Like the School Department, the town is encountering financial problems of its own as it faces a $3,312,955 shortfall going into this year's budget season.

Therefore, the Budget Balancing Committee voted unanimously on Jan. 19 to cut $353,000 from the town's preliminary budget request of $37,186,520.

Even after the initial slash, the town is still facing a $2,959,955 hit.

Assistant Town Manager Bernie Cooper said 84 percent ($300,000) of the $353,000 cut would come from health insurance coverage, as the number of employees requiring insurance from the town has diminished.

"Our enrollment has not increased as much as we projected," he said.

Yet, there would still be an increase of $690,500 in the Group Insurance line item.

However, Cooper said Norwood's health insurance provider, the Group Insurance Commission, has not been forthcoming with additional information.

"They are very, very closed-mouthed," he said.

Cooper also said the Worker's Compensation line item should be funded at $500,000. Although there is no projected increase over last year, he said money from that account would have to be immediately withdrawn if it was needed.

"There is no 'oh gee, we have to go to Town Meeting,'" he said.

In his Dec. 16, 2016 letter to the committee, Town Clerk/Accountant Thomas McQuaid said Norwood had a grand total of $75,274,588 available for the fiscal year 2018 budget season.

"We're short on what we have for revenues," he said.

McQuaid said 55 percent ($41,401,023) of the grand total was allocated to the School Department, and the remaining 45 percent ($33,873,565) went back to the town.

He also called attention to the 27 full-time school employees whose salaries

The Permanent Building Construction Committee (PBCC) and Dale Gienapp, owner of Gienapp Design, recently met with Board of Selectmen Chairman Allan Howard and members of the Historical Commission to bring them up to speed on the ongoing plans to renovate St. Gabriel's Chapel.

Prior to Gienapp's presentation, PBCC Chairman Francis Hopcroft asked those in attendance to focus on the project's end goal.

"I don't want to get bogged down in the details of the engineering of the design," he said during the Jan. 19 meeting, adding that a more thorough public hearing will be held in March.

During his presentation, Gienapp first reviewed the three options for renovating St. Gabriel's.

The first option would be to secure the building and leave it unoccupied.

"More or less just lock the door and leave the building," said Gienapp.

Superintendent search on schedule and going according to plan

In the four months since Superintendent of Schools James Hayden announced his retirement, the School Committee has been working diligently, plowing through the process of finding a new leader for Norwood's schools.

Hayden made the committee aware of his intentions at the beginning of the school year after six years as Norwood's superintendent and 43 years as an educator.

Following Hayden's announcement, a 13-member Search Committee was formed under the leadership of Co-Chairmen Linda Igoe and Michele Eysie-Mullen. Other members include Diane Ferreira, principal of the Willett Early Childhood Education Center, Fine Arts Director Catherine Connor-Moen, Selectman Thomas Maloney and Karyn Manning, a second grade teacher at Oldham Elementary School.

During its meeting on Oct. 19, 2016, the School Committee voted 3-2 not to hire an outside search consultant to assist in the process. Rather, the committee chose to utilize the Massachusetts Association of School Committees (MASC) with tech support.

In a written statement, Igoe and Eysie-Mullen agreed that the search process has been going well overall and that everything is on schedule.

"Although we have met some obstacles, we were able to overcome any issues because of our honesty and transparency," said Igoe and Eysie-Mullen. "We held steadfast to our very important task of searching for the exceptional leader for our schools and remain totally focused finding our next superintendent of the Norwood Public Schools."

When the application period ended on Jan. 13, 37 candidates had responded to Norwood's call for a new superintendent.

"We are thrilled to have such a huge response," said Igoe and Eysie-Mullen, adding that all applications went through the MASC before being sent to Norwood.

In addition, they said the Search Committee met in executive session on Jan. 19 to select its list of semi-finalists. Those interviews will be held in executive session from Feb. 2-7.

"Confidentiality of all applicants is a must; we will not release the names of the appli-

FinCom approves Treasurer funds, seeks to streamline reporting

Christopher Roberson
Staff Reporter

The Finance Commission (FinCom) voted unanimously on Jan. 19 to appropriate $15,340 to the Treasurer's Office to fund staff salaries through the end of the current fiscal year.

Prior to the vote, Treasurer Robert Marsh said he lost seven-and-a-half positions in the past year, adding that some of those employees had "plus or minus 30 years" of experience working in his office.

"All that institutional knowledge, gone," said Chairman Judith Langone.

However, without a monetary infusion from the FinCom, Marsh said he would not be able to advertise the open positions.

"We can't post them because there's no money to fund those positions," he said.

Marsh also said his office has been losing money to bank fees. He said that although the fees have not gone up, neither has the amount of money coming into his office.

Selectman William Plasko was also on hand to advocate for Marsh.

"He may be running out of money in March or April," Plasko said of Marsh. "We're trying to figure out how soon we need a Town Meeting."

Plasko also said some of the recent retirees have returned to the Treasurer's Office on an interim basis. However, he stressed that those individuals could leave permanently at any time.

