversary ceremony. "We're hoping for the same turnout."

Carroll said the event is a candlelight vigil, and each attendee will receive a candle to hold during the ceremony.

Mulvehill said the remembrance ceremony provides the victims of Sept. 11 and their families to live on through the community.

"If the name is spoken, then they are remembered," Mulvehill said. "I think that's true in this case."

FNCOA questions town's notification of emergency

Daniel Kobialka
 Staff Reporter

September marks National Emergency Preparedness month across the United States, and the Friends of the Norwood Council On Aging (FNCOA) considered the town's response to Tropical Storm Irene at its meeting Thursday.

"I don't think the town is doing right by the seniors," FNCOA President Bill McCoy said, noting the town failed to notify senior citizens the Civic Center was Norwood's emergency response shelter during the storm. "That should be automatic."

McCoy questioned whether the Senior Center could be used as a shelter during emergencies. Senior Center Executive Director Dorothy Anne Vitale noted Norwood officials are aware of seniors' concerns. Vitale said the Civic Center remains the town's designated emergency response shelter because it has a generator.

"We don't have a generator, but we do have gas cooking in the kitchen," Vitale said, referring to the possibility of using the Senior Center's kitchen in an emergency.

Vitale told the FNCOA the Civic Center presented the best option during an emergency, and has proven to be a more reliable shelter than using the Senior Center or the Norwood Hospital.

"The Norwood Hospital is not going to be a shelter," Vitale said. "It is going to be an emergency resource."

Local Emergency Planning Committee Chair Bernie Cooper said the Civic Center offers an ideal place for people to go in hazardous conditions.

The FNCOA shifted its attention to its monthly dances, which continue to be a success.

"Right now, I think we have probably the most popular dance," McCoy said, noting 130 people attended last month's Hawaiian-themed dance at the Senior Center.

McCoy noted the dances will continue on a monthly basis, despite a suggestion regarding the possibility of bi-monthly affairs.

But the Senior Center may get competitive this winter.

Vitale said she has been

Abutters note oddities, dust at HS meeting

Daniel Kobialka
Staff Reporter

Tropical Storm Irene brought wind and rain to Norwood last month, but the new Norwood High School held its own despite the challenging conditions.

"I think the site performed admirably in a storm of that nature," Town Manager John Carroll said at Friday's weekly high school meeting.

Cleanup continues at the demolition site of the Old School on the Hill, but the storm has yielded no delays.

"Considering the amount of rain we had, it's not that bad," Agostini Project Manager Kathleen Labouliere said.

Labouliere said railings have been installed at the new high school's front entrance following the storm.

"The railings are terrific," Carroll said.

Norwood Light and Broadband Superintendent Malcolm McDonald said the storm knocked down four telephone poles.

High school abutter Anne Haley said she did not see any debris from the storm, but noticed several issues when she visited the school recently.

"There were a couple of things we found when we walked around the building," Haley said.

Haley noted the school's track's height was inconsistent at different spots.

Labouliere said the problem was being handled.

"The height differentials are being addressed," Labouliere said. "Some of the [track] pellets are going to come off...we're going to put some of the red paint in high traffic areas."

Haley said she found the lettering on the sign near the front of the high school to look somewhat strange.

"There's different depths to the caulking," Haley said, "so it looks kind of weird."

In addition, Haley said birds could build homes at the top of columns in the front of the school.

"If you look at it from the sides, birds can nest there," Haley said of the columns.

Haley noted a "No Drugs" sign was put in front of her Nichols Street home, but questioned why similar signs were not placed throughout the campus.

"I'm wondering why we only have one," Haley said. "There isn't another sign on the other side of the high school, and that seems silly."

Town officials addressed the concerns of other abutters during the meeting as well.

Abutter Barbara Griffin said she noticed signs of mice near her home, a problem Haley said she experienced as well.

Compass Project Management's Tim Bonfatti said the Permanent Building Construction Committee has discussed the possibility of providing direct abutters who have reported mice problems in the past limited reimbursement for pest control.

Nichols Street resident Michael McDonagh noted traffic could be a problem at the new school.

