Food drives in full swing in Norwood

Brad Cole
Staff Reporter

Those looking to donate to the Norwood Ecumenical Food Pantry have ample opportunity to do so this holiday season, as numerous companies and groups in Norwood and the surrounding towns are holding food drives.

One such program is the annual Food for Fines event at the Morrill Memorial Library. Patrons are encouraged to donate non-perishable goods such as canned tuna fish, canned fruits and vegetables, cereals and powdered milk at the library, and library-goers are given an incentive to do so.

“Overdue fees are waived if you bring non-perishable goods to the circulation desk,” Library Director Charlotte Canelli said, and described the situation as “a win-win for everyone,” because patrons see their fines removed and the food pantry gets additional goods to help service the over 250 families use it every week.

Library-goers can also make a monetary donation to the food pantry, if they prefer.

Of course, even those without overdue fees can make a donation. In fact, the library’s donation bin is available year-round, though November is the only month where a donation to the Norwood Ecumenical Food Pantry erases one’s overdue fees.

One local business with an annual food drive is Norwood Bank. A box in the lobby solicits food pantry donations, and the goods are brought to the Norwood Ecumenical Food Pantry every Thursday. The bank accepts donations from anyone interested- one does not need to be a bank customer to leave food there. While they are not looking for any specific donation, they will accept non-perishable foods, napkins, health care products and more.

“We have been doing this for a few years, especially around the holidays,” Branch Manager Carol Berezin said.

In addition to this holiday food drive, Norwood Bank holds a similar event in the spring.

“There seems to be a need all year round,” Berezin said.

Another business that holds an annual fundraiser for the food pantry is the Super Stop & Shop on Route 1 in Norwood. They have brought back their Food for Friends program for another year, and this program allows customers to make a $1, $3 or $5 donation with each purchase. Customers

NAC looking to rebuild runway

Brad Cole
Staff Reporter

The Norwood Airport Commission (NAC) is planning to go out to bid on their runway 10-28 reconstruction project. The NAC plans on applying for a grant from the Federal Aviation Administration (FAA) to fund this reconstruction, something they tried to acquire two years ago.

When the same reconstruction project went out to bid two years ago, the NAC applied for grant money at the same time. Though bids came in, the project was delayed because they were unable to secure the FAA grant.

The FAA has requested that Norwood Airport justify the use of declared distances on the runway. There are multiple types of declared distances, including Take-off Run Available, which indicates the length of runway declared available and suitable for the ground run of an airplane taking off, and Landing Distance Available, which shows the length of runway which is declared available and suitable for the ground run of an airplane landing. The airport does not use declared distances on this runway at the current time.

Senior Project Manager Jeff Adler of Dubois and King is strongly in favor of using declared distances on the site.

The need for declared distances is because of the safety area at the site. The Norwood Airport has what Adler described as a non-standard safety area.

Howard takes issue with Plasko remarks

Brad Cole
Staff Reporter

When Allan Howard announced his candidacy for the Board of Selectmen he had some choice words for the current board, saying the group lacked common sense at times, specifically when it comes to contracts.

“It’s common sense: you don’t break contracts,” he said, and cited a pair of the town’s cancelled contracts, specifically those with New England Power (NEP) and the Police and Fire Station general contractor.

At the Nov. 17 Board of Selectmen meeting, Chairman Bill Plasko said that while the board typically does not respond to comments such as this, he felt these accusations needed a response.

Plasko did not mention Howard by name.

He pointed out that while the Board of Selectmen broke the contract with NEP, it was not this board, but the group from 1998: Thomas Riolo, Gary Lee, Tim McDonough, Domenic Fruci and Susan McQuaid. He went on to say that it was the Permanent Building Construction Committee (PBCC) who broke the contract during the Police and Fire Station construction.

Plasko added, “This board has spent much time cleaning up” after those who broke the contracts, and that if Howard wanted to run against those who ended these contracts, he should have run ten years ago.

The Norwood High School Mustang Marching Band won awards at NESBA and MICCA.

Band Wins Gold and Platinum

The award-winning Norwood High School Mustang Marching Band recently completed its fall season of NESBA (New England Scholastic Band Association) and MICCA (Massachusetts Instrumental and Choral Conductors Association) competition performances. Norwood capped an award-winning and undefeated season with exceptional performances in the finals.

This year, the Mustang Marching Band won the Division III Platinum-level trophy at the NESBA finals competitions. In addition, the band received a Gold Medal at the MICCA finals competitions.

The Norwood marching band, under the direction of Steven Conant, presented a program entitled "Wanted" by Frank Sullivan. The group includes 13 color guards and 44 musicians, including eighth-grade students from the Coakley Middle School. A staff of 12 includes local visual designer Chuck Moulton. The Student Director is Senior Rebecca Baturin. The Color Guard Captains are Vicki Higgins and Catherine Sobchuk.

Once again this year, the Mustang Marching Band hosted the Norwood Classic, a MICCA marching band festival on Sunday, Oct. 18. Nine of the best area high school marching bands competed during the adjudicated performance. Norwood received the highest possible score, five stars.

The Mustang Marching Band will perform at halftime during the Norwood High School football game on Thanksgiving Day, Thursday, Nov. 27, 10 a.m.