The proposed budget for the Treasurer's Office is $702,835, an increase of $45,567 over last year.

In other news, Langone discussed the complexities of solidifying a figure for health insurance coverage.

"It's always a guessing game, sometimes we miss the target on that and it's not always our fault," she said.

Vice Chairman Alan Slater said Norwood's provider, the General Insurance Commission, has proven to be quite vague in prior years.

"Usually we don't get a final number that we feel comfortable with until after

May 1," he said.

Member Joseph Greeley said the FinCom needs to be more efficient in how it presents budget information at Town Meeting.

He said last year's article regarding Capital Outlay should have been packaged differently, as Town Meeting members went back and forth during the May 23, 2016 session over which line items were eligible for capital borrowing.

"We closed out Town Meeting with a bad taste in people's mouths in terms of how that was handled," said Greeley.

He said that this year, Capital Outlay should appear in an earlier article and that it should be presented in a format that is easier to understand.

Langone also requested an itemization of the town's Free Cash account, which, as of Dec. 31, 2016, holds a balance of $4,166,725.

"Being so large, the FinCom wanted to know, 'what is the breakdown of that?'" she asked. "We want

Town's budget shortfall could be trimmed to $877K

Christopher Roberson
Staff Reporter

After the Budget Balancing Committee reduced the town's budget gap to $2,959,955 on Jan. 19, Town Manager John Carroll and Assistant Town Manager Bernie Cooper spent the next five days trolling through the budget looking for additional savings.

By the Jan. 24 Board of Selectmen meeting, they had discovered ways to potentially reduce Norwood's shortfall to $877,000.

However, during his preliminary budget presentation, Carroll warned that they are not out of the woods yet.

"We'll have a very hard time this year balancing the budget," he said. "We're in a very difficult position at the present time."

Selectman Thomas Maloney asked if it was absolutely necessary to continue funding the worker's compensation line item at $500,000.

"In the past couple years, we haven't come close to that," he said.

Despite the list of proposed reductions, there were still some increases in Carroll's budget.

As an example, Carroll said the litigation line item was increased from $65,000 to $100,000.

"We have a lot of litigation coming up," he said.

There is also a need to replace seven door locks at Town Hall for $45,000 as well as modernize the building's elevator, which is now 30 years old. The cost of updating the elevator is projected to be $140,000.

Town Clerk/Accountant Thomas McQuaid agreed with Carroll's financial assessment.

"It's a higher deficit than what we've seen in a few years," he said.

During his presentation, McQuaid said the proposed budget for the Finance Commission (FinCom) is $115,743, an increase of $1,746 over last year. Within the total figure, $95,000 has been budgeted for audit services.

McQuaid also said the Reserve Fund is slated to receive $125,000 again this year. He said that account is controlled by the FinCom for the purpose of "emergency distributions" for either the town or the schools.

The Retirement Fund has also been budgeted at $4,887,339. Although that is an increase of $454,205 from last year, McQuaid said those figures are dictated by the Public Employee Retirement Administration Commission.

"We don't have discretion on how much we can fund," he said.

Regarding the town's Stabilization Fund, McQuaid said he originally recommended an allocation of $405,864. However, after further consideration, McQuaid dropped that amount to $375,420.

McQuaid also said Blue Hills Regional Technical School is pursuing an $87 million renovation project. He said the Massachusetts School Building Authority has agreed to fund half of the project provided that it gets approved by the nine communities served by the school.

Should that come to pass, McQuaid said Norwood would shoulder yearly payments of $88,207.

In addition, Police Chief William Brooks presented his department's request of $7,634,056 – a $238,111 hike compared to last year's budget, with $6,946,006 earmarked for salaries.

Brooks said he recently had one new officer join the department, adding that there should ideally be two officers for every 1,000 residents.

He also cited the need for four new cruisers, 10 portable radios and one-third of the department's Tasers.

He said Tasers typically have a useful life of five years. However, the ones his officers carry are "six or seven" years old.

Brooks also said suspects tend to be much more cooperative after being hit with a Taser, thus greatly reducing the risk of an officer getting injured.

Fire Chief Anthony Greeley said his $6,816,181 budget only showed an increase of $68,226.

"Overall, this budget is only up four-tenths of one percent," he said. "I look at that as essentially a level-funded budget, there's not a lot of change, so I don't have a lot to tell you."

Within the total figure, $4,507,282 would be used to fund salaries.

Greeley also said he increased the amount of educational incentive funding from $70,000 to $75,000 to accommodate one firefighter who recently received his Associate's Degree and another firefighter who received a Bachelor's Degree in fire science.

BETWEEN TWO SHORES

Let it never be said that Charlie Baker isn't a smart and shrewd politician. Unlike, by comparison, the new President and Congress (both parties), our Republican Governor seems to understand that partisan politics isn't as important as good governance.

That was certainly in evidence during his State of the Commonwealth address this week. In fact, we expect that his conservative base may not be too happy — but more on that in a moment.

The best way to assess these sorts of speeches is to think of them as a pep rally. Stressing the optimistic, over-perceived “carnage,” is an oratory skill that Baker excels at (and, as noted last week, an aim that Boston Mayor Marty Walsh proficiently accomplished during his recent State of the City remarks).