McDonagh asked town officials to consider a police detail for trucks entering and exiting the demolition site.

"It's not under our contract that we need to have a police detail when trucks are coming in or out of the site," Labouliere told McDonagh.

Editorial

REMEMBRANCE

We initially resisted writing about the anniversary of 9/11.

There was an initial draft we discarded, deciding to pursue one of the many axes we have to grind. That was until smarter folks in the newsroom prompted us to revisit the topic.

They were right.

Our initial resistance may have had something to do with an inherent cynicism. All too many of the "remembrance" stories newspapers and TV stations offer on the anniversary of tragedies ring hollow for us. They are too maudlin, too exploitive too color-by-numbers. They ring of attempts to get readers or viewers and appear, in large part, because the media feels it is an expected obligation. We've seen these sorts of stories many, many times before — a grieving mother, clutching a picture of a dead son. Is there really any value to be had prying into someone's personal grief?

Maybe our resistance to writing about the tragedy we experienced a decade ago also has roots in denial, a stoicism that lets us file away horrible memories and bury searing emotions deep into the subconscious.

And yet, here we are. You are reading exactly the sort of piece we were prepared not to write. What changed our mind?

Oddly, it was the sight of school buses that moved us. Driving past bus stops, we saw kids of all ages heading into school for the start of a new year. There were kindergartners being photographed by bittersweet moms as they skipped along to their first day. Junior high students playfully jostled in a light rain. High school kids meandered their way to cars and T stops.

It hit us that these kids have always lived in the shadow of 9/11. They may not think about the events, or remember where they were. Many hadn't even been born yet. Nevertheless, they have never known an America that wasn't scarred by this act of aggression on our own soil. For us, life changed because of terrorism. For them, it is simply the life they know.

How great it would be for us to rewind the clock and calendar, to give the younger generation a country without this dark shadow and psychic blemish.

Yet, here we are. Unbelievably a decade has passed, even if the memories still feel fresh and current. We go about life most days not even thinking about the attacks on the World Trade Center, but the emotions and memories are still close to the surface.

There is no brilliant observation we can offer here. There is nothing we can do to make you feel better, or to rile up anger, or to reassure you of the strength and resilience borne out by Americans. Those thoughts and emotions are already within us all.

We can offer no consolation to those who lost friends or family that fateful day. There's not much we can say to ease the burden of those who have loved ones called to military action in the years that have passed.

So what can we do?

We'll do what all of you will. We'll mark the solemnity of the day in our own personal way. We'll be thankful and mindful of the blessings we have, well aware of how easy it is for them to be snatched away. We'll pray for peace and hope that never again we will have to face something so terrible on such a massive scale. We'll mourn the fact that we even have to pray for such things.

We will remember. We will never forget. We will carry on.

Letters to the Editor

TIME TO AMEND

Last year I wrote this paper concerning the hiring of the best-qualified coaches for Norwood, and not just Norwood born people. I stand by that assertion and feel strongly that it only makes sense to hire the most qualified. I received many e-mails and handshakes for pointing this out. If I had stopped there, things would have been okay. But I then used poor judgment and crossed the line. After time of reflection and life events, I want to apologize to Norwood's football coach, John Sarianides. Life is too short. I want to amend my bad conduct.

Though not mentioned by name in the article, I was mean spirited and wrote things that were hurtful to him. There were reasons I wrote this, but I should not have voiced my frustrations in such a manner. I was not part of the hiring process and, although on paper there may have been more experienced coaches that had won titles, there are other tangibles I may not be aware of.

I am doing this sincerely and not, as critics may say, to boost my son's football season prospects. He does fine without my help. I want to wish the football team good luck. It is my sincere hope that this will be a very successful and well-coached season.

TIRED OF READING LETTER WRITER'S COMMENTS

It gets a little tiring trying to read all of Mr. Donnelly's subscribed talking points when responding to your columnist, Jackie Saber, in the Letters to the Editor portion of your paper (Saber Doesn't Tell Whole Story, 8/31/11). I'd like to ask him, through you Mr. Moderator, now that Obama's relatives have proven to be illegal aliens, and for many years, will his president's policies address, 'those with criminal records [being] the primary focus of deportation' when it comes to his uncle previously living in Framingham and now a ward of the court in Plymouth County Correctional Facility? And, if you don't mind, does he still think this 'is a sensible approach'?