Besides the fall competitions, the band participates in four Town parades, including Norwood Day, Veterans Day, Memorial Day and Holiday parades.

canned goods to the pantry, which can be placed into a bin at the front of the store.

"Last year, we raised over $3,000, and this year, we're on pace to exceed that," Store Manager Jamall Griffin said.

The Roche Bros. located on Washington Street in Westwood also donates to the Norwood Ecumenical Food Pantry, as well as the Dedham Food Pantry. They do not have a Thanksgiving-specific food drive, but an ongoing drive.

"We do a regular food drive every day of the year," Store Manager Rich Broderick said. "We do quite a bit of donating through that program."

Hannaford's Supermarket has a trio of food drives during the holiday season. The first, which runs during November, is called Fund A Feast, and customers can purchase gift baskets that contain items food pantries have specifically requested. The gift baskets cost $10, and are distributed to local food pantries.

Two additional fundraisers begin on Nov. 29. The first offers customers a coupon book in exchange for a $5 donation to the food pantry, the other is the supermarket's "Buy One, Give One," program. Certain products in the store, including cereals and soups, are labeled in this fashion, and if a customer purchases one, the supermarket will donate one to the local food pantry.

"We try to make it easy and we try to reward people for making a donation," said Michael Norton, a spokesperson for Hannaford's.

Residents can also stop by the Norwood Town Hall to donate, where a large cardboard box waits for donations, and those donations also make their way to the Norwood Ecumenical Food Pantry.

The Norwood Ecumenical Food Pantry is located at the First Congregational Church on 100 Winter Street, and is open every Saturday from 8:15 to 11:00 a.m. It serves approximately 250 families each week.

Broadway Citgo has done it again!

Today Broadway Citgo was awarded another Gold Citgo Image Award scoring 144 points out of a possible 144.

Citgo Petroleum Corp. in Houston, TX is comparing Broadway Citgo to the great sports dynasties - Boston Celtics, Pittsburgh Steelers, San Francisco 49ers and the New England Patriots. Citgo tried to mention the New York Yankees, but Store Manager Henry Eno stopped them by saying, "We don't want the New York Yankees mentioned here."

Eno went on to say that we don't talk about dynasties. We just come in every day, treat the customers right, offer them a clean store, and a great Citgo product at a fair price. He said "If we do that consistently, the awards will keep coming."

Congratulations to Store Manager Henry Eno and his staff.

Cardoni hopes to bring film studios to Norwood

Brad Cole
Staff Reporter

Jonathan Cardoni has an ambitious goal - he hopes to attract movie studios to the town of Norwood for filming, and he met with the Economic Development Committee on Nov. 18 to discuss this plan, and committee members support his efforts.

"This dovetails with what we're looking to do to market the town," committee member Scott Murphy said, adding that if a studio films in town, it would bring a lot of short-term economic boosts.

The Downtown Steering Committee also voiced support for the project at their Nov. 19 meeting.

"We'll back it 100 percent, it just needs to be formulated," Jerry Kelleher said, adding they like the concept, but want to see a more structured plan.

Cardoni acknowledged he needs a clearer vision for the project, but had the basic outline in place, and multiple committees are supporting this basic idea.

"I think it's a great idea," said Downtown Steering Committee member Ed McKenna.

Cardoni said most films have hundreds of people on set, and this large influx of people stay at local hotels, eat at local restaurants, use caterers from the town and frequent other nearby businesses in the town or city they are filming at. In addition, it presents a job opportunity for people in town, because there are often many openings for extras in the film.

"Obviously, Tom Cruise isn't going to stay at the Four Points, but members of the staff and crew would," Cardoni said.

He added that Norwood had a certain appeal that could attract film studios to the town.

"There is enough diversity in the town that I could see three or four films here without people knowing they are in the same town," Cardoni said.

He was not alone in this view.

"Norwood is a very interesting town, and I think, visually, the town has a lot to offer," said Dan Busler, one of the volunteers working on this project. "Films need many different scenes. They need parks, they need houses, they need churches. They might even need this meeting room."

Cardoni acknowledged that Norwood is not unique with these features, but Norwood has a few advantages other towns don't have.

"Every town has much of what Norwood has, but few of them are accessible to two major cities- Boston and Providence- and an airport large enough to land a good sized corporate jet," Cardoni said.

Busler stressed the importance of providing a positive experience for film studios.

"The entertainment business is looking for the easiest way to reproduce things over and over again," Busler said.

This means studios will hire actors and actresses who are easy to work with, and they go back to cities and towns that are accessible and work well meeting the needs of the studio.

"These people want no trouble," he added.

Studios do return to cities for filming. In the last two years, 23 large-scale films were

Town wants double poles removed

Brad Cole
Staff Reporter

The Cable Commission wants to see a pair of Verizon-owned telephone poles removed from the town. The poles in question are located on Carnegie Row and Vanderbilt Avenue.

The removal of these poles is part of an effort to remove all of the double poles from Norwood. A double pole is a pole that features a new utility pole attached to an old one, and the two in question are standing without any wires attached to them.

Darryl Hanson, Broadband Division Manager for Norwood Light Broadband, estimates that these poles have been on these streets without wires for 20 years.

A 1997 state law mandated that all double poles be removed within 90 days of the installation of a new pole, though the law is hard to enforce. Members of the Cable Commission cannot fine or punish Verizon for failure to remove the poles.