Baker's talking points:

* Stressing that he “built a bipartisan team,” worked in partnership with the legislature, and “looked for common ground.”

* “Over the past two years we've added 120,000 jobs. Today more people are working than at any time in the past 20 years. And our welfare caseload has dropped 25 percent.”

* Touting GE's decision to locate its world headquarters in Boston and North American Life Sciences headquarters in Marlborough.

* “Landmark legislation that will reduce our carbon footprint while maintaining a competitively priced and reliable supply of energy.”

* Issuing an Executive Order on Climate Change that directs state government to work with local governments, business, and non-profits to develop plans to protect the environment and reduce greenhouse gas emissions.

* Creating a pathway for students to secure a bachelor's degree from UMass or one of our state universities for half the price.

* New, collaborative initiatives to reduce homelessness.

* Bringing back the State Police's anti-human trafficking unit.

You would be forgiven if these matters seem more in line with the accomplishments of someone with a “D” next to their name than an “R.” To appease that latter category, Baker stressed spending. “By working together we've controlled the runaway growth in spending and nearly eliminated the structural deficit in just two years,” he said. “We've reduced the state's bureaucracy, saving hundreds of millions of dollars.”

There was also the now perfunctory time spent addressing the state's opioid crisis, and a subject that threatens to turn many to hard drugs: the MBTA's notorious unreliability.

“The MBTA's historic failure during the winter of 2015 laid bare the vital need for a complete overhaul,” Baker said. “But never forget the T always had the money, but it lacked the capacity to turn its resources into an action plan.” He added that the MBTA's operating deficit has been cut in half and “these significant savings, along with existing funds, are being used to double the T's investment in core infrastructure.”

There was one initiative Baker didn't highlight in his speech. Amid the likely repeal of the Affordable Care Act, this week Baker will announce a $2,000 penalty per worker on businesses that don't pay a certain level of employee health insurance costs. The idea is to stem the influx of folks fleeing the high deductibles and cost-sharing of work plans for less expensive Medicaid.

The move will not endear Baker to many of his business constituents, many of whom have numerous other ideas for containing healthcare costs.

Expect plenty of debate on the plan, but it is worth pointing out that is right in line with a Governor looking to juggle competing political ideologies in the state. Give him credit at least for not being mushy in efforts to adopt ideas from both Republicans and Democrats. For better or worse, that is what it takes for a “red” governor to succeed in a “blue” state. Baker seems fully aware of what it takes to navigate between warring shores. Like it or not, it is a reason he deserves commendations for keeping Massachusetts prosperous when so many other states are struggling.

BOOKS TO BLOOMS WORKSHOP

Say it with flowers — papers roses, to be precise — made from recycled books at a Valentine-themed workshop held at the Morrill Memorial Library on Thursday, Feb. 9 at 7 p.m. led by Allison Palmgren. A maximum of 15 crafters, ages 12 and up, will each take home half a dozen paper blooms. All materials are provided. To sign up for this fun, free workshop, please call 781-769-0200, x110 or 222, email norprograms@minlib.net, or stop by either the library Reference or Information Desk.

LOVE AROUND THE WORLD

Indulge in some romantic travel this winter — right on Walpole Street! The Morrill Memorial Library is presenting a series of four film screenings in February and March about finding romance and adventure abroad, beginning with “Eat Pray Love” on Monday, Feb. 13 at 6:30 p.m. Based on the inspiring memoir by Liz Gilbert, Julia Roberts' character, newly divorced, embarks on a yearlong journey to Italy, India, and Bali, seeking self-discovery through food, meditation, and the prospect of finding true love. The series continues on Thursday, Feb. 23 with “Midnight in Paris,” starring Owen Wilson, Rachel McAdams, and Kathy Bates, in which a nostalgic screenwriter finds himself mysteriously going back to the 1920s every day at midnight while in Paris with his fiancée's family. On Wednesday, March 1, see Diane Lane in “Under the Tuscan Sun” — a writer who impulsively buys an aging but charming villa in Tuscany and changes her life. The series concludes on Thursday, March 9 with “P.S. I Love You,” starring Hilary Swank and Harry Connick, Jr., about a young widow whose late husband arranged for her to travel to his hometown in Ireland and left her 10 messages intended to help her rediscover joy in life.

To sign up for any or all of these films, please call 781-769-0200, x110, email norprograms@minlib.net, or stop by the library Reference or information Desk. All movies begin at 6:30 p.m., and popcorn is being donated by Regal Cinemas in Bellingham.