Donohue said the economy has led to a decrease in property values nationwide.

"I'm surprised that it hasn't gone down more," Donohue said, referring to the Vanderbilt area's value.

Costello said the funds could be used to hire an economic development consultant.

"A strategic master plan is needed for the Vanderbilt area...one that reinvigorates the town," Costello said.

The Economic Development Committee (EDC) discussed presenting the proposal to the Board at its July 27 meeting.

Costello told the EDC the Vanderbilt area maintains growth potential.

"We don't really have a strategy for these 200 acres," Costello said at the July 27 meeting.

Costello urged the EDC to support a measure for the town to fund a study regarding the Vanderbilt area.

"There shouldn't be any doubt as to who is funding the study and why," Costello told the EDC.

Costello asked the EDC to consider keeping Vanderbilt area business owners absent from the process initially.

"We're not beholden to anybody," Costello said. "There shouldn't be any doubt as to who is funding the study and why."

The Town Planner noted the town should play a significant role in the master plan's development.

"I think it really works best if you have the town pulling the sled here," Costello said.

Costello noted the town's involvement could attract businesses to the Vanderbilt property, eventually increasing the value of the area.

"We're encouraging businesses to move into this location," Costello said. "Now let's give them a reason."

Costello told the Board that the town could potentially save one-third of the cost if it works with the Massachusetts Development Finance Agency (MassDevelopment).

Plasko, the EDC Chairman, said he supported Costello's request.

"It seems like an appropriate step to be taken," Plasko said.

Selectman Allan Howard questioned why Vanderbilt area business owners would not be required to pay for the hiring of a consultant.

"For us to pay the whole thing...I think the owners should pony up too," Howard said.

Plasko noted discussion between the town and the Vanderbilt property landlords will be completed soon.

"That's going to be some of the legwork between now and town meeting," Plasko said.

Costello noted a master plan could help the town develop a vision of what it can do with the area.

But adding the article to a special town meeting could give Norwood options to help improve the property's value.

"Ultimately it usually comes down to the town to get things moving, at least initially" Costello said.

Selectman Paul Bishop recognized taking action could help the town make progress with the property.

"If we don't do anything, it's not going to fix itself," Bishop said. "That's obvious."

The Selectmen had tabled discussion of the 2011 Andrew and Ernest J. Boch Memorial Fund Applications at its Aug. 23 meeting, but announced the grant award recipients Tuesday.

The Board received overwhelming interest for the grant awards. Chairman Michael Lyons said the Board received $75,850 in requests for $30,000 in grant funds.

"We did the best we could," Lyons said of awarding the grant funds.

Thirty-six recipients received at least $200 in grant funds: the Norwood Circle of Hope: $1,000.00, Board of Health dental compressor: $5,000.00, Norwood Football Parent Group: $500.00, C.J. Norwood's Central Chrysler Jeep Dodge displayed two Spirit of Liberty Jeep Wranglers, wrapped in the American flag from bumper to bumper, and five 9/11 Angel Cruisers as the Crossing of America Tour made a stop in Norwood on Saturday.

The Crossing, a national campaign to pay tribute, create awareness and raise funds for wounded warriors and fallen heroes and their families, features Spirit of Liberty Jeep Wranglers driven by patriotic Americans throughout the country.

The Crossing began on May 27 aboard the deck of the USS Midway in San Diego and concludes Sept. 8 on the deck of the USS Intrepid in New York Harbor. The tour has gone more than 12,750 miles through 43 states and the District of Columbia during its 105-day trip.

Central Auto Group General Manager Tom Eysie said his dealership was happy to host the event in the Commonwealth.

"Anything like this, we're happy to be supportive," Eysie said.

Saturday's festivities included a barbeque along with the Spirit of Liberty Jeep Wranglers and 9/11 Angel Cruisers, Chevy Camaros commemorating those who perished on Sept. 11, 2001.