Verizon will work with

Norwood to remove the poles, Verizon Regional Director Rick Colon said, but has not heard from Town Manager John Carroll or elected officials like the Board of Selectmen regarding which poles need to be removed.

"My office has not been contacted by the town," Colon said. "We're more than willing to work with the town on this issue," and the first way to do this would be to get the town to use the Pole Lifecycle Management Database (PLM), the state database developed by InQuest that lists every telephone in the state, meaning over two million poles are kept track of in this fashion.

Cable Commission Chairman Richard Shay suggests one reason for the non-removal of the poles is this database. Norwood does not use the state database of utility poles; rather, the town has its own list of poles. This database discrepancy might be reason for the pole's continued existence.

CARVING THE TURKEYS

This Thursday, we celebrate all that we feel blessed by. For those of us in the media, we have an awful lot to be thankful for.

Yes, these are tough times for those who buy ink by the barrel. But no matter how hard hit newspapers and magazines may be, the past year has given us a smörgåsbord to feast upon. As we sit down to carve the bird this week, we are truly fortunate to have so many turkeys around to keep us busy.

An obvious choice to illustrate what we mean is to once again bring up the always entertaining topic of former State Sen. Dianne Wilkerson. After all, what's a turkey without stuffing — as in stuffing a bra with what appeared to be a pay-to-play bribe (innocent until proven guilty, etc., etc.) Boston City Councilor Chuck Turner, whose supporting role in the whole sting wasn't enough to lead to a losing re-election bid, needs to be lumped with Lady Di as birds of a feather.

In Turner's particular case, the info made public thus far may be less than iron-clad. One might conclude that his sin was a lapse in judgment, an inappropriate campaign donation rather than a conspiracy of fraud. But what is most galling is that both of the smiling money grabbers have subsequently played the race card. Was it racial persecution? Was it a concerted effort to single out minority officials? Well, aside from being caught on camera red-handed, that argument falls apart when one considers that two other examples of foul play (or is that fowl play?) being plucked out of Beacon Hill were Sal DiMasi and (a bit earlier) Tom Finneran. Norwood Rep John Rogers must really feel thankful that throughout 2009 he managed to dodge the previous year's accusations that campaign funds were paying the mortgage on a Cape Cod vacation home. He also must have been banished deep into the bowels of the state house since few have seen or heard from him all year.

The fact that Mr. Rogers will have competition for his seat in 2010 is a good thing. Whether Rogers wins or loses is secondary in importance to the necessity to answer to the public for his actions through debate with his opponent. Incumbents across America are discovering that regardless of how well they deliver to their constituents locally, citizens are now demanding a moral fiber from those who serve. Only time will tell if residents of Norwood find Mr. Rogers deserving of another term in office or if questions concerning his possible ethical lapses are enough for an upset.

U.S. Rep. Patrick Kennedy (D-Rhode Island) was a last minute addition to our all-turkey guest list. This week, the son of the late Ted Kennedy went public with a 2007 move by Providence Bishop Thomas Tobin to bar him from receiving Eucharist at Catholic Mass due to his unwavering support of abortion rights. What is galling is how Kennedy's dredging up of the incident has stirred up a loud chorus on anti-Catholic invective.

There is plenty one could take issue with regarding the intersection of Catholicism and politics. Such debate can even be healthy for the faithful, something many a Jesuit might attest to. But Patches is doing what so many "cafeteria Catholics" do, thinking that the church should bow to the will of a subset. Like it or not, the Vatican, through its bishops and cardinals, has very clear-cut demands of its followers and these edicts are not multiple choice. One may have the right to disagree with the rules that are set down, but the institution can — and usually will — push back. Kennedy's actions and his failure to play by the rules of his professed faith has sparked anti-Catholic attacks that — plain and simple — are the sort of persecution that no religion in this country should suffer through.

Letters to the Editor

ISN'T SABER EDITORIALIZING?

To The Editor:

Although Jackie Saber's columns do not appear in the editorial section, they often contain the kind of content that makes you wonder why they do not. After telling us a number of useful tidbits like not to park our cars on the street in the winter and when not to dial 9-1-1, Jackie offers a number of opinions that consistently lack any kind of meaningful insight. In an effort to offer some contrasting opinions to Ms. Saber's, I feel the need to address several comments made in the most recent edition of the Record.

First, President Obama (a consistent target of Ms. Saber's commentary) is right to deliberate on the course of action for Afghanistan. Afghanistan is a country where other world powers (the Soviets and the British Empire to name two) failed. We need to realize the solution may not be increasing troop levels by 30,000 or 40,000. We should remember the lessons of Vietnam. I remember General Westmoreland was always telling President Johnson that he needed more troops to win in Vietnam and Johnson always listened. Ramping up troop levels in Afghanistan without thinking through a strategy that includes how to succeed and when to leave is dangerous. Bush and Cheney had six years to find a way to succeed, yet they failed miserably because of their lack of critical thinking and leadership and the ill-conceived invasion of Iraq. I don't recall Jackie throwing barbs at Bush and Cheney for their mishandling of the wars. Now Obama isn't even given six months by Jackie!!! Give me a break!!