EXPERT ON ROSEMARY KENNEDY TO VISIT THE LIBRARY

Join us on Wednesday, Feb. 8 at 7 p.m. for a presentation by Kate Clifford Larson, author of three critically acclaimed biographies, including “Rosemary, The Hidden Kennedy Daughter” (2015) which was just awarded the Massachusetts Book Award for Nonfiction in 2016. Rosemary's life has always been a small side story to the larger drama of the Kennedy family in the scores of books written about them. This is the first full length biography that puts Rosemary — an intellectually disabled child in a household of overachievers — at the core of that incredible family story. By placing her at the center of the narrative, the author was able to see the family in a different light — particularly her parents, Rose and Joe. Their attempts to raise Rosemary to “fit in” with the rest of her more capable siblings is both tragic and inspiring. It is clear, however, that the very existence of Rosemary deeply and profoundly affected the lives of all the Kennedys. The actions and decisions made by them take on a different meaning when you look at them through Rosemary's eyes. Dr. Larson's other biographies include “Bound for the Promised Land: Harriet Tubman, Portrait of an American Hero” (2003), and “The Assassin's Accomplice: Mary Surratt and the Plot to Kill Abraham Lincoln” (2008). She has been a consultant and interpretive specialist for numerous museum and public history initiatives focusing on the lives and contributions of women in the making of our national identity. To sign up for Dr. Larson's fascinating discussion about Rosemary Kennedy, please email norprograms@minlib.net, call 781-769-0200 x110, or visit the Reference or Information Desk.

HYLANDER ON INTERNMENT OF JAPANESE-AMERICANS DURING WWII

Historian Dr. Gary Hylander will present a total of four lectures at the Morrill Memorial Library in 2017, beginning Monday, Feb. 6 at 7 p.m. with “Executive Order 9066.” In the aftermath of the Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor in 1941, President Franklin D. Roosevelt issued Executive Order 9066, which resulted in the mandatory relocation of thousands of Japanese-Americans into detention centers for the duration of the war. Over 100,000 native-born Japanese-American citizens and foreign-born Japanese nationals were forced to leave their homes, sell their businesses, and surrender their personal possessions. Despite Roosevelt's fears, not a single Japanese-American was found guilty of wartime sabotage or espionage. To sign up for this program, funded by the Friends of the Library, please call 781-769-0200, x110 or 222, email norprograms@minlib.net, or stop by the library Reference or Information Desk.

Norwood's Newest Firefighter

The Norwood Fire Department would like to congratulate FF Justin Hitchcock on his recent graduation from the Massachusetts Fire Academy. FF Hitchcock attended the academy training for 10 weeks where he learned to drill down.”

In response, Town Clerk/Accountant Thomas McQuaid said one of the contributing factors was the local receipts, which were $906,000 higher than anticipated. Another factor was the $1,769,000 returned from departmental budgets from fiscal year 2016.

McQuaid said he always has lengthy discussions with department heads that have money left over.

“We try to squeeze as much back as we can get,” he said.

McQuaid said $4,342,245 in free cash had originally been certified by the state on Nov. 22, 2016.

However, during the Oct. 27, 2016 session of Special Town Meeting, $175,520 in free cash was voted to be used to purchase a new vehicle for the Fire Department and to replace rooftop unit number four on the Public Safety Building. Therefore, $4,166,725 was the remaining balance following the transfer for those expenditures.

“It dwindles quickly,” said McQuaid.

Yet, Greeley still saw a rare window of opportunity.

“We have what might be a one-time opportunity to do something long-term with this money,” he said. “This could be a real opportunity for the town to do something strategic.”

In addition, McQuaid said state officials changed the regulations governing the Stabilization Fund, which had required a two-thirds vote to deposit and withdraw money.

“They made putting money in easier, now you only need a 50 percent vote,” he said.

cants or the semi-finalists,” said Igoe and Eysie-Mullen. “Due to confidentiality laws, no names will be issued or publicized until the finalists are chosen and brought forward to the School Committee as a whole. It is the right of the applicants, as they may not have informed their current employers and may not want to jeopardize their jobs.”

Following the semi-finalist interviews, the Search Committee will forward its list of finalists to the School Committee by Feb. 10.

Igoe and Eysie-Mullen said the names of the finalists will then be made public and forwarded to the School Committee. Members will be visiting each candidate in their current district from Feb. 13-17.

The School Committee will conduct the finalist interviews in open session on Feb. 27 and will vote on a new superintendent in the middle of March with a projected start date of July 1.

Igoe and Eysie-Mullen said Assistant Superintendent Dr. Alexander Wyeth did not apply for the position.

The required qualifications include being licensed or eligible to be licensed as a superintendent in Massachusetts and at least 10 years of experience as both a teacher and an administrator. In addition, a Doctorate is preferred, although a Master’s Degree is acceptable.

are covered by grants totaling $1,608,830.

“The schools have a lot of people supported by grants,” said McQuaid.

He said that according to Timothy McDonough, chairman of the Board of Assessors, new growth revenue is currently estimated at $1,096,000. Real estate taxes for fiscal year 2018 are also projected to produce $72,972,442. State Aid is expected to remain consistent with last year’s figure of $10,788,056.

McQuaid said Department of Public Works Director Mark Ryan is expecting a reimbursement of $900,000 from the state under Chapter

90. McQuaid said that figure represents a $20,000 increase over last year.

In addition, McQuaid said that as of Dec. 31, 2016, the town has $4,166,725 in free cash, which is $2 million higher than last year’s number.