"To have every name on there is mind boggling," Eysie said of the Angel Cruisers.

At least 50 people attended the event, but Eysie said he noticed a similar reaction when people visited the patriotic vehicles.

"It's kind of bone chilling," Eysie said. "They just get quiet."

But Walpole residents Bob and Ethel Simeone brought a patriotic antique of their own to the event: a 1943 Jeep Willys MB.

Bob Simeone said the event provides a way to remember the victims of 9/11.

"We think it's a great, great observance," Simeone said. "This is just a reminder of the impact 9/11 had."

Needham resident Tom Galant, a member of the Waltham Disabled American Veterans, said the 1943 Jeep Willys MB

Paul Murphy explained the traffic plan for the first week of school has been established.

"No one's going to have to sit and wait for the buses and for kids to get on and off," Murphy said.

Murphy said the plan would be reevaluated following the initial week of classes.

But McDonagh said dust control remains an ongoing issue for abutters.

"The watering and cleaning of Nichols Street has been anemic at best," McDonagh said, noting the last time he saw a truck run on Nichols Street was Aug. 11.

Labouliere said dust continues to be managed around the school, but recognized it can be difficult to remove all the dust from the area.

"Dust control is not dust elimination," Labouliere said. "There's not going to be a way to eliminate it 100 percent."

Haley told town officials that dust has been the primary issue for abutters during the new high school project.

"It's been after the fact rather than making preemptive strikes on it," Haley said.

brought back memories. Galant noted he visited the dealership interested in purchasing a car, but enjoyed seeing a vehicle he once drove as he served his country from 1947 to 1950.

"This was a bonus," Galant, an Army C-Company 23rd Infantry member, said.

Marine Corp Staff Sergeant Jason Figueroa, a team spokesperson for The Crossing, said people have been supportive of their efforts as they've made their way across the nation.

Figueroa noted the event gives people an opportunity to show support for troops overseas.

"People aren't necessarily inclined to go to a dealership for an event," Figueroa said, "but it's nice when they go for the troops."

Figueroa noted it was difficult to avoid making a scene with the Spirit of Liberty Jeeps.

"Basically, anywhere we wanted to go, people had us," Figueroa said.

The Crossing supports the Spirit of Liberty Foundation, a nonprofit foundation that enhances the meaning of liberty and supports our Armed Forces and their families.

In addition, the tour provides assistance to the Tragedy Assistance Program for Survivors (TAPS), a peer-based support organization that works with the Department of Defense to support the families of Armed Forces members who die in service to their country. TAPS administers several free programs including a national peer support network, the annual National Military Survivor Seminar and Good Grief Camp for Young Survivors, crisis intervention resources and grief counseling referral.

Eysie said the Spirit of Liberty Jeeps will be auctioned during the tour's closing ceremony, which will mark the 10th anniversary of 9/11.

Eysie anticipates each Jeep will raise between $200,000 and $300,000 at auction.

Figueroa said all proceeds benefit families of wounded warriors and fallen heroes.

The Mustang football team is lining up for a big year despite last season's 3-8 record.

For football, expectations remain high

Kevin Stone
Staff Reporter

Norwood head football coach John Sarianides had his team gather around the 50 yard line the morning before the first day school, making sure all eyes were on him.

"We have a chance to be a really good football team," he told them before breaking practice for the day. "But...you all need to cherish the opportunity you have to play football on a team right now, work hard, and show up on time to here and at school."

After going 3-8 last year, Sarianides is looking for a change from his team, and a return to a tradition of successful Norwood football.

"No matter what our record was last year, our expectations remain the same every year," he firmly stated. "We expect to compete for a league title, that's our goal, and that's what we as a staff will work towards and that's what we will work our kids towards."

Senior quarterback Tom Monroe, who threw 13 touchdown passes last season, along with Andy Alty, who was second in Division II last year in touchdowns, will both play integral roles in determining whether the Mustangs are successful on the gridiron.

"We're a little young on the offensive line, but we're more athletic this year and I think that's going to help us," said Sarianides when asked about other important factors of his offense.