In regards to Attorney General Holder's investigation of the CIA and others who allowed torture, I always thought the main role of an Attorney General was to investigate wrongdoing and prosecute law breakers. The United States obeys international laws. We signed the Geneva Conventions which bar the use of torture. Even Republican Presidential nominee John McCain, a torture victim himself, abhors the use of torture. There is no evidence that CIA tactics got any information that we did not already have.

Those whom Holder investigated have not kept us safe. They have put us in peril. It was President Bush's CIA Director George Tenet who told us that there was intelligence on Iraq's possession of weapons of mass destruction. It was a "slam dunk." We invaded Iraq, found no WMD. The Iraq war distracted us from our primary mission in Afghanistan and, well the rest is history. As thousands of our soldiers in Iraq are not safe and CIA incompetence is partly to blame.

Thank you for the phone numbers for Congress. I will call my congressman to advocate for a thorough investigation of the CIA's involvement in illegal torture.

Christmas Village coming?

Brad Cole
Staff Reporter

The Christmas Village was last seen in the Walpole Mall in December 2007, and will be returning there this year, with its grand opening on Dec. 12. However, Jonathan Cardoni and Dean Calusdian are looking to bring the Christmas Village to Norwood in future years, and Cardoni went before the Downtown Steering Committee to see what they thought of this idea.

The village is a life-size, walk-through Christmas display, which Cardoni compared to the Enchanted Village at the Jordan's Furniture in Avon. The village was designed by Calusdian and it is mostly display pieces, though there is some animatronic pieces and user interaction.

When displayed at the Walpole Mall, visitors are charged $3 to enter the village, though Cardoni does not feel charging for admittance is the best option for the piece.

"It was created to draw people in," he said. "If we could get people excited about it- if we had a place we could set it up to attract people- it would be worthwhile," adding "We thought Norwood would be a good place to set it up."

He presented the committee with some pictures of the Christmas Village and invited them to attend it when it opens in December.

"We have some pictures of it, but it really does not do it justice," he said. "The best way to present it is for everyone to see it when it is set up."

Members of the Downtown Steering Committee are in favor of the idea at the current time, and will look into it at a Town Planner Steve Costello also spoke out in favor of the idea and holding more events such as this downtown.

"Events are an important part of the downtown area, if only to let people have fun and show them that downtown is alive," he said, adding, "It's definitely keeping the word out that the downtown is what it's supposed to be: an attraction."

future date. It is too late to do anything in town with the Christmas Village this year, though 2010 is a possibility.

"I think this is exactly the type of event that will bring people in and reintroduce them to downtown," Committee member Michael Lyons said, adding "I think it is something

Dean Street timing issues to be resolved

Brad Cole
Staff Reporter

For nearly seven months, Town officials have been working with MassHighway to bring the streetlights at The Dean Street and Route 1 intersection to full functionality. The intersection, located next to the Staples Plaza, has seen a host of problems over the months, and one major problem remains with the lights in the area: they are not timed properly.

However, these timing and sequencing issues might soon come to an end. The problems with the system began during the construction at the Staples shopping plaza, where DDR Development was tasked with installing and activating the signals. A gas leak in the area prevented them from doing so for several months, and during this time the lights at the intersection operated as blinking hazard lights. This issue has since been resolved, but timing continues to be a problem, and these deficiencies have been noted by Town Engineer Mark Ryan, other town officials and the Massachusetts Department of Transportation (MassDOT).

The lights have caused numerous problems in the area. Those driving along Route 1 can have a smooth ride, but those trying to traverse Dean Street or leave the Staples or Walgreen's parking lots can be in for a long delay and long lines of traffic. There are also issues created by people taking left hand turns out of the Citgo Gas Station in an attempt to cross Route 1, which also hinders traffic.

"The state has approved the retiming of the system," Town Planner Steve Costello said.

Adam Hurtubise of the state's Executive Office of Transportation confirmed that the state continues to work with Norwood to alleviate the problem.

In an e-mail comment, Hurtubise explained that "This signal was installed under a MassDOT permit as a traffic mitigation measure for the abutting plaza development. The Town Engineer and MassDOT recently agreed to implement some timing changes to address concerns raised by business owners on Dean Street.”

He added that “MassDOT will continue to monitor the operation,” and that “prior to accepting the work performed under the permit, we performed an inspection of the roadway elements and traffic signal operation, employing a thorough and detailed process to ensure the safe, proper, and efficient operation of the traffic signals.”

Back in July, Hurtubise wrote “the traffic signals are currently in the fine tuning, adjustment, and testing period. During this period the design engineer will make recommendations for adjustments to the operation of the traffic signals to optimize traffic flow.”

Testing like this helped determine what changes needed to be made.

“The idea is to lessen the time given to the jug handles and increase the time given to the main route,” Costello said, adding the timing changes will make the intersection easier to navigate.

Ryan added “these changes they make will help significantly,” adding that the costs of this work will be born by DDR.

It would cost the town $5,000 to access this database.

According to Shay, most municipalities do not use this database: only 25 percent of cities and towns have paid for access.

“With the amount of frustration involved, I consider $5,000 to be cheap,” Shay said, as it would allow them to see what Verizon sees and update the database with the most accurate information.

Shay believes it is possible that these two poles aren’t listed in the database or are listed as having wires on them.

“If the database is wrong, then the reality is going to be wrong,” Shay said. “Whatever the database says is Verizon’s reality,” later asking, “In the 21st Century, what is right? Computer or reality? What is more important?”