Although Norwood has historically used $1.3 million in free cash to balance the budget, McQuaid said the State Department of Revenue (DOR) now prohibits municipalities from spending more than $1 million in free cash for that purpose.

“DOR is really conservative on what they allow you to put in your budget,” he said.

Member Judith Langone, representing the Finance Commission, said she supported the DOR’s free cash regulation.

“We need to get off of that addiction,” she said.

Langone also said every effort will be made to uncover an array of revenue streams.

“We do drill down, we drill down very carefully and try to come up with answers,” she said.

The committee’s next meeting is scheduled for Feb. 13 at 5:30 p.m.

Steward still has plans for Lorusso Building

Christopher Roberson
Staff Reporter

Steward Health Care, the parent company of Norwood Hospital, still has its sites set on constructing an additional floor on the Lorusso Building; however, a lack of financing has forced those plans to come to a standstill.

“We’re trying to do it at the right time, right now it’s challenging for us,” said Patrick Murphy, Steward’s vice president of Capital Project Management, during the Jan. 23 Planning Board meeting.

Although the project’s two-year extension is set to expire in July, Town Planner Paul Halkiotis said the Planning Board could grant a new extension if Murphy returned before the board in June.

“The floor on top of the Lorusso Building was in direct response to the Affordable Care Act,” said Attorney Philip Macchi, counsel for Steward.

Murphy said the new floor would either have all private rooms or a mix of private and semi-private rooms.

However, Macchi said the plan encountered resistance from the Zoning Board of Appeals (ZBA).

“There are parts of it that are dead and parts of it that are not,” he said. “We would love to build the whole thing, that won’t change.”

In response, Halkiotis said he and Town Manager John Carroll could serve as mediators to help the ZBA and Steward reach a compromise.

In other news, Anthony Delapa, owner of Olivadi Restaurant and Bar, went before the board to request authorization for a fourth sign at his establishment.

Although Norwood’s bylaws do not allow more than three signs, Halkiotis said the restaurant does not have a typical footprint.

“This building has streets on three sides which is unusual,” he said.

Therefore, Halkiotis said the bylaws also state that the board reserves the right to waive the sign regulation provided that Delapa obtains a special permit.

Referring to a letter from the Norfolk County Registry of Deeds, Clerk Alfred Porro said the communities in Norfolk County that have adopted the Community Preservation Act (CPA) accrued a surcharge total of $2,691,220 last year.

“We won’t see any of these proceeds until fiscal year 18, but that’s a lot of money,” said Porro.

In the November 2016 election, Norwood residents voted 60.9 percent to 39 percent to adopt the CPA. The town was one of 10 communities to cast affirmative votes for the CPA.

Norwood’s new $33 property tax surcharge will take effect on July 1.

Town Counsel Brandon Moss has reviewed Halkiotis’ proposed CPA bylaw and it is now being reviewed by the Board of Selectmen, which will forward it to Town Meeting.

Provided it passes in May, the bylaw would allow the formation of a nine-member CPA Board consisting of representatives from the Planning Board, the Board of Selectmen, the Housing Authority, the Conservation Commission and five at-large members.

Halkiotis also said that State Sen. Cynthia Creem recently filed legislation that would increase the state’s matching CPA contributions.

“The legislature has realized that this is a popular program,” he said.

To date, 172 communities across Massachusetts have adopted the CPA.

The second option would be to restore the chapel to its original state and the last option would call for a full-scale effort to bring the building up to code.

Gienapp also said the building's occupancy can be no more than 49 people.

"From a practical standpoint, you couldn't accommodate a lot more than that anyway," he said.

In addition to existing roof damage, Gienapp said the building's stone façade has steadily weakened. He said the mortar has slowly been turning to sand, which will eventually cause the stones to literally fall out of the exterior wall.

"I don't think that stone is going to fall off tomorrow, but it is moving, it is loose," he said.

Gienapp said that although the windows are not airtight and are also in need of attention, they are a lower level priority.

"What could be done has been done, they're not in terrible condition," he said. "It's kind of like a car, you can do all the maintenance things, but there is a life cycle."

Speaking about the building's interior, Gienapp said the electrical system would need to be updated and that there is no insulation.

"There's really no way to insulate this building," he said, adding that the furnace is not so hot either. "It takes a little bit of the chill off, but it's not what you would call a good heating system."

Gienapp said that although there are no toilets in the chapel, restrooms are available 300 feet away in the administration building.

However, Member William Kinsman said that would trigger a variance with the State Plumbing Board.

"We're going to have to apply for a variance – we have a problem – we have a building with no toilets," he said.

Howard asked how much money the town has invested in the project. Hopcroft said that figure is currently between $35,000 and $40,000.

He also said the PBCC will continue to flesh out the three renovation options before making the request for construction funding at Town Meeting in May.

"We will need money – a lot of money," he said.

However, Hopcroft said he is hopeful that funds from the Community Preservation Act (CPA) could be used to defray the cost, which could range between $645,000 and $1,500,000 million.

Although the CPA surcharge will not take effect until July 1, Hopcroft said it would take about one year to complete the project.