As for the defensive side of the ball, Sarianides was quick to point to a pair of brothers who will lead the D. Joe and John Ciavattone (middle linebacker and defensive end respectively) will need to help bring a revolution of improvement, along with free safety Brendan Cathcart.

"We need to be better this year on that side of the ball, there's no question," noted Sarianides.

"We have a good amount of kids coming back who should know our playbook a little better and we should be a little more

Eight to enter Norwood Sports Hall of Fame

Kevin Stone
Staff Reporter

As an athlete, the Hall of Fame, no matter what sport you are in, is the ultimate place where you can say, "I made it."

It is the one place in sports, that whether people agree with you being there or not, they have no choice but to respect the fact that you are there.

Many cities around greater Boston and throughout New England have been inducting local high school or college athletes for decades, acknowledging the huge sports culture here for individuals who may not get the national, or even statewide, recognition that a professional athlete does when they are inducted to their respective HOF.

As of September 18, the town of Norwood will have 65 individuals and nine teams in their Hall of Fame when they induct the Class of 2011 at the Elks Club during a luncheon.

This year's class will include:

Golf team looks to bounce back

Kevin Stone
Staff Reporter

In any sport, missing the playoffs the year after you've been there is always tough. When you are a member of the golf team and the season only lasts a couple months, it is even tougher.

After gaining a playoff berth in 2009, the Norwood golfers went 3-7-1 last year after losing five of their key starters to graduation.

"We were just really inexperienced and young last year," said head coach

Slava Heretez.

The nice story coming out of the season was senior Adam Kewriga "going on a tear" (as Slava put it) towards the end of the year, and earning himself a spot in the individual state championships.

This year, Heretez is hoping a year of experience can help return the Mustangs to the team portion of the playoffs.

Senior leadership, as it is anywhere,

Swim team hopes to make noise

According to their head coach Kim Richard, the Norwood swim team should be making some noise around the state this year, with her team consisting of 30 swimmers (24 girls, six boys).

"These swimmers make up an eclectic group with varied personalities, talents and other interests, all of which should help add to the team's overall camaraderie and spirits" said Richard.

As far as senior leadership, the Mustangs will be led by Bailey Lambert, Will Higgins, and co-captains Mary Pat Norton (who also helps out with diving) and Megan Clifford.

Juniors that Richard is hoping step their compete level up in the pool this year include Patricia Lee, Alex Metta and Evelyn Metta, who were all top scorers from last year; Allie Ippolito, Shannon Wilson and Briana Whelan will dive again for the team; Emily Khirallah and Eddie Hernon joined the team for the first time this season.

"Eddie will really help strengthen our breaststroke events," said Richard.

Perhaps the most encouraging thing for the Norwood swimmers this year is that their largest class represented on the team is sophomores.

Jimmy Conley, Marguerite Lee, Tessa Maguire, Rachel Mullen, Katherine Osborne, Matt Piasecki, Anthony Rodriguez, Meaghan Shaughnessy, Kyle McLaughlin, and Shannon

Bonner are all returning for their second year, providing an extreme benefit that not many teams in the state will have. Kristen Folan and Mackenzie Begley will both dive for the team as newcomers.

As far as the youngest crew in the pool for the 'Stangs, incoming freshman include Manny Escobar, Natalie Looney, Meg Norton, Charlotte Rivard, and Caitlin Sullivan, who hope to contribute in one way or another for Norwood during the year.

Overall, after finishing last year with an above .500 record, the future is clearly bright for the Norwood swimmers, something that Richard is hoping to take advantage of.

"Our goal is to, once again, end the season with a winning record and surpass last year's numbers with sectional and state qualifiers. We are also very excited about our diving program that is continuing to improve and expand," she added.

athletic on that side too, so I think we'll see a quicker, 'faster to the ball' defense this season."

As far as motivating a team that finished with such a poor record last year, many coaches would wonder about their players' mental preparedness coming in to the season, and it seems that Sarianides and the rest of his coaching staff are doing a good job of not letting their kids veer away from a successful mindset.

"All these kids have to do is walk around here for their motivation," he said.