Elected officials have not informed Verizon about the poles in question on Carnegie Row and Vanderbilt Avenue, nor have they been provided with their exact locations on these streets.

“If there are specific poles on specific streets that need to be addressed, [the town] needs to bring them to my attention,” Colon said.

The only town officials who have discussed double poles with Verizon has been the Cable Commission, and Colon does not believe this is within the commission’s jurisdiction.

“This is not an issue for the Cable Advisory Commission,” he said, adding that he wants to hear from the town’s elected officials regarding double poles.

Cable Commission member Joan Jacobs described the commission’s work to get the poles removed as the old pass-the-buck routine, saying they are authorized speak for the Board of Selectmen on this issue.

New HS roof install to start

Brad Cole
Staff Reporter

The new Norwood High School construction project continues on schedule, and next week marks another landmark for crews on the site.

"Roofing should be starting some time next week," said Michael Moisé of Agostini Construction.

The starting date depends on when the roofing material arrives at the site and the weather. Materials are expected to arrive this week.

"Once they get going on this, if the weather holds out for them, it will go pretty fast," Moisé said.

Tim Bonfatti, the Owner's Project Manager with Compass, has a clear goal for roofing. He wants to see Buildings A and B, which represent the classroom wing at the new high school, roofed by the winter. He also wants to see the exterior wall- the sheeting, not the bricks- up by that time. This will allow them to heat the building and do interior work during the winter. Buildings A and B, and the new high school as a whole, is just one building, the letters are used to designate different parts of the school during construction.

ing a spot for the village.

"If you're going to plan this, you have to find a space that will work year in and year out," he said.

There would be a fee attached to bringing the display to town.

"It's not something that could be done for free," Cardoni said. "It would need some kind of sponsorship."

The money needed would be used to cover the village set up and removal, make a few modifications to the display and handle advertising for the event. Cardoni would look for local merchants who would be interested in supporting the Christmas Village. He was not sure what the event would cost, but said it would be a reasonable price.

"For maybe seven to eight weeks, it's not an awful lot of money," Cardoni said, and suggested they could sell advertising space in the coloring book they distribute at the village.

While at the Downtown Steering Committee, he gave committee members a verbal description of the Christmas Village, outlining where visitors will go when they enter. They would see people on a village street, where children look into toy store windows and parents go shopping for presents. They would see a house on Christmas Eve, where children are dreaming and the decorate tree stands tall, waiting for presents.

The tale takes a turn for the whimsical at this point, as it shifts to the North Pole and Santa's Castle. On the way to the workshop, visitors will encounter some lost penguins, who are attempting to find the South Pole. In the workshop, you can see elves working, checking the naughty and nice lists and riding reindeer.

The event finishes on Christmas day, with children opening their presents.

"[Buildings] A and B, being the classroom wings, are definitely more complex than the rest of the building," Moisé said.

Inside work continues in Building A, and D'Agostino Associates, a Newton based masonry firm, has started work on the inside. The use of D'Agostino Associates caused members of the Laborers International Union of North America Local 138 to hold an informational picket outside of the construction site. The picket was due to wage and payment issues D'Agostino Associates has, said Scott Gustafson, the acting director and regional-organizing coordinator for the union's New England region, adding that the firm was cited by the Attorney General for not meeting state wage laws.

The trees on the high school property that loom over abutter Dan Griffin's house were discussed, and Griffin cited a letter he received from the Permanent Building Construction Committee, which he was pleased with.

"I'm very appreciative of the letter response from the PBCC," he said, adding that it meant the board understood the problems with the trees, which pose a threat to nearby property.

Due to their height, if one of the trees fall, it could potentially cause damage to both school property and Griffin's house, and the removal of some or all of the 13 large trees could help the town avoid such a situation.

"It's a mutual benefit for the town and [Griffin]," PBCC member Dick Kief said.

The trees are also in a location where a swale might be added. A swale is a low track of land, and it can be either a natural landscape feature or a human-created one. Human-created swales are designed to help manage water runoff, which is what a swale at the Norwood High School construction site would be used for.

If a swale is added to the construction site, the 13 evergreen trees would be removed.

District 3 Town Meeting member Judith Howard was concerned about the size of the windows of the new high school. Neither Bonfatti nor Moisé had the exact measurements of the windows on hand, but did know they are larger than those present at the Whitman-Hanson Regional High School. Even with the increased size, Howard was concerned.

"Norwood High has a lot of large, wide windows to allow a lot of natural light into classrooms," she said. "These are very narrow."

She cited the Whitman-Hanson cafeteria as an example. The cafeteria has two windows and a few skylights, which can make the room dark

On Nov. 19, James P. Kane of 102 Rock Street, Norwood, was found guilty of larceny over $250 from a person over 60 years old.

Kane was sentenced to two years in the House of Corrections, and this sentence was suspended in favor of a three-year probation period. As a condition of this probation, he cannot be alone with anyone over the age of 60.

The investigation of Kane began on Mar. 11, 2008, when an elderly woman and her family reported Kane to police because they believed he had stolen money from her. Reports that followed showed that this was the case, and police learned Kane preyed on the woman for two years, stealing over $30,000 during this time.