Howard said he did not foresee any problems in terms of obtaining the necessary funding at Town Meeting.

"Not that we're super loaded, but it's not a bad year," he said. "We'd like to pay cash if we can. If we borrow it, that gives us less money down the road to have for other things."

Howard also suggested dividing the project into six-month increments rather than doing it all at once.

HYLANDER ON INTERNMENT OF JAPANESE-AMERICANS DURING WWII

Historian Dr. Gary Hylander will present a total of four lectures at the Morrill Memorial Library in 2017, beginning Monday, Feb. 6 at 7 p.m. with "Executive Order 9066." In the aftermath of the Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor in 1941, President Franklin D. Roosevelt issued Executive Order 9066, which resulted in the mandatory relocation of thousands of Japanese-Americans into detention centers for the duration of the war. Over 100,000 native-born Japanese-American citizens and foreign-born Japanese nationals were forced to leave their homes, sell their businesses, and surrender their personal possessions. Despite Roosevelt's fears, not a single Japanese-American was found guilty of wartime sabotage or espionage. Mustangs manage Rebels, move back above .500

Jake Levin
Staff Reporter

Balance, patience, and a steady dose of Ricky Meehan propelled Norwood to a 56-44 win over the Walpole Rebels on Friday night.

For the first time this season, Meehan finished in sole possession of the Mustangs' scoring lead with 16 points. The senior forward did the bulk of his damage from beyond the arc, per usual, with four made 3-pointers – two shots in particular resembling bookends of Norwood's victory.

"He's got a heart of gold," Mustangs head coach JJ Oliver said. "Man, he can shoot it. And even when they start to key in on him, he's got such a quick release these days. He's really zoned in right now."

Meehan's first shot of the night put Norwood on the scoreboard, a 3 from the wing on an assist from Mike

James to put the Mustangs on top 3-2.

While Norwood would never trail again after that make, building up a 15-point second half lead at one point, it wasn't until Meehan buried another trey with 1:07 remaining in the fourth quarter that the Mustangs could truly breathe easy.

Norwood led 42-31 at the beginning of the fourth, but an ice cold stretch from the floor to begin the final quarter put the game in peril. The Rebels excelled from the free throw line, making each of their first six attempts in the period as part of an 8-0 run to get within three points.

With 3:16 remaining, Richie Watson connected from deep to put Norwood back in front by six, but Walpole continued to linger.

Meehan ensured the lingering didn't become a full-fledged comeback for the

Slide reaches six as Norwood falls to Framingham, 2-1

Perhaps Norwood fans can take solace in this factoid: Walpole (13-0-0) has allowed just four goals all season. The Mustangs have scored two of them, while the other 12 teams the Rebels have faced have combined for the other two.

Norwood suffered its sixth straight defeat in a 2-1 loss vs. the Framingham Flyers last Wednesday afternoon.

The Mustangs (2-7-1) hung tough with a Flyers (6-3-2) team beginning to round into form, now 4-0-1 in its last five after a sluggish start.

Austin Reardon (31 saves) had yet another sharp outing between the pipes for Norwood. In order for Reardon's efforts to begin paying dividends for the Mustangs, it's going to take an equal output on the offensive end, according to head coach Chuck Allen.

"We had some power plays and loose pucks in front of the net...we just can't put it away right now,"

Allen said after the game.

Despite being outshot 9-2 in the first period, Norwood entered the second period with the game still tied. That changed quickly, as Joe MacInnis jammed home a rebound off a Ben Stefanini shot 29 seconds in for a 1-0 lead.

The Mustangs had ample time to respond on a major power play at 7:43 of the second. Ryan Johnson put a shot on goal 10 seconds into the four-minute man advantage, which led to continued cycling around the attacking zone and two more shots, one of which appeared to be a good goal – until it was disallowed, due to the net being off Framingham goaltender Dom Schiappa's moorings.

"We don't score that much, so it's a heartbreaking thing for them," Allen said of the disallowed goal. "That's called growing pains."

Winning streak snapped by Walpole, losing streak follows ensues

Jake Levin

The comeback was nothing short of valiant, but a lack of firepower finally caught up with Norwood in Friday night's 67-52 loss vs. Walpole.

Trailing by as many as 18 in the first half, matters were made worse for the Mustangs when senior Ally Copponi left the game with a knee injury.

"The whole game, essentially, we were playing with kids under [5-foot-8]," Norwood head coach Amy Lepley said. "And they just fought and fought, and we had it within four [points]. That's the definition of this team, I can't say enough about them."

Already without Meghan Reen, things seemed even bleaker sans Copponi. But Norwood made things awfully interesting for a time, springing an 18-4 run on the Rebels before the tank hit empty.

Quintessential to the run was Krista Bradley, who finished with 14 points and nine rebounds prior to fouling out in the first minute of the fourth quarter.

Bradley has been putting together some monster stat lines of late, and there's little doubt she would have recorded a double-double vs. the Rebels if not for her early exit.