"We have a brand new facility, a lot of returning players who should now understand our schemes, and most importantly, we have three Super Bowl trophies in that high school... That should be motivation enough."

The overall theme of the 2011 season for the Norwood football team seems to be returning to glory days of sorts, something Sarianides said should always be the top priority.

"Those trophies are a symbol of our success, and how we are not supposed to be a rebuilding program, we should always be a reloading program, and that's what I hope we can be this year."

Hall of Fame

A committee of several different people will be putting together this ceremony that is expected to draw close to, if not over 200 people.

Jim Gormley is the Chair, Brian Clougher the Treasurer, Nora Glynn is Secretary, and Jack Tolman is the "Media Guru" as termed by Peter McFarland, account executive of The Allied Group, which is part of this event. This year, Trisha Brown, an inductee from last year's class, has also joined the committee.

As far as criteria for induction into the hall, it is not easy. McFarland explained how things operate in regards to election.

"Student-athletes must have graduated from Norwood High School, attended NHS for more than two years and it has been 10 years since their class graduated," he said. "Coaches must have worked at Norwood High for at least seven years and have completed their coaching career and teams must have obviously achieved a significant accomplishment."

There are also those known as "special contributors." They are individuals who have made a considerable contribution of time and energy to Norwood High School Athletics.

McFarland then lastly explained perhaps the best part of the entire process in terms of love and support shown by people around these fine athletes.

"People who are inducted are nominated by family or friends, and then our five person Selection Subcommittee reviews nominations and votes," he said.

Overall, the ability to be elected has to be earned, and there are people making sure certain criteria is met in order to uphold a certain level of excellence within the Norwood Hall of Fame.

The Class of 2011 has earned that right to be noticed and appreciated, and on Sept. 18, the people of this great town have that opportunity.

Introduction

Hello All,
My name is Kevin Stone and I will be the Norwood Record's new sports reporter starting this fall sports season. I am a 23 year old resident of Waltham and recently graduated from Middlesex Community College.

I also attended New England College to study journalism as well as Framingham State University. All three stops came after graduating in Waltham High School's class of 2006, where I played golf and lacrosse.

on to Patch.com, writing for several cities and towns around the Boston area and Rhode Island, again covering youth, high school and college sports.

In July, I also agreed to work part time for The Home-town Weekly newspaper in Medfield, and recently began contributing to a blog called TheNoseBleeds as well as FootballNation.

I am a die hard New England sports fan and I believe sports writing, especially in this area, can be extremely informative as well as entertaining.

I look forward to getting to know people in the town of Norwood and hope that my coverage can help you be proud of being a Mustang.

I have been covering sports since the summer of 2008, when I started with The Daily News Tribune out of Waltham. Through them, I had a brief partnership with The Palo Alto Daily based in Palo Alto California writing about Babe Ruth baseball. From there I moved

The Norwood High School soccer team is one of several teams looking to build off of its 2010 campaign. The team started off strong in 2010, and hopes to once again have success in the early season in 2011. Last year the team fell in the first round of the state tournament. Tyler Goncalves, above, will once again be a key cog for the Mustang offense.

will be the biggest key to a successful season.

"Mark Maggio, Jake Ranalli, and Greg Gillis have already stepped up and shown consistent improvement throughout their careers on the team," said Hertz.

Rounding out the top four of the eight-man lineup will be sophomore John Galvin. While it is a solid group, the Mustangs will have their work cut out for them competing in one of the best leagues in the entire state, the Bay State Conference.

Junior Tim Sullivan and sophomores Mike Roy and Walker Alexander will fill the 5-7 spots. Andrew Millin and Mike Murphy are two talented freshmen who could potentially make an impact during the season, and, the team also has players with varsity potential (sophomore Jack McDonough, juniors Thomas Eckhardt and Joe Erker).

"We have a very deep team that will have a good chance at achieving the ever-coveted .500 mark to qualify for states," said Hertz.

Overall, the expectations are not too high for the Norwood golf team this season, but expectations can change quickly, especially with a veteran team, something Slava he hopes will happen.

The beginning of school signifies the beginning of high school sports, and this year, the beginning of a new fall sports season in Norwood is particularly special.