In a press release issued by the Norwood Police Department, Officer Kevin Grasso wrote, "It is reported that James Kane had befriended this elderly party and began to do landscaping. He had knowledge that she was living in her home alone. Over a period of several years Kane had gained her trust," and this trust enabled him to steal her money.

Detective Sergeant Robert Rinn led the investigation of this case.

The police are investigating a new theft, after Norwood Police Department Officer Gregory Hayes interrupted a pair of robbers during the middle of a burglary at the Sunoco Gas Station located at 515 Boston Providence Highway.

The alleged thieves are Erick Casey, 27, of 6502 Pouliot Place, Wilmington and William Scopa, 24, of 1144 River Street, Hyde Park. Both suspects were charged with breaking and entering, larceny, destruction of property over $250 and receiving a stolen motor vehicle.

Casey fled the scene after seeing Officer Hayes, but would be found later by the state's K-9 unit at a construction site near the scene of the break in. However, a surveillance video monitored by Sunoco Security showed a second suspect was involved in the robbery. Sergeant Peter Curran located Scopa, who was lying down behind a shed in the area.

This incident continues to be investigated by Detective Clifford Brown.

Howard also commented on the shape of the new building.

When asked if she liked the replica clock tower design, she said, "Yes, it's perfect," adding that she likes the design of the current tower.

produced in New England, mainly in Boston. Cardoni wants to see a few of these film studios come to Norwood.

Cardoni and volunteers like Busler hope to create a Web-site promoting Norwood as a potential destination for film studios. This Web-site would include vital information about the town, including its longitude and latitude, which lets studios know about the lighting situation in town. It would also include photos of numerous landmarks, such as the Guild Square Building, the Old Colonial Café and the United States Post Office.

They came to the Economic Development Committee looking for town support for the project, and the committee was in favor of this plan. They recommended seeking approval of the plan from the Board of Selectmen, and want Cardoni to meet with that board.

Cardoni felt this would add a layer of legitimacy to this process, which is entirely a volunteer effort at this time. The support of town government could make the town more appealing to film studios looking for a location for new movies. He also wants others to take initiative and help aide he and Busler in this project.

"We want the town behind us," Cardoni said. "We want people involved. We want volunteers and we want ideas."

The Norwood Record Howard

Howard took issue with the fact that it was Plasko, not a Selectman who faces re-election next year like Helen Abdallah-Donohue or Michael Lyons, who made these statements.

"The thing that bothers me about this is that it is Plasko making these comments," Howard said. "Plasko isn't running this year. Why should I fight with him?"

He added that it was convenient Plasko had the TV camera in front of him to make these comments, and it made Howard wonder how many selectmen he is running against.

Howard disagreed with Plasko's assessment, and believes there is a lack of accountability in town government.

"The Selectmen put the blame, if you will, for the issues of construction on the PBCC," Howard said. "And who appointed the PBCC? The Selectmen."

Plasko said this was not the case. The PBCC is appointed by a committee made up of the Board of Selectmen chairman, the School Committee chairman and the town moderator.

"If someone is going to say someone's duties, and he's running for office, he should know about the office," Plasko said.

Howard gave one concession to Plasko saying, "he was somewhat right in what he said [about the NEP contract]," but it was this board that kept dragging the issue on year after year and building up the town's legal costs. He added, "the town settled for an outrageous amount."

Plasko responded by saying the Board of Selectmen changes with almost every election, and this board worked to bring the litigation to a conclusion as quickly as possible. He added that the current board only had control over the amount of interest the town would have to pay NEP.

"I think we got a very favorable settlement for the town," he said.

Lyons had no specific comment at this time, saying, "I'm not going to run a campaign six months away from the election," and that it was more important to continue working for the town as a member of nine committees, sub-committees and boards rather than play this game with Howard.

Runway

The FAA requires a 300-foot safety area on both ends of the runway, and the airport currently has about 88 feet on both sides. A 300-foot long safety area is not plausible there, without a reduction in pavement.

"We use that runway a lot, and we don't want to give up any pavement," Airport Manager Russ Maguire said, adding that large aircraft need as much space as possible with landing.

The reason the airport cannot add the necessary 212 feet of pavement on both sides is due to the surrounding natural area.

"It literally drops off into wetlands," Adler said, and the airport cannot encroach on this land.

"We're pretty well tapped out," Maguire said. They cannot just fill in and create a 300-foot safety area in the wetlands.

"We're going to fight to not take up any pavement," Adler said. "Whatever it takes, we will get it done."

Adler believes that the FAA will understand this explanation, and allow the airport to use declared distances at the site.

"I think the FAA will work with us," Adler said, saying they just want a justification for the decision to use declared distances instead of the typical 300-foot safety area.

He added construction will be ready to go after it goes out to bid in January. Going out to bid then would put the NAC first in line for an FAA grant to help fund the project. The project will not add anything new to the site, they are just reconstructing runway 10-28.

"We'd actually be making this smaller," Adler said.

Senior footballers ready for last hurrah

Norwood senior captain Mike Goodwin is among those healing their wounds for the Mustangs, but the star receiver is hoping to see some time on the field tomorrow.

Staff Reporter

It's been a difficult season to endure for the Norwood seniors ending their high school football careers tomorrow against rival host Dedham in the annual Thanksgiving Day joust. Not only did the Mustangs not have a real place to call home due to the reconstruction of their school, but they saw enough ambulances on the turf when hosting at Westwood High.