"She's such a leader by example, so she's not really that aggressive type, but she's really stepped into that [role] in the last couple of weeks," Lepley said of Bradley. "She's such a great kid, she's so smart and she has big things going for her."

Norwood could get no closer than 40-36, but did hang around a bit longer into the third quarter. Walpole went back up nine points before Kaylin Reen drained a 3 to make it 45-39, but a Rebels buzzer-beating 3 to end the third quarter deflated whatever momentum the Mustangs had mustered.

Megan Giambanco finished tied for the team lead in points for the Mustangs, including an impressive 6-for-6 showing from the free

After holding three consecutive opponents to under 30 points, Norwood has now given up 60 or more points to back-to-back opponents in Walpole and Notre Dame Academy (Hingham).

As a team, Norwood finished 17-for-29 (59 percent) from the stripe. Its fortunes improved in the fourth quarter, when the Mustangs sank nine of their 11 free throw attempts.

The loss snapped Norwood's three-game win-other power play later in the period at 11:54, registering two shots on goal but again failing to beat Schiappa.

Sean Munro had a chance on the breakaway a few minutes into the third period, resulting in an attacking zone draw for the Mustangs, but once again not making a dent on the scoreboard.

Flyers' captain Scott Swennes scored on a breakaway of his own at 12:03 of the third, an important goal which stood as the game-winner after Brandon Walsh scored for the Mustangs with 36 seconds to go in the period.

But the late burst couldn't yield a point for Norwood, largely due to Schiappa's 21 saves in goal.

"There's no quit in this team," Allen said. "I'm proud of them. The game was there for us, we played pretty well."

"I've seen a big difference from day one to now. I think as the season goes, it's going to get better and better."

The coach said that the Mustangs succeeded – for the most part – in keeping Framingham's shots away from the slot, rather forcing the Flyers to take shots from around the perimeter.

"We want to keep them outside," Allen said. "And if our goalie can see it, 99 percent of the time he's going to save it."

Allen made note of a relative easement in Norwood's schedule coming up, but cautioned that just because the Mustangs may be playing teams with similar records to their own doesn't mean points will come easily – if at all.

"We get into a little bit lighter schedule, but nothing's guaranteed for us," he said. "We're not a big scoring team right now. But we work on it every day: finishing, finishing, finishing."

Norwood hosted the Needham Rockets (4-7-1) on Wednesday afternoon, in an event held after the Record's deadline.

The Mustangs are next in action Saturday afternoon at Dedham, in the team's final meeting as Bay State Conference opponents. Norwood snapped a 25-game winless streak earlier this season against the Marauders on Dec. 21 in a 3-1 triumph at Bajko Rink in Hyde Park.

Norwood Wrestling blanked by Natick, take tough losses in quad meet

Jake Levin
Staff Reporter

It was a busy week for the Norwood wrestlers, featuring a dual meet vs. Natick and a quad meet vs. three other Bay State Conference foes.

The Redhawks proved to be a difficult test for the Mustangs, as Natick blanked Norwood, 57-0, at Norwood High School

“Coach [Robert] Anniballi has a successful program, and as we are a young team, we wanted to keep up with them throughout the three periods,” Mustangs head coach Billy McDermott said of his counterpart. “Some of the guys wrestled well, some fell short.”

The focal point of the match was DeVaughn Carter’s 152-pound division battle with Allan Smith. Carter fell, 6-3, but McDermott predicted the two could meet again in sectionals.

“I think it will be a better match for Norwood,” he said.

The quad meet featured the Braintree Wamps, Walpole Rebels and Brookline Warriors making the trip to Norwood High. Quad meet formats have each of the four teams wrestle individually against the other three teams, for a total of three results.

The Mustangs fell to the Wamps and Rebels, each by a score of 60-9, with a few bright spots along the way.

Carter won his match this time via a pin in the third round, while Sylvain Appolon, who did not wrestle vs. Natick due to an injury, won his match 13-8 in the 145-pound division.

Against Brookline, Norwood had its highest scoring output of the season but came up just short to the Warriors, 47-33.

“We must stay off our backs,” McDermott said. “Pins hurt us.”

Appolon and Carter won again, and were joined in the winner’s circle by Jonathan Maffeo (120-pound weight class) and Colin Plasko (182-pound weight class). Maffeo defeated his opponent 4-3, and Plasko made quick work of his competition with a quick pin in the first.

“Brookline will be a platform to compare our team to moving forward,” McDermott said. “Young coaching staff, young team.”

The Mustangs wrestled at home against the Needham

Rockets last night, in an event held after the Record’s deadline.

They’ll next be in action on Wednesday, Feb. 1 for a home match vs. the Weymouth Wildcats – which will also be senior night for Norwood, as it is the final home match of the season.

After Weymouth, two more matches remain: a quad meet at Whitman-Hanson High School on Saturday, Feb. 5, and an away match at Dedham on Tuesday, Feb. 7. Individuals may still be wrestling beyond that in sectionals and states.

ning streak, a run in which the Mustangs held all three opponents (Weymouth, Milton and Framingham) to under 30 points.