Thanks to a nearly 70 million dollar renovation, and a completely new high school, this season will be new for everyone involved in Norwood athletics.

Instead of shuttles to and from practice at the Coakley Middle School, instead of track practice outside in the rain, instead of practices at nearly every conceivable sporting venue across Norwood, there will be brand new state-of-the-art facilities right on campus.

It's an exciting year to be a Mustang athlete, and this weekend will mark the start of a new era in Norwood Athletics. When the football team kicks off its season opener at an on-campus field this Saturday against Needham, history will indeed be made.

With a crowd expected to fill to capacity the new bleachers, which can hold just north of 1,800 people, the Mustangs will turn over a new leaf in Norwood sports.

Students, teachers, coaches, administrators and fans have been eagerly awaiting these new facilities, a well-deserved reward for the people of Norwood who worked hard to keep home football games in Norwood last season.

Thanks to generous donations of time and more from Norwood parents and fans last year, the football team was able to host games at the Coakley Middle School instead of being forced to evacuate to Westwood every week for games.

I can remember athletic director Brian McDonough giddy with excitement as he gave me a tour of the not yet completed athletic facilities last winter. I can only imagine his and many others' excitement as the new season kicks off in Norwood.

While there is plenty of history in the old building, many new chapters will be written on the fields that now lie on the campus of the high school.

HOME COMPOSTING BINS

Earth Machine compost bins are available at the Norwood Health Department for $20. Residents can reduce waste and gain supply of free compost. The organic portion of the waste stream contains yard waste and kitchen waste, each representing 25 percent of total waste generated (with geographic fluctuations). The average waste generated per household in North America is approximately 2,000 lbs. per year and it is estimated that about 50 percent of the total waste stream could be composted. On average, residents who compost at home can divert a minimum of 650 pounds per year from the solid waste stream. The Earth Machine is made of tough high-density polyethylene with UV stabilizers for all season strength and weatherability. It is made of high-density injection-molded polyethylene with a minimum of 50 percent post-consumer recycled materials. Unit dimensions when assembled are 33" diameter by 33" high, and weights 15 lbs. with a volume of 10.5 cubic feet. For more information on the Earth Machine visit www.earthmachine.com. The bins can be viewed in the Town Hall. Payment for the compost bins should be by check, made payable to the Town of Norwood. WOMEN'S WORKSHOP

Do you find yourself saying yes when you really mean no? Would you like to reduce your stress level and find more time for yourself? The Library is presenting a free, two-hour workshop on Thursday, Sept. 22 at 6:30 p.m. that will empower women of all ages to make crucial changes in their lives. Entitled "It's Time for a Change," this workshop will teach you how to rid yourself of guilt, take back your time and start to fully live your own life. Life Skills Facilitator Deb Titus will help participants discover where they want to make changes, identify choices and develop a plan to make it all happen. You will find out how negative, self-fulfilling thoughts are linked to guilt, how guilt manifests itself in everyday life, and how to say no without feeling guilty. Deb guarantees that each woman will leave the workshop with a fresh outlook and a written plan. Sign up for this valuable, self-affirming workshop. This program is funded by the Friends of the Library.

FORMER BSO MUSICIAN

JUSTIN LOCKE RETURNS TO LIBRARY

Back by popular demand! Those of you who attended Justin Locke's laugh-out-loud presentation at the Library in Feb. will understand why we're having him back on Thursday, Sept. 29 at 7 p.m. to talk about his latest book, Principles of Applied Stupidity - How to Get and Do More by Thinking and Knowing Less. Justin is quite the comedic storyteller and will regale us with more amusing tales following his first book, Real Men Don't Rehearse. This time he will include observations on the best musicians he has worked with and how making mistakes, looking helpless and confused, not knowing what you're doing and just generally embracing your inner idiot is key to successful management, leadership and personal success. Principles of Applied Stupidity was recently the focus of an entire episode of Chronicle-HD. To hear more of Justin's inimitable wit and wisdom sign up for this free program, funded by the Friends of the Library, at the Reference or Information Desk.