The most serious of the incidences came when Tim Hennigan suffered a seizure while celebrating a win over Milton in early October. Hennigan, a wrestling standout, who didn't play in the gridiron game, eventually was released from the hospital after suffering a second seizure.

Meanwhile, overall, nine Norwood starters have missed games this season due to injuries, and three of their most skilled upperclassmen will be or possibly be out for tomorrow's tilt. Silquan Russell (broken arm) and Anthony Colantuoni (sprained knee) will miss the battle and Mike Goodwin (shoulder) hopes to play but is "still not sure."

Russell and Goodwin are gifted receivers and defensive backs, while Colantuoni is a four-year stalwart at nose guard. Goodwin and Colantuoni are among the captains.

"Not being there as a captain is tough, too, because I can't do my part," Goodwin said. "But hopefully we will come together as a team for the last time."

Those who are fortunate to be running at full speed for the Mustangs wouldn't have it any other way. The impact of the last game is so strong, and especially for those who have been playing together since their youth days, that injuries and a 3-7 record will not deplete the emotion for those who will take the field.

"It's our last opportunity to show the town and ourselves that we're still a good team," said star captain and defensive end Matt Murphy, who also figures in Norwood's offensive scheme at tight end. "A lot of us have been playing together since we've been eight years old. I feel bad for the seniors who can't be out there. I missed the game [due to injury] against

All in good cheer Mustangs go coed

Mike Stoller

Staff Reporter

Norwood High made program history with its first ever coed cheerleading squad this fall. Freshman Scottie McGowan and sophomore Dilan Gamboa joined this year's team as the Mustangs became only the second group in the Bay State Conference to go coed in the sport along with Natick.

Head coach Lisa Verrochi, a former Norwood High and New England Patriots cheerleader, was back at the helm despite recovering from a second bout of breast cancer. Verrochi was diagnosed last May. She is doing well, and expected to be done with all the therapies soon. She pushed forth to coach the Mustangs for her second consecutive season.

"I wanted to give them the tools to work with," the coach said, referring to her 16-member squad that includes senior talents Jess Finney, Amanda Lynch, Manar Zaki and Meredith Kiy, all of whom will be cheering on the Norwood football team for the last time tomorrow morning in Dedham. "You're a mother, you're a coach. Life goes on."

Verrochi also is looking forward to a bright future for her team, citing a talented incoming group from the eighth grade.

"The future looks great. The eighth grade [group], they're all tumblers," the coach said, referring to the skill that includes handsprings, cartwheels, back tucks, and round-offs.

"We're trying for the cheerleading image of not just being a cheerer, but of a dancer, tumbler and an elite jumper," Verrochi added. "You got to raise the bar at some point, and that's what we're gonna do."

The Mustangs, who competed at the annual BSC competition in Braintree on Nov. 2, already have made the prestigious ranks with the additions of McGowan and Gamboa.

McGowan tried out first.

"He was very raw with his talent, not trained in tumbling, but by the end, he was outstanding," Verrochi said.

Walpole, and this is the only game left where I can play against a big rival."

"It's the last time we put on the pads again, and it is more emotional," said full back and fellow captain Mark Nardelli. "We've been through this since sophomore, freshman year, and we want to win our last game."

"I can't even imagine not playing in my last game," added another fellow leader and line-backer Bobby Kane. "No matter [what the hardships], we go into each week with no doubts, and it's the same thing for Dedham [tomorrow]."

Said lineman Al Morteo, who lost his dedicated dad, Al, Sr. to leukemia a little over a year ago: "I will always remember the great friends that I have made while playing football. Although it has been a tough year and we may not have won as many games as we would have liked, the team remained together."

"We had many injuries, but we remained a team and continued to play to the best of our ability," Morteo added. "Although we didn't have a real home field, we still tried to make it feel like a real home game by driving to Westwood High School instead of [having] a bus taking us to Westwood."

"We hope to redeem some of our losses by having a great game and a victory on Thanksgiving," Goodwin stated. "It's been a tough season for the kids playing and the kids who have been hurt. It's frustrating to watch from the sidelines and to see kids go down, especially the seniors."

So this is it - one game, one chance, almost like fourth-and-two.

"I came into this season thinking, 'Oh, football isn't one of my top two sports, so I'll just go out there and play my hardest and whatever the outcome is, is what I'll have to deal with," said versatile running back Sean Keady. "I soon realized following Natick and Weymouth losses that football is like no other sport. The amount of work and dedication and heart put into the game in order to win is nothing compared to any other sports. I want to end my football career at Norwood on a high note, and I think through everything us seniors and our team have gone through, we deserve a 'W.'"

"Injuries don't matter. It's who wants the game more," Nardelli concluded. "It's Dedham, anything can happen. We'll definitely get prepared and be ready. It's our final game for the school. It's our Super Bowl."

THE GAME

Mike Stoller
Staff Reporter

Decimated by injuries, the Norwood football team may have to vary its strategy for tomorrow's annual Thanksgiving Day battle against archrival Dedham, but its spirit will remain the same.

"I've never seen a season where more debilitating injuries have occurred," Norwood head coach Buzzy Curran said. "But I must credit the kids for striving to get better every practice to make us as competitive as possible."