Walpole more than doubled the output of any of those teams, which concerned Lepley, but she also took a glass-half-full approach when looking at Norwood’s offense vs. Walpole. The Mustangs cracked 40 points just once during the win streak, and only once this season has Norwood scored more than 50 points (Dec. 20 at Dedham in a 54-32 win – the game before Meghan Reen’s injury).

“Our goal was to score more than 45 and hold them under 40...so obviously, we did half of that,” Lepley said. “They’re a really good team. They love to play offense and they have a lot of scorers. The next time we play them we’re just going to have to focus in a bit more on defense.”

Norwood suffered its second loss in a row on Monday night at Notre Dame Academy (Hingham), 60-49. The loss dropped the Mustangs back to .500, at 5-5, and resulted in a split in the season series with the Cougars. Norwood defeated NDA, 43-39, in Norwood on Dec. 22.

“He’s almost automatic,” James echoed. “When you have a guy like that, we can penetrate and kick it to him for a wide-open 3.”

Watson and James finished with 15 and 12 points, respectively, but only five of their 27 combined points came in the first half.

Once the duo awakened, Norwood was able to turn its 25-19 halftime edge into a much more comfortable margin until the fourth quarter.

Rebounding was another key to victory for the Mustangs, with Jason Ortega hauling down 13 boards and Mike King bringing in 10.

Their contributions on the glass weren’t lost on Oliver, who knew coming in facets of the game other than scoring would be a factor with the Rebels in town.

“We felt coming into tonight if we could take care of the ball and limit the turnovers, and win the turnover battle and the rebounding battle and therefore the possession battle, we’d be in good shape,” Oliver said.

Also not lost on Oliver was that the win was, in fact, over Walpole. The coach himself treated the win as just another step towards qualifying for the postseason, but knew it would have some extra meaning for his players.

“It’s nice to beat anybody,” Oliver said. “I’ve got a ton of respect for Walpole and coach [Dave] St. Martin, he runs a really, really great program.

“It’s really important to the guys I think. Growing up here for them, it’s a big deal. But it feels the same as the rest of [the wins] for me. It feels good.”

“It was very important to get this win vs. Walpole,”

Watson said. “They’re a good team, hats off to [Luke] Esty and [Isaiah] Shephard, they’re great players.”

“That’s a really good ball team,” James said. “We came out, we executed what we needed to do, and we were able to get away with a ‘W.’”

The teams will play again on Thursday, Feb. 16 in Walpole, as part of another double header with the girls teams.

Norwood will travel to Dedham on Friday night and face off against the Marauders for the final time as Bay State Conference rivals at 6:30 p.m.

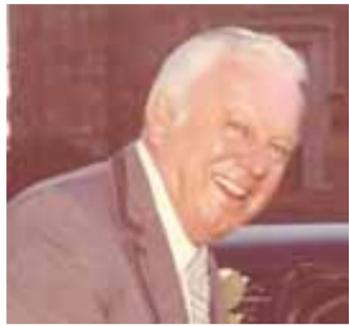

Dedham will be joining the Tri-Valley League for the 2017-18 school year; it remains unclear if Norwood will follow suit, although the earliest a move could happen is for the 2018-19 school year.

More Bits and Pieces...

The new Dodge Ram pickup has gone through a makeover for 2017. The power wagon is back, along with a host of new standard equipment, including Cummins diesel engines. The list of possible models, with varying wheel base lengths, short cab, extended cab, mega cab, not to mention all the possible options and trim levels...are many.

Ford has the new F250 truck available with their V/8 diesel engine that is their own design, that has been around and updated every year - so far, so good. It is very quiet and has more power than the average buyer will need. Side steps for entry and exit are a must. The ride was much better than I expected and the audio system is refined along with the heat and a/c. Steering hub controls are more the norm than not.

Mitsubishi is still hanging in and the Outlander Sport SUV has been a good seller. It does everything the buyer would want at a decent price. The all-wheel-drive SEL version (with no options) is $26,290. But, the standard equipment list is long including a 140-watt audio system, XM radio, push-button start, 18-inch tires with alloy wheels, plus more. EPA: 22 city, 27 highway. 10 year/100,000 mile power train warranty. A nice small, mid-size SUV.

The Mitsubishi Mirage is a small compact that seats four and is available in a 5-speed manual or CVT automatic transmission powered by a 1.2 liter, 3-cylinder engine that does let you know it is a 3 cylinder - the engine sound and vibration are telltale signs. It is not a daily highway cruiser, but it is great around town with the occasional highway trip. I was surprised to find a push-to-start button and heated front seats, plus a good sounding radio in this entry-level vehicle. Speaking of entry level, the price is $12,995 (destination fee: $835) for the base ES 5-speed manual. Our top-of-the-line GT listed at $16,495 (with HID headlights). There is even a factory remote start available for $495. EPA for the automatic: 37 city, 43 highway. Power train warranty: 10 years/100,000 miles.

Boston's own Junior Damato, "The Auto Doctor" has agreed to field auto repair questions from Bulletin and Record readers. Please forward your questions to news@bulletinnewspapers.com and we will do our best to get your questions answered.