The Mustangs (3-7) began the campaign with a formidable aerial attack, but with super senior receivers Silquan Russell out with a broken arm and Mike Goodwin unsure of his status due to a shoulder injury, Norwood may not be as much of a threat in that area.

So it's back to the basics for Curran and his crew in tomorrow's big Bay State Conference (BSC) Herget Division tilt, to be played at Dedham's Stone Park. Entering the 81st game of the historical holiday rivalry, the Mustangs lead the series, 43-37, winning the last five match-ups.

"Our goal is to keep [Dedham's] offense off the field by running the ball with success," the veteran mentor said. "The key to the game is our offensive line. We need to get a push up front and let our backs find holes. [We need to] hold onto the ball [and] think first downs, then touchdowns."

The Marauders (1-9) recently won their first game of the season against Brookline, but their sub-par ledger is more a barometer of how tough the BSC is than the actual talent they possess.

"They have athletes all over the field," Curran said, citing Dedham's go-to-guys on offense, Dan O'Connor, Nick Walsh and Bernie Girard.

It is for that reason Curran says his defense needs "to do a better job of getting off the field on third down."

The Mustangs also will be on the alert for Dedham return specialist/all-around sensation Mikyle Hill.

"Our special teams must execute every time they are on the field," Curran said. "We are very impressed with Mikyle Hill, their talented sophomore return specialist, wideout and cornerback."

Meanwhile, Curran is expecting no easy battle contending with Dedham's defense. He knows his offensive line needs to allow time for senior quarterback Kevin O'Sullivan to manage the game.

"Their defense is physical and quick," the Norwood coach said. "Our linemen and fullbacks must get a helmet on their solid linebacking duo of Brian Carilli and Rob Salter."

Other than that, it's just a matter of taking in the day.

"It is always fun to play on Thanksgiving," Curran said. "And playing in Dedham makes it more enjoyable because the fans are right on top of you."

Rivalry with Norwood among reasons Dedham stays in BSC

Mike Stoller
Staff Reporter

Norwood's longstanding football rivalry with Dedham on Thanksgiving Day played a big role in the latter's decision to stay in the Bay State Conference. Dedham had entertained the idea of transferring into the smaller Tri-Valley League when the league's football program sought to expand with two more teams last November. The transaction would have had no effect on this year's game, but the point became moot in March, when the Dedham school committee board voted, 5-2, in favor of keeping the school in the BSC.

"This will be our 81st game with Norwood on Thanksgiving," Dedham athletic director Tom Arria said of tomorrow's tilt hosted by the Marauders. "[Overall], it's a more than a 100-year old rivalry."

Another factor that weighed heavily in the decision was that Dedham generally fared well from a win-loss perspective in many of its other sports, despite playing in a conference that boasts schools with much higher enrollments. Arria pointed to the success of the school's dominant girls' soccer and hockey teams in the last decade as well as the solid play of its field hockey unit.

"When you consider how we competed in the Bay State Conference and held our own being the size we are," Arria said. "We were looking at the Tri-Valley League as if that were a quick fix, but they're growing. Who's to say five or six years down the line that we would be a better fit there?"

Arria acknowledged the thought to switch out of the BSC was probably "football driven," though the boys' basketball team has struggled recently as well. He said he was not a proponent of either side on whether to switch or stay in the conference, but wanted to do the best thing for the school.

"There were two schools of thought [and] I simply wanted to give the information objectively," Arria said. "It was a long process of making sure we were going to make the right decision. We looked at every program, before dotting the I's and crossing the T's."

The general theory is that the higher enrollment schools will produce better athletic teams. Dedham's enrollment of some 785 students is much lower than that of others in the BSC. Arria referenced Framingham, Newton North, and Brookline as schools with considerably higher student enrollments. Framingham enrolls about 2,000 students, while Newton North and Brookline enlist about 1,900 and 1,800, respectively. Norwood is closer in range at about 1,100.

But, while there was enough input over some 10 years from proponents who wished to have Dedham switch out of the BSC, there ultimately was more support for the school to stay right where it is.

"We'd like to say we can compete," said Arria, whose football program recently won its first game of the year over Brookline, 13-7. "The student athletes and the coaches who spoke [also] weighed heavily [in the decision]. It came down to the school committee voting. They heard from all the different groups, the coaches, the students and the administration."

arrived mostly interested in tumbling, but to make the cut both boys needed to show good gymnastic skills, be very good dancers and strong enough to hold another person.

"They do it all except the pompoms," the coach said.

The head mentor noted the entire group did well at a BSC Invitational in Natick, emphasizing that "the future looks bright for Norwood cheerleading."

This year's entire cheerleading squad includes Tesh Smith, Abbey Wendstrom, Taylor Bonollo, Ashley Holmes, Hannah Depoutot, Scottie McGowan, Pam Gamboa, Dilan Gamboa, Shrinall Patel, Julia Wolfson, Lizzie Cawley, Tamicka Smith, Jess Finney, Amanda Lynch, Manar Zaki and Meredith Kiy.

Senior back Sean Keady says football is like no other sport. You can bet he'll be pumped and ready for tomorrow's holiday tilt at Dedham's Stone Park.

While funny, it is also a real-life predicament: will we go our entire lives without hearing the authentic voice inside us? For more information, call the church office at 781-762-3320.
